THURSDAY, JUNE 3rd, 1897.

Local and General.

—Kingston, Ont., was shaken by an earthquake last week. The rumbling lasted ten seconds. Many residents were awakened by the trembling of their houses. Even the mammoth penitentiary building felt the shock.

The Queen's jubilee, June 22nd, will be celebrated by the citizens of Reboro in a novel but serious way. It is proposed to build new sidewalks throughout the village, the Ops council agreeing to assist in providing the material.

Extensive improvements are being made in the Matchett residence at the head of Cambridge-st. recently purchased by Mr. Wm. Flavel. Mr. John Thorburn is the carpenter in charge. Mr. Matchett will build a modern dwelling on the lot just to the east of his former residence.

—Executors, administrators, guardians, trustees and others, who have the right to name the newspaper in which shall appear notices and publications of all kinds are required under the law to be published and we earnestly and respectfully ask our friends to remember us in matters of this kind.

—Professional burglars entered Haint's private bank at Brucebridge on Tuesday evening and made away with about $1,000 in cash and over $3,000 in waterworks bonds. The loss is a serious one. The "burglar-proof" safe inside the vault was completely wrecked, but strange to say nobody heard any noise.

—Messrs. M. M. Boyd & Co. state that the new Esturion will replace the Beaulieu on June 7th. It is expected that this new boat will land at the upper wharf this evening, which will prove a great convenience to cottage owners at the Point and townspeople generally. Should the boat prove as speedy as anticipated regular calls will be made at McDonnell's wharf at Sturgeon Point.

If you carry insurance on household goods, on machinery, or stocks of goods, on shop tools, or anything else, make a careful inventory of every article. If you do not have a memorandum of everything, together with its value, you may, in case of fire to prove your loss and get the insurance justly due you. The full amount of the insurance you carry is not always paid by the companies. They will pay you just what you can prove you lost.

—Mr. J. H. R. Molson, founder of Molson's bank, and one of Montreal's best known and wealthiest citizens, died Friday. He was 82 years of age, his contributions to the city alone amounting to over $25,000. Acting upon instructions contained in his will, his body will be taken to Boston and cremated and the ashes deposited in the family mausoleum at Mount Royal cemetery, Montreal.

—Tuesday morning as the fleet little steamer Greyhound was nearing the wharf on the up trip a large maskinonge was observed by some men on the Cranella floating on the water near the north bank of the river. The punt was quickly manned and shoved off, and in a few minutes the prize was on deck. A deep gash was found on its back where struck by the blade of the Greyhound's propeller, but otherwise the fish was unharmed. It weighed over twelve pounds and furnished a tooth some first course to the crew's bill of fare for dinner.

By the partial breaking or splitting of one of the immense belts at the north power house of the Electric Light Co. at an early hour Friday morning considerable damage was done to the floor, etc., and a house created that resembled to those living near by the rumbling of an earthquake. As the engine runs at an average speed of about 1,400 revolutions per minute the force of the flying belt can be readily understood. The engine was close to the belt at the time of the mishap and it was some time before he could get the big wheel stopped, having to go out around the building in order to reach the engine.

—Mrs. Geo. Greer of Mill-st. is the happy possessor of a dwarf ornamental orange tree, which is filled with both fruit and flowers at the present time. The seedling was secured from a New York nursery firm some four years ago, and has borne a couple of crops of fruit. The tree is less than two feet in height, fine and healthy in appearance, and has on it over twenty oranges of various sizes, besides several dozen buds and flowers. The tree bloom is now on, and it is about at its prettiest. The tree with its flowers and green and ripe fruit presents an attractive appearance, and one not often to be seen in this country. The ripe fruit is sweet and nice, although small in size, and is seedless.

—When coming in to town on Friday last Mr. James Glass of Little Britain had a narrow escape from being ditched by the carelessness of a giddy-headed bicyclist, who came behind the rig and shot past without a word of warning. The animal—a spirited one—shied, and for the next few moments Mr. Glass had all the occupants of the rig been women the chances are there would have been a record. Hair-brained "scorchers" should be given before attempting to pass a team from behind, and if this caution is called on to put up in fines and damages perhaps more than they have made this year.

A woman never really knows the meaning of happiness and content until she is the mother of a healthy, happy child. The health of the child depends on the health of the mother, both before and after birth. Most of all women's weakness and particularly the weakness that most strongly influences the health of children, comes from some derangement or disease of the distinctly fine nine organs. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure all troubles of this nature. It should be taken regularly by every woman during the entire period of gestation. It gives strength to all the organs involved, lessens the pains of childbirth and increases the health of both mother and child. Send thirty-one-cent stamps to cover the cost of mailing only and receive free a copy of Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y.

The government has closed the contract with Messrs. Peterson, Tait & Co. for a line of steamships, which must be equal to the best in the world. The company undertake to provide a fleet of four steamships of not less than 10,000 tons gross, and of a speed of 21 knots per hour. They are to have a capacity for 1,500 to 2,000 tons of freight, and 500 tons of cold storage capacity, while the passenger accommodation is to be for at least 300 first, 200 second and 300 steerage. It is stipulated that the latter shall be carried for $15 per head. The winter port of these ships will be either Halifax or St. John. Two steamers are to be in service by May, 1899, the remaining two not to be put on before 1900, when the service will be weekly.

—One night recently some bold bad burglar effected an entrance into the mechanical repair factory of Mr. Wm. Webster, Williams-st., by way of the back being removed. It was a bicycle that the midnight mechanic was after, and he got one, selecting the best from among the wheel which he missed. The owner, in the morning when he came to look for it, and the mode of its departure was soon arrived at, as the two sashes removed from the window lay on the floor. The missing article was subsequently recovered, having been found by Mr. J. H. Wilson near the Francis-st. school in a somewhat wrecked condition. Four spokes were broken, besides some other damage being done. It is presumed that the thief came to grief before setting out of town with the bicycle. A few days later the tool bag was found within the side entrance to the postoffice, where it had been left by the conscience stricken

Persons who believe that there is some magic virtue in rice that gives to young married couple from future misfortune will be glad to know where the custom originated. Some say that it is imported into New York to spread everywhere. Protestants regularly practice it and it is also practiced in Canada. It is against this strange superstition that threatens to become an abuse that the Rev. Cure Anclair strongly protested at the church of St. John the Baptist at St. Hyacinthe last Sunday. He stated that persons who do not simply content themselves with the throwing of rice around in the aisle, but who throw it in the faces of married people had to go after the newly married couple in the eyes of the rice. "For the future," he said, "I throw as much rice about you as you can stand on the sidewalks and in the carriages, but give to these people who are so free with their rice I would tell them to keep it and make good soup with it—it would be a far more profitable use for it."

Recent investigations have strengthened the arguments in its favor. Although milk has so frequently been held responsible for the dissemination of diphtheria, yet curious but few exact investigations have been made on the behavior of diphtheria bacilli in milk. Hesse found that cholera bacilli undergo a deterioration in raw milk; that, in fact, when kept in these surroundings at a temperature of 37 degrees C. (98 F.), they were entirely destroyed within 22 hours. Caro & Naxanthrax bacilli in raw milk, states that these microbes flourish abundantly in milk and abate no jot of their virulence under these conditions. Professor Schottelius has repeated these experiments and has entirely confirmed them. He has, however, extended his investigations to the behavior of diphtheria bacilli in milk.

In a recent number of The Centralblatt fur Bakteriologie, Part I., a summarized account is given of these researches, and it appears that fresh milk diphtheria bacilli find an excellent and satisfactory material for growth and multiplication. In sterilized milk, however, their growth was not so abundant and was less strongly marked than in the ordinary broth used for cultivation purposes. As the milk was only sterilized for half an hour by means of an ordinary Soxhlet apparatus, this bacilli in the vitality of the diphtheria, respectively, could not have been due to the milk having become acid through heating. Hesse has shown that when milk is subjected to prolonged sterilization at a high temperature it exhibits an acid reaction. Professor Schottelius now so often repeated, with a warning, tending the consumption of milk in its raw, unsterilized condition.—Nature.

Bismarck's Boswell. Bismarck's Boswell, Herr Moritz Busch, studied theology but in 1848 went into politics as a violent democrat, came to the United States about the same time as Carl Schurz and for a church. He returned to Europe in 1853, to travel in Palestine on behalf of the Austrian Lloyds, edited the Greuzbote till 1866, and after acting in various capacities in Schleswig-Holstein and Hannover was employed by Bismarck as such writer. Among his duties as such were the writing and forwarding of articles which the chancellor wished in the interest of his policy to be published in the leading papers. He remained in Bismarck's service without any distinct functions till 1873.

After the war a number of sketches from his Journal were published in the Gartenlaube, but they were suddenly broken off by the editor of the periodical, whereupon Count Bismarck wrote the editor expressing his father's satisfaction. Busch is the most copious and minute of the prince's biographers, and for his subject, which is by no means the least qualification for such a function.

NOBLES KEEP HER POOR.

Spain Has Many Pensioners and Suffers Also From Absenteeism. With such a sun and such a soil, why should Spain be poor? Her land is rich with minerals. Her climate is all that vegetation requires to be fruitful. This is mostly true of Italy and Ireland, too, and the cause of the poverty of these three countries is the same. The land is the property of a few nobles, whose only care as landlords is to extract from it enough money to enable them to maintain their rank and live at ease at the court. The tenants know that all they put into the soil only goes to enrich the landlords, and so, taking example from them, they lead a careless life, save nothing and make no effort to increase the productivity of their land.

But it is not to these facts that the insolvency of Spain is due. The people pay enough taxes to keep the national finances in a sound condition were it not that a large proportion of the money finds its way into the pockets of parasites, creators of needless pensioners, who keep the treasury low.

There is an instance of the way the people's money is spent in pensions. It appeared in the Madrid newspapers, apropos of the marriage of the pensioner, now an old man. Many years ago, when Queen Isabella was on the throne, the Queen occupied for one hour only the office of minister of the interior. He had been elected to the cortes, and his father was a friend of the leader of the opposition, who had at that moment just been intrusted with the formation of a ministry. In this task the new premier encountered difficulties. Few deputies would consent to filling all the posts but one, the ministry of the interior. Three hours before the newly appointed minister was to wait upon the queen the young Hidalgo called on the new prime minister and presented a letter of introduction from his father, and then without hesitation the premier asked the new deputy, "Will you be minister of the interior?"

The young nobleman started in astonishment, evidently doubting the questioner's sanity. But he was reassured, and he left the house he had accepted the office. The Hidalgo had just time to drive to a tailor's and obtain a ready-made coat, and then, within an hour, he entered the cortes a cabinet minister. His appointment was immediately condemned by a vote of the cortes, and within an hour he resigned, seated in the cortes, and has never since taken any part in political affairs. But an ex-cabinet minister in Spain is entitled to a pension of 35,000 pesetas a year, and this pension the minister of interior has drawn regularly ever since.—New York Press.

A Beautiful and Impressive Custom of the Moravians. Clifford Howard contributes to The Ladies' Home Journal an interesting article upon the Moravians of Bethlehem, Pa., and their religious customs.

Upon the death of one of the congregation," he writes, "the event is announced, not by the monotonous, mournful tolling of the bell, but by the deep breathing of the organ, which is played in the trombone choir of the church by the notes of the familiar hymn, 'Dear, sweet people below they reverently die, work to listen.' 'Hark!' they whisper, 'the people are blowing. Some one has gone home.' 'Gone home!'—perhaps nothing more beautiful exemplifies the perfect, unquestioning faith of these devout people than that expressive utterance, the sincerity of which is ever demonstrated by the lack of mourning at the passing away of a beloved. So serene and heartfelt is the Moravian belief that death is but the entrance to a brighter, happier home. The trombones are also used at the touching funeral services held at the grave, and amid their sad yet inspiring strains the departed one is laid to his eternal rest. On all occasions, lend their sweet solemnity in fitting breath. From the steeple they herald the festival day of each of the choir, and in all open air services their melodious tones are ever present."

A Novel International Luncheon. For an international luncheon the name cards might be adorned with a map sketched with pen and ink, and also by a drawing of the national flower of the country represented. If one is so fortunate as to be able to use water colors, the cards should contain some question which the one at whose plate it is will read and answer, or, if unable to answer, will present to the company for general discussion. For example, under the map of Venezuela land first acquire territory here?" and on the map of France the question, "Why did Napoleon antedate the actual time of his birth?" Questions in regard to the people, flora or fauna of a country may be pounded if desired, and the clever hostess that the knowledge and talents of each of her guests may be shown to the greatest advantage. The idea can be developed still further by having foods from the various countries represented, for instance, "French peas," "Cuban sugar," "Spanish olives," and "Swiss cheese."—Ladies' Home Journal.

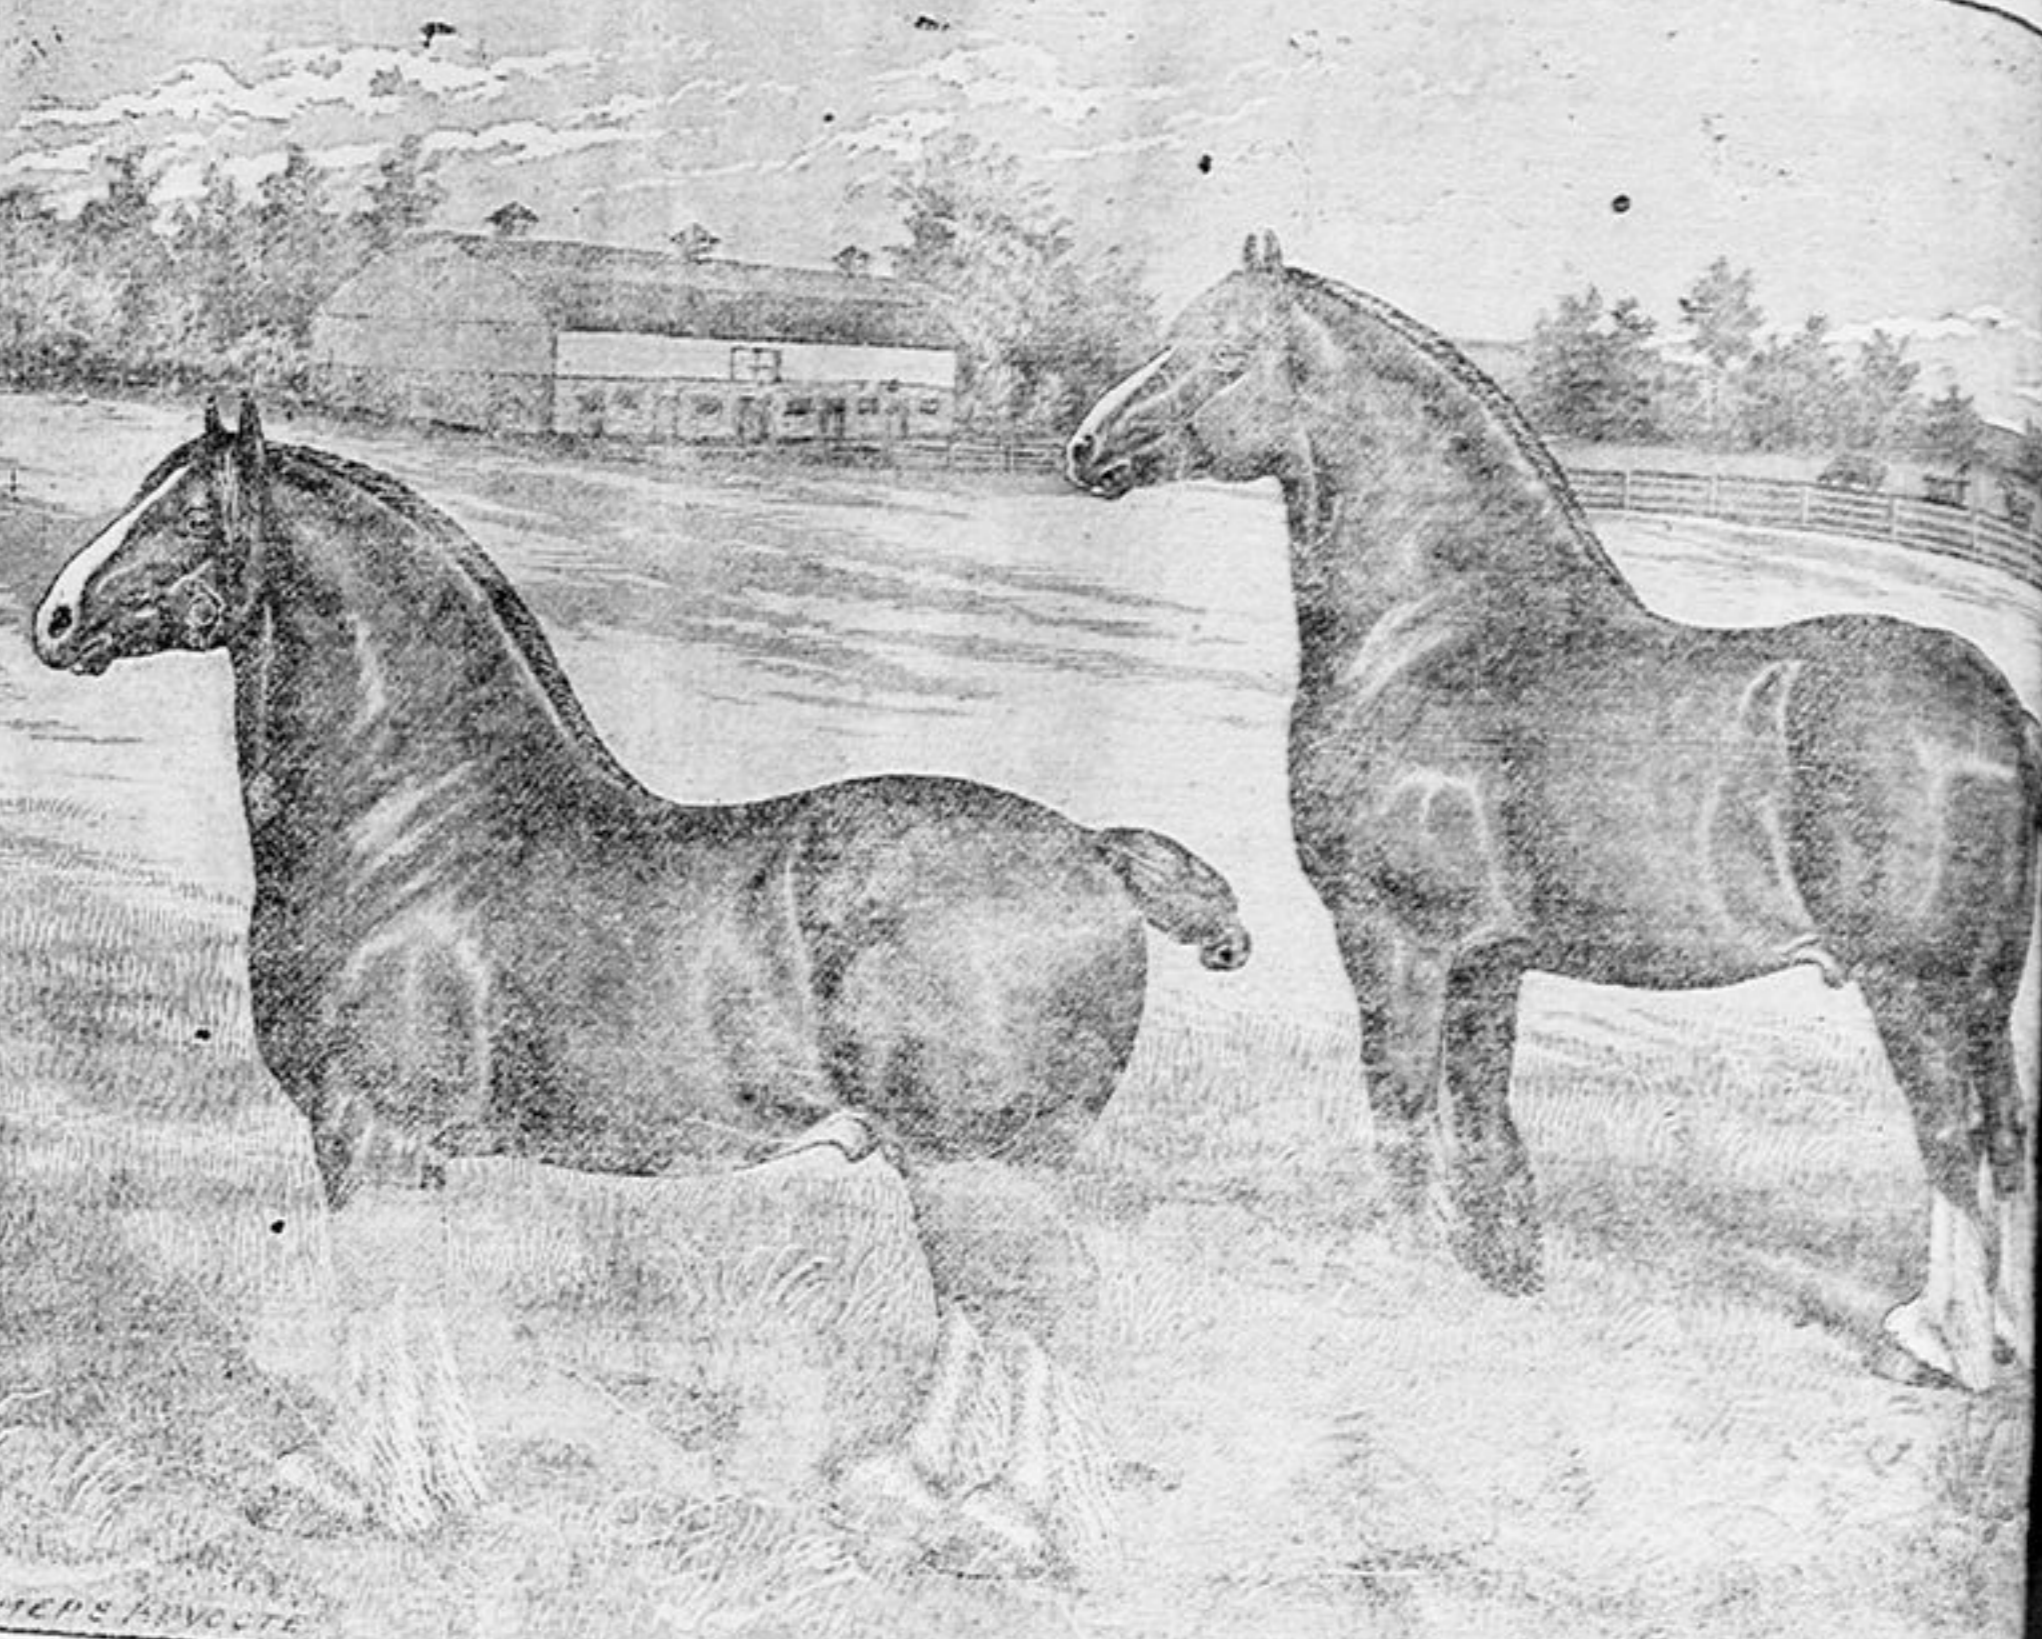

A Choice of Three Things. Australian judges make jokes that would hardly pass muster on this side of the equator. One of them recently going on a circuit arrived at a town where a clean charge sheet was presented for his acceptance, accompanied, of course, with the inevitable pair of white gloves. Having accepted the gift, he returned thanks in these terms:

"This proves that either the district possesses an unusually high standard of morality, or that there is nothing in it worth stealing, or that the police are not active enough to catch criminals."

Leaving his hearers in doubt as to which of the three alternatives he personally favored, the judge smiled sweetly at the local head of the police force and retired from the bench.—Pearson's Weekly.

Two Birds With One Stone. Maud—Charley stole a kiss from me last evening. Aunt Kate—The villain! What will you do? Maud—I was awfully angry with him at first. But when he said he stole it only that he might give it to a poor girl who never had any kisses, then I couldn't help seeing what a noble man he was. So I told him that a noble man would take another one for her.—Boston Transcript.

WHY DON'T YOU LAUGH? Why don't you laugh, young man, when instead of sitting round so sour and glum? You cannot have all play and sunshine every day. When troubles come, I say, why don't you laugh?
