LITTLE BRITAIN

CHANGED HIS MIND. - Mr. Sparks, who was said in a former issue to have bough: a farm from Mr. John Glenny at Valentia and given in part payment a village house and lot, decided after moving part of his goods that farming was not his calling and settled back in his own home. PERSONAL .- Miss Libbie Smith returned last Wednesday from a week's visi among friends in Cannington and Wood-

CRURCH NOIES - Quarterly meeting is announced in the Methodist church for next Sabbath evening. Sermon at 10 am. to be followed by the usual love feast and sacrement of the Lord's supper Announcement is also made for a social at Pleasant Point on the evening of May 6th with a good program and plenty of editles, as they always have.

ORDER Now .- No time like the present to order your new spring suit. Den't wait till the last moment and find a dozen orders shead, and then blame the tailor. Our tweeds and pantings are up-to-date, and we can please you in fit and trimmings if any tailor can. All we ask is ar opportunity. J. J. RICH, merchaut tailor, Little Britain.

He is a gormandizing glutton and is equal to the cow of Killa Hill in his eating propensities. He passed the winter in a pea stack owned by one Joe. Reed, who by the way was one of the strongest men and best scienced in that locality. Here he lived on pea-straw, peas and snow, eating this fodder in unknown quantities till no hing was left him, so he started from that premises six weeks ago, going off without scoring, having nothing on him to speak of save a few bristles along his spine and a dog attached to each ear by way of a balincing pole. Parting with his escortes while jumping through the gate, he commenced an attack on the roadway, tearing it up about the same as an improved road machine.
