The Tipping Evil Is Worse Here Than It Is In Europe.

Rarely in hotels, at home or abroad, does one get much attention for more than a day or two without feeling or letting it be known that fees may be expected finally for proper service. This is the sad result of lavish giving in days gone by on the part of Americans, who did not know first what to offer and desired that the servants should not think them mean. The evil probably never will be reformed. All that the traveler can do now is to insist on excellent attention and then give what seems proper, utterly regardless of the recipient's opinion. If one really cares for what is thought, peace of mind on a journey or in the hotel is not for him. The poorest service in hotels is given by the keeper may often be sent for to note neglect in cleanliness. This may require a fee, too (about 5 francs), but the service thereafter is likely to be sullen, so that finally, wher the situation is not to be borne without loss of temper, one wisely concludes that the hotel is not of his kind, and he goes elsewhere. It is worth while to complain once to the manager if matters are wrong. but if that effects no reform one had better move on, because it will be evident that Thorah, claiming $5000 damages. The State's Duty to the Prisoner.

The average age of the convicts of the United States is not far from 26 years. Therefore, the men constituting this body are undeveloped men, so far as age is conit is sometimes difficult to pass along the cerned, and, as already stated, they are sidewalk at the Points for the crowds of undeveloped in their moral and intellectuyouths and men that often stand there al faculties-in fact, they are undeveloped on Saturday mights and Sundays. A careful classification of the convicts of the country shows that six-eighths are short term prisoners, one-eighth incorrigibles and one-eighth amenable to reformatory efforts. These proportions are fairly correct. They may be a little too large or a little too small, but practically they may be admitted. It cannot make very much difference what system is employed so There is not much to be gained, wheth-

Parsee Burial Customs. A Bombay correspondent of the New York Evening Post, writing of the burial customs of the Parsees, says: "The approach of that transition we call death is a signal for the relatives to leave the presence of the dying one, the priest alone re maining to whisper Zend-Avesta precepts into his ear. He, in turn, passes out of the room and admits a dog, who is trained to gaze steadily into the face of the dying one., A dog is accounted the only living creature that can terrorize the evil spirits, so the 'sas-did,' or 'dog stare,' is the last sight the Parsee has on earth.
