

The Free List.

The Government has issued a proclamation, changing the order-in-council of April 7th placing on the free list certain articles, when imported from the United States.

Green fruits, viz: Bananas, olives, pineapples, plantains, tamarinds, apples, blackberries, gooseberries, raspberries, strawberries, cherries, cranberries, peaches, plums, quinces, apricots, hickfruit, mangoes and melons.

Seeds, viz: Anise, aniseed, canary, caraway, coriander (erude), cardamon (erude), chine, cinnamon (erude), fenugreek (erude), fennel (erude), mustard (brown and white), sugar beet, seeds of fruit trees, sesame, clover seed, thimothy, seed.

Plants, trees and shrubs, viz: Apple, peach, pear, plum, cherry, quince and all other fruit trees; gooseberry, raspberry, blackberry, currant and rose bushes grape vines; ash, larch and ornamental trees, shrubs and plants.

The death is announced at Cannes of Nobel, the inventor of dynamite.

The death sentence of Thomas Newton, the Winnipeg murderer, has been commuted to life imprisonment.

It is alleged that a lead mine has been discovered on the mountain about eight miles south of Hamilton.

The Queen has invited the King and Queen of Italy to visit Windsor Castle in June and they accepted the invitation.

Mr. W. O'Brien, who was on his way to address a proclaimed meeting at New Ross, was arrested in Dublin on Sunday morning and lodged in Ballynaole gaol.

The Governor-General acting on the advice of the Minister of Justice, has commuted the death sentence of murderer Newton, who shot and killed a painter named Thomas Jago at Winnipeg last fall.

Newton will spend the remainder of his days in the Stony Mountain Penitentiary. The jury in the case recommended mercy.

The redistribution bill prepared for Manitoba by the Greenway Government, provide for 38 members, three more than the number of constituencies at present.

Winnipeg is given three representatives, a new constituency is formed in the Mennonite district, and four additional members are given to the West, whilst two seats are reduced in the older portion of the province.

The Revenue says:—The Trent Valley Canal Commissioners will prepare their work at this session and will probably hear evidence from forwarders and others regarding the canal.

Weller, Chairman of the commission will of course be present, and Mr. John Carnegie, Secretary of the Trent Navigation Association, will attend to watch the interests of the canal.

Mr. Carnegie goes to Montreal to-night.

The Empire says:—There is every indication that the immigration into Canada this year will be exceptionally large.

Already the new-comers are flocking in at this early period in large numbers. And what is still more satisfactory they seem to be excellent material for building up our country.

One morning last week there were 275 new arrivals at the immigration ground in Toronto; by night not twenty remained, all having scattered to various points in Ontario.

None of our Northern or the lot required a meal or assistance of any kind, being apparently well provided for in all respects.

Another feature of the immigration movement upon which we may congratulate ourselves is that many Canadians are returning to Canada after finding by experience that there is no place like home.

The Mail says:—The mighty and restless power of the Falls of Niagara is no longer to go to waste but is to be utilized for the promotion of man's industrial enterprises.

In 1886 a company was incorporated in the State of New York to consummate this end, and it is now stated that enough money has been subscribed to justify the necessary work of construction being commenced in July.

The scheme, gigantic in its nature, is to utilize the force of Niagara River by constructing a tunnel from the water level below the falls, about 200 feet under the high bank of the river and extending it parallel with the shore of the river for nearly three miles at a depth of 100 feet below the surface of the earth at a distance of 400 feet from the navigable water of the river, with which it will be connected by means of conduits or lateral tunnels.

The conduits are to lead to wells sunk to the tunnel, and in these wells will be placed turbine wheels which will be operated by the weight of water in the wells.

The estimated capacity of the tunnel will give 119,000 horse power which it is said, is greater than all the other water of the United States combined.

The cost of construction is put down at $3,000,000 and enough patronage has been promised to pay a dividend of that amount.

Both Cleveland and Buffalo propose to use the power in lighting their streets by electricity. All that is wanted now is to carry the scheme into effect.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK'S PROCEEDINGS IN THE HOUSE.

The Weekly Surrender—Full Text of the Basis of Settlement—Parliament to be Prorogued About May 15.

OTTAWA, Tuesday, April 18.—For over five hours today, Mr. Charles Tupper addressed the House in presenting for second reading a bill to give effect to the "Treaty of Washington," which according to the bill may be called "The Treaty of Washington of 1887."

He ably and exhaustively discussed the subject, and clearly expounded the historical and technical grounds. Much time was devoted to discussing the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

He repeated the allegation that in 1854 a commercial mistake had been made, and that since that time, Canada had held her own in the fisheries, and that the new treaty if it is adopted, Sir Charles described the various provisions of the bill, and in particular, which time, he said, the question of the fisheries had nearly always been one of irritation.

FEARS FOR THE EMPEROR.

ANOTHER CRISIS IN KAISER-FREDERICK'S DREAD DISEASE.

It is Reported That Inflammation of the Lungs Has Supervened—Dr. Mackenzie Says Panacea—It is Thought the King is Near.

BERLIN, April 18.—This afternoon this bulletin, signed by Dr. Mackenzie, who has been attending the Emperor since the outbreak of his illness, was issued.

CHARLOTTE, 18th April.—The Emperor did not pass a good night, breathing having resumed, accompanied by high fever and shortness of breath.

The doctors in attendance upon Emperor Frederick held a consultation today, and decided that the bronchitis was limited and that no pneumonia was present.

Dr. Mackenzie fears pneumonia will be the consequence of the Emperor's continued high temperature, which the attack of bronchitis alone does not explain.

Other reports have been disseminated to the effect that the Emperor's illness is of a more serious nature than was at first reported.

It is reported that inflammation of the lungs had set in.

At midnight all the members of the Imperial family were summoned to the Emperor's bedside. The worst was feared.

Prince Bismarck visited Emperor Frederick this morning. Crown Prince William and the Duke of Baden subsequently paid a visit to the Emperor.

The Dowager Empress Augusta and the Grand Duchess of Baden called upon the Emperor at Charlottenburg last evening.

Dr. Schweninger, Emperor Prince Bismarck, who is suffering from overwork and nervousness, will leave for Berlin to-day.

Prince Bismarck, accompanied by the Minister of Justice, had another interview with the Emperor to-day.

The Emperor's illness is of a more serious nature than was at first reported.

It is reported that inflammation of the lungs had set in.

At midnight all the members of the Imperial family were summoned to the Emperor's bedside. The worst was feared.

Prince Bismarck visited Emperor Frederick this morning. Crown Prince William and the Duke of Baden subsequently paid a visit to the Emperor.

The Dowager Empress Augusta and the Grand Duchess of Baden called upon the Emperor at Charlottenburg last evening.

Dr. Schweninger, Emperor Prince Bismarck, who is suffering from overwork and nervousness, will leave for Berlin to-day.

Prince Bismarck, accompanied by the Minister of Justice, had another interview with the Emperor to-day.

The Emperor's illness is of a more serious nature than was at first reported.

It is reported that inflammation of the lungs had set in.

At midnight all the members of the Imperial family were summoned to the Emperor's bedside. The worst was feared.

Prince Bismarck visited Emperor Frederick this morning. Crown Prince William and the Duke of Baden subsequently paid a visit to the Emperor.

The Dowager Empress Augusta and the Grand Duchess of Baden called upon the Emperor at Charlottenburg last evening.

Dr. Schweninger, Emperor Prince Bismarck, who is suffering from overwork and nervousness, will leave for Berlin to-day.

Prince Bismarck, accompanied by the Minister of Justice, had another interview with the Emperor to-day.

The Emperor's illness is of a more serious nature than was at first reported.

It is reported that inflammation of the lungs had set in.

At midnight all the members of the Imperial family were summoned to the Emperor's bedside. The worst was feared.

Prince Bismarck visited Emperor Frederick this morning. Crown Prince William and the Duke of Baden subsequently paid a visit to the Emperor.

The Dowager Empress Augusta and the Grand Duchess of Baden called upon the Emperor at Charlottenburg last evening.

Dr. Schweninger, Emperor Prince Bismarck, who is suffering from overwork and nervousness, will leave for Berlin to-day.

Prince Bismarck, accompanied by the Minister of Justice, had another interview with the Emperor to-day.

The Emperor's illness is of a more serious nature than was at first reported.

It is reported that inflammation of the lungs had set in.

At midnight all the members of the Imperial family were summoned to the Emperor's bedside. The worst was feared.

Prince Bismarck visited Emperor Frederick this morning. Crown Prince William and the Duke of Baden subsequently paid a visit to the Emperor.

The Dowager Empress Augusta and the Grand Duchess of Baden called upon the Emperor at Charlottenburg last evening.

Dr. Schweninger, Emperor Prince Bismarck, who is suffering from overwork and nervousness, will leave for Berlin to-day.

Prince Bismarck, accompanied by the Minister of Justice, had another interview with the Emperor to-day.

The Emperor's illness is of a more serious nature than was at first reported.

It is reported that inflammation of the lungs had set in.

At midnight all the members of the Imperial family were summoned to the Emperor's bedside. The worst was feared.

Prince Bismarck visited Emperor Frederick this morning. Crown Prince William and the Duke of Baden subsequently paid a visit to the Emperor.

The Dowager Empress Augusta and the Grand Duchess of Baden called upon the Emperor at Charlottenburg last evening.

Dr. Schweninger, Emperor Prince Bismarck, who is suffering from overwork and nervousness, will leave for Berlin to-day.

Prince Bismarck, accompanied by the Minister of Justice, had another interview with the Emperor to-day.

The Emperor's illness is of a more serious nature than was at first reported.

It is reported that inflammation of the lungs had set in.

At midnight all the members of the Imperial family were summoned to the Emperor's bedside. The worst was feared.

Prince Bismarck visited Emperor Frederick this morning. Crown Prince William and the Duke of Baden subsequently paid a visit to the Emperor.

The Dowager Empress Augusta and the Grand Duchess of Baden called upon the Emperor at Charlottenburg last evening.

Dr. Schweninger, Emperor Prince Bismarck, who is suffering from overwork and nervousness, will leave for Berlin to-day.

Prince Bismarck, accompanied by the Minister of Justice, had another interview with the Emperor to-day.

The Emperor's illness is of a more serious nature than was at first reported.

It is reported that inflammation of the lungs had set in.

At midnight all the members of the Imperial family were summoned to the Emperor's bedside. The worst was feared.

Prince Bismarck visited Emperor Frederick this morning. Crown Prince William and the Duke of Baden subsequently paid a visit to the Emperor.

The Dowager Empress Augusta and the Grand Duchess of Baden called upon the Emperor at Charlottenburg last evening.

Dr. Schweninger, Emperor Prince Bismarck, who is suffering from overwork and nervousness, will leave for Berlin to-day.

Prince Bismarck, accompanied by the Minister of Justice, had another interview with the Emperor to-day.

DOMINION NEWS.

News from the Torontos of Their Games in England.

The Toronto Ball Team Again Seated by the English.

NEWSPAPERS FROM THE TORONTOS OF THEIR GAMES IN ENGLAND.