Sad Drowning Accident. We learn that on Saturday last two young men were drowned in Sengog Lake named Carnegie and Smith, of Port Perry. From what we can gather, it appears they came from Port Perry on a steamer for wood, and while there they thought they would cross over to Caesarea in a canoe, where they remained some time, and on returning by some means were upset. The steamerboat going to look for them found their canoe bottom up in the lake. The Alice Ethel was employed in looking for the bodies on Sunday last, but without success.

It seems that the shavings and sawdust piled for fuel in the building caught fire from the furnace, but the prompt action of the hands succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before any damage was done.
