A rich and costly mansion Where noiseless servants wait, And 'neath the escutcheon's guilding None enter but the great,

But a happier home is near it, a humble cottage small, And I envy its sweet mistress-the shadow on the wall.

My pictures are the pride of art, And drawn by skilful hands; But the painted figures never move, Nor change the painted hands, .

Before the poorest window More gorgeous pagaent's glide, Within the lowliest housholds More life-like groups abide.

And I turn from soulless symbals that crowd my stately hall To watch the shifting shadow upon the cottage wall.

My princely husband never bends To kiss me on the lips; His heart is in his iron safe, His thoughts are with his ships, But when the twilight gathers Adown the duskey street The little housewife listens

The sound of coming feet. And by the gleaming firelight I see a fig-Bend down and kiss my neighbour-the shadow on the wall. My garden gratings, fair and high, Shut up its costly spoils, And through its ordered paths all day The patient gardener toils

With a hardy buttercup, Where children's dimpled fingers Pull dandelions up;

My neighbour's is a grass plot,

Where on a baby's silken head all day the sunbeams fall. Till sunset shadows linger upon the cot. tage wall.

My petted lapdog, warm and safe, Nestles upon my knee; My birds have shut their diamond eyes

That love to look at me; Lonely I watch my neighbour, And watching, can but weep, To see her rock her darlings

Upon her breast to sleep. Alas, my dog is gentle, my doves come at my call, But there's no childish shadow upon my parlour wall.

My beauty is the talk of fools, And by the gas lights' glare, In glittering dress and gleaming gems I know that I am fair, But there is something fairer, Whose charms in loving lies,

And there is something dearer-The light of happy eyes. So I return triumphant, queen of the bril-

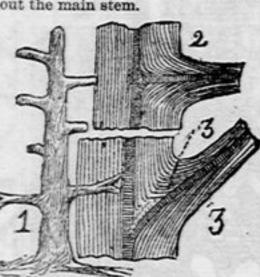

To envy the sweet shadow of the house-My earthly lot is great and high,

And hers is humble, low, Yet I would give my heritage Her deeper joys to know. For husbands that are lovers

Are rare in all the lands And hearts grow fit for heaven Moulded by childish hands.

A cherub troop will usher the shadow on

Pruning Trees. Farmer, adds an interesting chapter, illustrated with a plain diagram, to the vast lay 170 per annum. Polish, 9 to the pound, lay 170 per annum. Bantam, 16 to the most diverting way. I half believe he thought this important subject. The correspond- pound, lay 60 per annum. Turkeys' eggs, me some large species of bird-a gigantic ent alluded to believes that one-half of the trees lost south of parallel 40 degs. num. Ducks' eggs vary greatly with difnorth is caused by improper training or ferent species, but from 5 to 6 to the through this little window, standing on my mine, he will be fortunate!—H. D. Mason in heading of the young tree the first two pound, and from 14 to 28 per annum, ac-years of its growth, both in the nursery cording to age, and keeping. Geese, 4 to above the floor than common. The attic it not conducive to the proper heading of the | fowls, 11 to the pound, lay 60 per annum. for the growth of the side branches, and | than smaller ones. and then to cap the climax the planter, when setting out his trees in the orchard, not seriously object to the very usual mode of training two limbs from opposite wide ladder should be run through slots in the narrow one. The slots are a little radiate from the trunk or stem like the of the outside one, and the notches in the tacks of the round headed borer. Figs. 1 apart enough to shut it up to the desired and 2 illustrate the proper training of the angle for a special ladder limbs in a horizontal position from the trunk. A limb growing this way will not of fruit. The reverse of this is shown in the acute fork in Fig. 3. The junction of a New England farmer who has tried it the limb to the trunk on the upper side is From 150 pounds of steamed ground bones imperiect, the swaying of the limb by the be profitable for a planter to procure his grafts, plant in rows four feet apart and two to three feet in the row. With this distance apart, by good culture and proper training, he can raise a tree worth a score How to Handle Wasps with Safety. In reply to a query in Science, "Is it true that while one holds his breath it is impossible for him to be stung by a wasp?" a Connecticut correspondent in the same journal says: "I have picked up hundreds stances. I have frequently been stung by phenomenon, I have none to give. I have tried the experiment on hornets, honey bees and bumble bees, and a single trial with each was sufficient to prove that the

Here and There. It is reported that the big cattle ranches of the west and southwest are break-

Experiments made during the past season in exporting pears to Europe did not result favorably.

According to the department of agriculture, the average per acre of wheat used for seeding is 1.38 bushels. The last legislature of Michigan enacted a law, making the members of the state board of agriculture an independent for-

Silk production is being encouraged in Kansas. The state has, by act of legisla- every six gallons of the pickle; stir, and my sight grew dim. The silence of my mysture, established a station from which skinr off all impurities before using, and terious assailant was worse than any uproar. eggs will be distributed and reelers edu- keep the hams weighted down and covered

The peach growers of Maryland and Delaware have decided to ask the legisla-

FARM AND GARDEN.

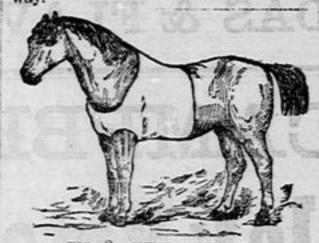

A CHEAP AND EASY PLAN OF WARMING WATER FOR STOCK.

Double Purpose Ladder - Protection Against Rabbits and Ground Mice. How to Cure Hams-Percherons a Distinct Breed-The Honey Union.

Farmers who live at remote distances from veterinary surgeons often lose valuable animals because they lack knowledge, not only of the disease and its treatment, but, in cases calling for outside applications, best methods of applying bandages. When hot poultices are in order it is very necessary that these should be adjusted so as to retain the heat and prevent an aggravation of the complaint which is likely to follow when the poultice is not closely held in place. It is with any application only wise and kind to so arrange a bandage that the beast will suffer no inconvenience from it.

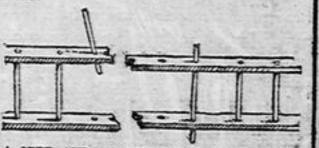

FIG. 1-THROAT BANDAGE. The first figure here presented, illustrates a throat bandage for a horse, that was described recently in Ohio Farmer. This bandage serves well for any outside application to the throat. If a poultice is used, as in the case of swollen glands, etc., it is advised to first adjust the bandage, then place the poultice in a cloth folded so as to retain it and draw between the bandage and the throat. After it has been adjusted, the halter is put in place. A liniment can be applied in the same

In the second cut is shown a properly There are ivy, Virginia creepers and trumpet adjusted bandage to the chest. This will | vines, and I would gladly have more were be found especially useful for applying there space for them to grow. liniments and like curatives in cases of lung fever, etc., or for holding in place a bachelor like myself loves. poultice on collar boils.

Instructive Figures in Egg Production. [fend me from them!] would call it slovenly. as the average weight of eggs from dif- tries to please me, and does so; but she is not ferent breeds: Light Brahmas and Part | tidy. My occasional visitors assure me that ridge Cochins' eggs, 7 to the pound; they | the rooms are not well aired, that there is a lay, according to treatment and keeping, musty odor in the parlor, that the library is from 80 to 100 per annum, oftentimes quite damp. I confess that such remarks more, if kept well. Dark Brahmas, 8 to amuse me. The dampness and mustiness have the pound, and about 70 per annum. the pound, and about 70 per annum. never been apparent to me, and my house-Black, white and buff Cochins, 8 to the keeper has never mentioned the subject; I pound; 100 is a large yield per annum. Plymouth Rocks, 8 to the pound, lay 100 in the fancy of certain prying and officious per annum. Houdans, 8 to the pound, lay women, who have not enough at home to And while I go up lonely before the Judge | 150 per annum; non-setters. La Fleche, keep them busy. 7 to the pound, lay 130 per annum; nonsetters. Black Spanish, 7 to the pound, street, is a small circular window, which lay 150 per annum. Dominiques, 9 to the swings back on a hinge. Vines half exclude pound, lay 130 per annum. Game fowls, the light. Birds come there, mostly spar-9 to the pound, lay 130 per annum. Creve- rows-a truly detestable bird-but robins and cours, 7 to the pound, lay 150 per annum. | bluebirds also visit the place at intervals. I A Kansas correspondent in Prairie Leghorns, 9 to the pound, lay from 150 to mee had a robin stand on the eaves within a farmer can hardly comprise in his stock of disturbed. farm appliances too many ladders; short ladders, long ladders and step ladders in the attic. A breath of sultry air came. fully convenient ladder, which, while by ple were moving on the street, brought out

A STEP AND STRAIGHT LADDER IN ONE.
The idea is conveyed in the cut, in which the two parts are shown ready to seriously object to the very usual

A STEP AND STRAIGHT LADDER IN ONE.
The idea is conveyed in the cut, in which the two parts are shown ready to be put together. The upper round of the bear and tear on Mr.

While the Kansas correspondent does not seriously object to the very usual of having carried the same pocketbook for fifty-six years. The wear and tear on Mr.

Wentress' pocketbook was evidently not as be put together. The upper round of the to be far better for the growth of all above | more than twice as long, and just as wide, for only one limb to start from the stem as the diameter of the round. The at any one place. Four to six or eight notches in the end of the inside ladder inches apart is better. These limbs should should rest firmly upon the second round spokes of a wheel, alternating from side end of that one on the projecting ends of the round of the other. The uprights As for height of first limbs from the are made of 2 by 3 inch spruce, and when ground, the planter should be governed spliced for a long ladder, and a block by his latitude. From 37 degs. to 47 degs. pressed into the slots beside the rounds, i north, twelve to eighteen inches is by far is nearly as firm as though made of one the best to prevent sun scald and the at- piece. It takes but a moment to pull it

Manufacturing Bone Dust.

The method of manufacturing bone duswhile hot, and gradually pour into about fifty pounds of the oil of vitriol stirring the mixture. When effervescen-Bones which have had the grease and glue removed from them are much easier

The Percheron a Distinct Breed. For a long time war has been waged reeders that their animals are a distinct reed and constitute a separate class The contrary opinion sustained was that all the draught horses of France are substantially of the same breed. To settle this matter a committee was appointed by the Illinois state board of agricultur last spring to investigate the subject and breed and is the lending draught horse breed in France. On the report of this ommittee the Illinois state board voted to put the Percherons in a distinct class. Sweet Pickle for Hams. The principal point is to get the hams just salt enough to keep and not so salt as to injure the flavor and cause the meat

A real nicely cured ham from a young hog is one of the luxuries of the table. with pickle for from four to seven weeks,

BY BOYLE O'REILLY'S UNKNOWN

PORGET ME NOT. Like the breath of the roses, sighing
To slumber against your cheek—
Like a heart pulse, softly dying—
By passion rendered weak— Like a whisper faintly heard, The recoil of a tiny word-Into the distance flying-Dearest, I hear you speak:

Forget me not-forget me not! 'Tis pleasant pain to part When love is not forgot; Forget me not-forget me not! Your words are in my heart: Forget me not-Not like an organ, pealing

Down the cathedral aisle. To the black robed figure, kneeling, With the more than earthly smile-But an echo that no man knows, That lingers, and thrills, and goes-Into the distance stealing-I hear you all the while:

Forget me not-forget me not!
"Tis pleasant pain to part When love is not forgot; Forget me not-forget me not! Your words are in my heart: Forget me not!

Like a hymn of gladness, showing The strength of the holy spell— Like the tearful joy outflowing At the chime of the vesper bell-Like a prophecy, told anew, But ever and ever true-Into the distance going-I hear your sweet farewell:

Forget me not-forget me not! Tis pleasant pain to part When love is not forgot: Forget me not-forget me not! Your words are in my heart:

-Boston Pilot.

A STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

I live in a very quaint old place. If you were told it was haunted you would readily believe it. The house is a fragment of the past-a half decayed relic of the year 1810so unlike a modern house that people gaze at it curiously as they pass along the fashionable thoroughfare upon which it fronts. A such sycamores along the Ohio or the Wafinds them grouped together. They give the his college antics. place an air of seclusion such as brooded over

Kenilworth. Close inspection is required to to picnics; but this tops them all!" determine that the house is built of stone. Vines cover it from foundation to roof, half concealing doors and windows, and massing up under the eaves in great swells of verdure. It is just such a home as a retiring old

I need scarcely describe the interior. I call it comfortable, tidy housekeepers (heaven de-A French authority gives the following My aged housekeeper is not ambitious. She therefore conclude that the trouble lies chiefly

> Up in my attic, opening toward the main I often peer slyly at the outside world and in the orchard. Nursery culture is the pound, lay 20 per annum. Guinea partly lights is seldom used. Old furniture, boxes, pictures, papers and violins take up trees in his opinion. The want of room | Large eggs have generally a thicker shell | most of the space; cobwebs and soot are omnipresent. There are dark angles and corners into which nobody but myself ever peers. I love the quiet of the place and its utter lack The present is an opportune time for of order. Sometimes I take up one of my preparing conveniences that may be made old violins and discourse a half forgotten air in the work shop for future use. A in so low a key that even the spiders are not

A recent warm evening in July found me

The accompanying cut shows a wonder- on my old trees were motionless. Many peoof their homes in the hope of finding cooler according to adjustment, the dual part of step ladder and an ordinary straight ladder.

air. One young lady I singled out walking alone—a tall, stately woman, whose face. while dimly seen at quite a distance, I could flowering cactus, and when you sat down imagine to be handsome. I grew retrospecsentimentality; indeed, I know women too sprang up a wooden devil, painted red, which well to love them; but it cannot be denied grinned insolently in your face.—Chicago that it is very natural for a man to let them grinned insolently in your face.—Chicago mboozle him. I am well aware that the word bamboozle is not elegant, but no other work will convey my idea. Women are nat-The sweet smile of a girl in her teens is hard to resist, I grant you; it overturns reason and nill overthrew Don Quixote; but if this self same sweet smile fails to captivate you is it not soon turned upon another? Faugh! I ound their fingers. Women of tact-polite women—rule the world. If one could find a An Iowa advocate really sincere woman-rather pretty, toowhat a satisfaction it would be to marry her!

with an interest beyond the ordinary—shall and easy. The cut HEATER FOR WARMING I saw a man moving among the shrubbery heater used by the cluded that I had been deceived. I watched the stately lady out of sight, laughing at my that I might have come in contact with the long enough to carry off the smoke, and wall. In order to see the street plainly I had feeding pipe, B, eight inches in diamebeen forced to protrude my shoulders through ter, and high enough to come just above to withdraw my head the touch became a lutely water tight, and can be made by was falling; I was alone, and a prisoner, in draft. my own house. A prisoner of what? or whom? I might call, but who would hear me? I knew the house was empty. My old housekeeper had gone out and might not return for hours. So long as she attended to tank, put the heater in the tub and secure

Not a sound but the echo of my own voice

The grip of the villain tightened. One hand slowly moved up toward my neck, making its murderous purpose more apparent; the other was very near my faithful bered more years than myself. Was I to be

In a frenzy partly made up of fear, partly of rage, I struggled to get my head and shoulders out of the orifice in order to be on more equal terms with my dastardly assailant; but I seemed like a babe in his grasp.

My blood chilled at the idea of being so powerless. Did the cut throat intend to hog is one of the luxuries of the table.

Make a brine just strong enough to float an egg, stir in sugar or N. O. molasses enough to give it a slight, sweetish, taste.

throttle me, or throw me from the window of my own attic? As yet he had not uttered a sound. I could hear the muffled movement of his feet on the floor; but not a word not a single through of his feet on the floor; but not a word not a single through of his feet on the floor; but not a word not a single through of his feet on the floor; but not a word not a single through of his feet on the floor; but not a word not a single through of his feet on the floor; but not a word not a single through of his feet on the floor; but not a word not a single through of his feet on the floor; but not a word not a single through of his feet on the floor; but not a word not a single through the single thr enough to give it a slight sweetish taste, of his feet on the floor; but not a word, not a Why did he not speak? "Help! Help!" I screamed, my strength sence or my strength shall never cease to astonish me. I succeeded in getting my head and shoulders out of the aperture, broke loose from the villain's grasp and sent him sprawling on the floor. I rolled over and over him in my frenzy. Every man has more or less of the savage in him, and for the time being every savage instinct in my nature was uppermost. It was a fight for life. The attic had grown very dark, and the floor was so strewn with boxes and bundles that it was impossible to avoid them. We fell over them repeatedly in our struggles.

Precious though the old unframed paintings were, I trod them underfoot; much as I prized my violins, I hurled them at the villain with all my strength. I began to have some advantage over him; he did not know the attic so well as I. He stumbled against the angles, tripped over the cases that I knew the location of, bumped against the sloping ceiling. My courage began to risa.

"Begone, or I shall shoot!" I cried.
For the first time there came a sound from the villain. He chuckled! Well he knew I had no weapon, and well for him I had not! "You are at my mercy; surrender!" I yelled, in a voice loud and shrill enough to rouse the neighborhood. Again the dastard chuckled! What deviltry was he plotting!
"Will you surrender!" I demanded.
"Well, hardly!"

The voice startled me. These were his first words. I had not expected a reply, and the words had a strange and uncanny ring. I confess I trembled. "You are my prisoner," I said, in a lower key and with less confidence.

The effrontery of the villain astounded and exasperated me. I caught up the first thing I could reach and hurled it at him. It crashed loudly against the wall. Shortly after there came a scratching sound, and a light flickered in the darkness. He had coolly struck a match!

I looked at him in amazement. One glance was enough. As I have said, every man has more or less of the savage in him, and my savage again assumed the mastery. I have been angry many times in my life; but never quite so angry as then.

Whose features did the light make apparent to me? A dark faced, small eyed, short haired villain !- a low browed cut throat? mansion of gray sandstone, it stands in the Not at all! It was the serene and smiling midst of extensive grounds, shaded by noble | countenance of my nephew, Mr. Percy F. oaks, elms, pines and sycamores. Such elms | Jenking, the only one of my kin I had ever soot on his face-the marks of my fingers, grave at Otsego lake, such oaks near Niagara doubtless—could not hide his identity, or his or in the blue grass regions of Kentucky, pleasant smile. Dropping in to see me, on a vacation from college, he had seen fit to bash; but there are few places where one lessen my life at least ten years by one of "Forgive me, uncle," he cried, "I've been For answer I threw an old violoncello at his head. He dodged, the match went out, and I hoped the scapegrace would not be able to find the door. But he did. What would I have given for a stout rattan and a chance to lay it on his rascally carcass! He stumbled down stairs, and I followed at the top of my speed. I fervently hoped that he would fall or miss his way, that I might catch him; but he disappointed me. The last thing I heard him utter was one of his villainous chuckles as he swept down the hallway. I might have passed him, but why? where? He was moving like a whirlwind, and the savage had good reason to.

About 11 o'clock that night, while my aged and faithful housekeeper was applying arnica to my bruises and listening to my narrative of the outrage, there came a banging on the knocker of my front door. When the old lady answered the summons, who stood there but the little villain, Percy F. Jenking! "Can't I play a little for you on the vio-

I looked at him with a scowl. He took up one of my violins, the oldest and the best in my motley collection. How delicately he handled the bow! No doubt he will make a player. Curiously the first thing he played was the "Suwanee River"-the typical American air that addresses the best that is in us-and played it feelingly. The rascal knew the way to my heart. Before he was half through I forgave him. After all, no great harm came of the escapade, and why should I bear him a grudge? He is young and has many a struggle for life ahead of him. If they all terminate as happily as

Pittsburg Bulletin. A Sewing Machine Man's Whims. The country place of W. E. Baker, the sawing machine magnete, who died recently. was at Wellesley, Mass. The outside walls of the stables were decorated with a series of enormous paintings representing scenes from the Nibelungenlied. Everywhere upon the grounds the visitor encountered some elaborately planned piece of extravagance. By the lake a lofty monument in the shape of a champagne bottle, constructed of thousands of empty bottles; in another place a towering pile of rusty smokestacks from dismantled locomotive engines; here a maze, there a subterranean grotto lighted with colored glass; here, in the pathway, a concealed platform on flowering cactus, and when you sat down upon the stool to inspect the cactus the plant

F. M. Ventress, of Fayetteville, Ga., boasts of having carried the same pocketbook for Warming Water for Stock. The practice of warming water for for warming effectively, at the minimum cost of con-waist. I was held as in a vise!

A cover must be made to fit over pipe B, but supplied with a small hole, for slight Next take a kerosene or other strong cask of equal size, and saw off one end, making a tub ten inches deep, inside my wants and got my meals regularly, I sel- the latter by a movable cross piece, which dom inquired where she went or how long she stayed.

"Who are you?" I gasped.

must press firmly on the tub's edge and be held in place by projections on the inner side of the tank. Now fill the tank, tub and all, full of water, the heater be ing totally submerged, which must always be kept so while there is a fire in it. Put some live coals in the heater, drop in some kindling, and then some short, hard bits of wood or soft coal; after the fire gets well started put the cover on pipe, B, and the fire will burn slowly, but will heat very rapidly, for the reason that not a particle of heat is radiated except through Agricultural News. W. A. Wadsworth, of Livingston, has been elected president of the New York state board of agriculture; corresponding secretary, J. S. Woodward, of Niagara.

A scheme is on foot in Manitoba to import Icelanders together with their live

The export trade in American apples during the past shipping season fell short of that of last year. A postal card directed to "Experimental Delaware have decided to ask the legislatures of those states to enact laws compelling growers to destroy all trees and large hams should be pickled separately, otherwise the small ones will be too affected by the yellows on the first appearance of that dreaded disease.

If exposed to a freezing temperature, more time will be required; and small own; he was about to throw me bodily from the window.

Frenzy nerved me with a strength not my salt. Smoke with hickory wood or cobs.

Smoke with hickory wood or cobs. Station, New Haven, Conn.," requesting the bulletins of that institution, and giv-

Which we will Sell Cheap.

All Kinds of

Winter Goods CHEAP FOR CASH,

One Price Only.

AT THE

RUBBERS

AND THEY WILL WEAR TWICE AS LONG.

Lindsay Cheap Boot & Shoe House. R. NEILL,

The One Price and Cheap Boot and Shoe Man.

Lindsay and Peterboro

SPRATT & KILLEN

WHOLESALE & RETAIL

DEALERS IN

PURE TEAS and COFFEES

GRAND

For the Next 30 Days

We will offer our entire Stock of Woollen Goods at Cost.

As we must get rid of them to make room for our SPRING GOODS

Which are now Arriving.

A 1 Tweeds Sold at Cost,

And made by W. A. TURNER, a first-class Cutter, so that any one requiring a Good Suit, Overcoat, or separate garment cannot do better than give us a call.

McCRIMMON BROS

LINDSAY

Woollen Run the Year Round.

FULL CLOTH, TWEEDS, FLANNELS,

Yarn, &c., for sale. Custom Weaving, Roll Carding and Fulling.

CASH FOR WOOL The best Place in the County to send your Wool.

J. W. WALLACE.

WHO WANTS

DALY HOUSE BLOCK.

Axes and Saws,

Or Anything in the

HARDWARE LINE,

W. FOLEY. FARMERS, ATTENTION.

200 Buggies to Repaint.

GENTLEMEN,-I have just completed one of the most Complete Show Rooms and Paint Shops in Canada, and I have secured the services of Mr. Chestnutt, late of Studebakers, Indiana, an A 1 Painter, at a very high salary. I want the Farmers to appreciate my efforts to have firstclass Painting done in Lindsay.

Bring on your Buggies and Carriages. I want to Paint 200 this summer. I have ample room and now is the time to do the work right. It pays to paint your Rigs. Its money well invested. Load them in your Sleighs and run them in—you can take them home in the Spring glittering. My Painter has an experience of thirty years, and has had charge of some of the best shops in the United States and Canada. I am paying him very high wages, and I want to keep him at work. Come in and see my CUTTERS and SLEIGHS, and my Stock of Material for Spring Use. I do the best work in this part of Canada. Show Rooms and Shop on the road to the Court House.

R. KYLIE.

Lindsay, Jan. 1888.

THE WATCHMAN is the place for Plain and Fancy Job Work

Everything New. Satisfaction Guaranteed in Prices and Work.