IT PAYS TO BE KIND

So Says Railroad President in a Letter on Courtesy

To every employe of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways a message was sent out from the President's office dealing with "Efficiency and Courtesy." The message embodies the spirit of the modern railroad, an insistence on the right of the public, passengers and shippers alike, to demand the best possible service from the railway men. In his message to the passenger employes the president says:

"The railroad company desires to sell its transportation. The ticket rates are alike for all, and any person buying a ticket, no matter what the style of his clothes are, how much money he displays or what his position in society is, is entitled to proper and courteous treatment. "The railroad man has a great opportunity for passing out kindness and good-will. He comes into contact with every kind and condition of individual; the old, the young; the rich, the poor; the illiterate, the learned; the happy the prosperous, and those in defeat, saturated with sorrow and distress; he sees them all and through intuition knows to which class they belong. A smile, a kind word, or a kindness done to any of these cannot fail to leave its impression for good and this good cannot help but expand. Try it." The president's message to the freight men said:

"The needs and wishes of shippers and consignees should be anticipated as much as possible. Do not discommode a shipper because of some omission of his own, but try to help out. Railroads are the servants of the public and it is their duty to serve well."

Get-Rich-Quicks

About the year 1720 a great many Englishmen invested millions of money in companies which were organized for such objects as: "Wrecks to be Fished for on the Irish Coast"; "For Making Oil from Sunflower Seeds"; "For Importing a Number of Large Jack Asses from Spain"; "For a Wheel of Perpetual Motion"; and, most extraordinary of all, "For an Undertaking Which Shall in Due Time be Revealed." The promoter of the last company received more than one thousand subscriptions during the morning on which the offering was made, and disappeared the same afternoon with more than two thousand guineas. The Englishmen who parted with their money for such ludicrous enterprises were not, unfortunately, the last of their kind.

SENSING SPIDERS

Woman Could Detect Their Presence Without Knowing They Were About

The remarkable case of a woman who possessed an extraordinary sixth sense in regard to spiders is quoted by a medical correspondent of the "Times." She could, the writer records, detect the presence of a spider in any room she happened to be living in without having seen the insect or without having any reason to suppose that it was there.

The discovery was accompanied by violent sickness, malaise, and even debility, but all this passed away on the spider being sought and removed from the room. The doctor also relates how he put the matter to a test.

A member of the London Spiritualist Alliance in an interview said that this sixth sense was simply sensitive-ness in one particular direction. He knew a lady some years ago who was extraordinarily sensitive to the perfume of a hyacinth. She was asked out to a dinner party one evening, and the hostess knowing her guest's horror of a hyacinth, placed the plants behind a screen in the fireplace. The guest entered the room without any idea that the hyacinths were there, but no sooner had she sat down to dinner than she fell into a faint.

A specialist in nerve diseases also related that precisely the same symptoms had been observed where the unseen presence of insects other than spiders had been the cause of horror, malaise and sickness. This sixth sense was produced by a process of cerebration due to a previous experience. Sometimes a person walking along the street thought of somebody, and the next minute that somebody appeared.

A beetle had been known to produce similar emotions. Lord Roberts' horror of a black cat was well known.

It is never wise to permit oneself to develop little muscle movement habits such as drumming on the table with the fingers, blinking the eyes, working the mouth. Such habits mean a certain lack of control over the nerves which may lead, in time, to a real disorder.

A small child should sleep in a bed of its own in a well ventilated room. Colds, sore throats and "snuffles" are more often caused by foul, warm air than by cold, fresh air.

Starch is quite important as an aid to the human system. Do you know that saliva is drawn to the stomach after starchy foods have been eaten? Saliva turns starch into a sugar-like preparation known as maltose.
