CANNOT UPHOLD THE BRIDGE.

The now famous Shannon-Connolly petition for a bridge over the river at Ridiout-st. was dangling from the secretary's desk. While trying to gather it up that officer explained that it was decorated with the signatures of 276 citizens. Mr. Graham adjusted his gold-rimmed binoculars and bent a rigid scrutiny upon the document. In a moment he had detected the president's name, all but heading the ist, and straightway requested an explanation from the chair. This Mr. Flavelle was not slow to give, in his direct and lucid style, saying: I signed the petition last year as a private citizen. It would be of some advantage to our mill and I take it every citizen has a right to consider his SUITS TO ORDER .... own interests while he acts only in a private capacity. Of course, taking high ground, it may be said that every citizen should place his advantage second to the TROUSERS TO ORDER .... general good, but we do not always do it. At any rate I have told you why I signed that petition. To-night, speaking as a member of this organization, which is supposed to plan for the public good, I certainly do not advocate the building of the bridge, nor would I favor asking the government to do it.

Robt. Kennedy-The bridge would benefit some people in the east ward and some that come in from Emily, but I do not think the number is very great. At any rate the need is scarcely great enough to justify us in asking the government to build the third swing bridge in this town. Mr. Flavelle-You may say the fourth.

A local paper certainly ought to be authority on town affairs but when it says that a proposal to reduce the magistrate's salary was coldly received by iast year's council it certainly is not. Any statements tending to leave the impression that the movement for reduction has orginated since the appointment of Mr. Mr. Steers is thoroughly false and a liber on the town and its representatives at the council board.
