NEILL THE CHEAP BOOT AND SHOE DEALER Will remove to his new premises in a few days.

TO LOAN

PRIVATE FUN

LOWEST RATE

ay off any sum on account of interest without terest yearly. All

OWN PROPER

SALE

receive tenders up to

NE, 188

following valuable part and Townships of ast Ward, composed of nd L. This is first class state of cultivation.

a Con. Ops, and the we

good title free of er

ill be rejected, but

J. DEACON.

LE BUGGI

ind the price

will compa

he province

R. KYLIE

es of Toron

xtensive |

Latest Fas

NERY,

eilings, Feat

now open

b call and

RIEN

where.

purchase money a

AND EMILY.

B. DEAN,

The Lindsay Watchman.

Trunks, Valises, Satchels, AND ALL KINDS OF TRAVELLING MATERIAL ONE PRICE SHOE HOUSE.

Volume II. Number 23.

LINDSAY, THURSDAY, JULY 4, 1889.

50 Cents per Year in Advance

ORDERED

CLOTEING

$20.00 SUIT FOR $15.00,

The result of a large purchase from a manufacturer.

OF THIS SPECIAL LINE We Have About 100 Suits sallied forth "duly drest in Sunday best" the faithful members of societies many and good. With the butchers and icemen there was in the outskirts mounting in hot haste and a generous rivalry as to whose steed was trimmest, whose coat or shirt whitest and whose straw headgear the sauciest. Thirty New Patterns.

COME and make your selections early as there is a choice in them.

DUNDAS & FLAVELLE BROS. CANADA'S NATAL DAY.

HOW ONTARIO'S CAPITAL CITY CELE-BRATED.

Magnificent Pageant of Flags and Finery-Fifty Thousand People Take Part in the TORONTO, July 2.—Everything conspired to make Dominion Day a success. Grateful showers at the time of sunrise laid the dust and relieved the water brigade of an irksome task; forth shone the sun with cheery rays, the bright blue imaged the calm and serene mood of Toronto's tens of thousands; and the sounds of cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery and all kinds of music gave tuneful voice and outward expression of thankfulness for all that is past and aspirations for the better things which sure as daylight follows night are in store for Canada's fair and happy land.

Yesterday's memorable demonstration was swotold: A loud pronouncement that Canada has cast off her tutelage and is now a fullblown nation; a proclamation trumpet-tongued that Toronto is foremost in the van in all that is great and noble, good and wise, and that she is and always will be Queen City of the West. This is why so many thousands stayed in Toronto, notwithstanding the allurements of the old Legislative Assembly of this province, tempting rendezvous on broad Ontario's pleasant shores. It was because they agree with Southey that whatever strengthens our local attachments is favorable both to individual and national character. There is a wonderful connection between topography and patriotism and much force in Shenstone's reflection that the proper means of increasing the love we bear our favored country is to reside in an-

Hence "Canada First," "Canada Our Home," "The Maple-Leaf For Ever," were prominent inscriptions yesterday and aptly voiced the national sentiment. The demonstration was a grand expression of true-hearted Canadian loyalty:

My country claims me all, Her liberty henceforth be all my thought; For her my life I'd willingly rasign And say with transport that the gain was mine,

In the serried ranks of processionists were some who had fought and more who had prayed and longed for freedom. Treading in their steps were thousands of younger people, joying in what has been already accomplished, longing to emulate the courage and bravery of our honored veterans, meanwhile chanting the praise of Canada's fair and happy land, and remembering that

Freedom's battle once begun,
Bequeathed from bleeding sire to son,
Tho' baffled oft is ever won.

No work to-day-that is, none in the ordinary acceptation of the term-was the general motto, laudably carried out by patriotic citizens. But there was work good and needful done by Toronto's lieges. Soon after daybreak workmen with an eye to the artistic gave the finishing touches to effective decorations. Bunting was profuse, British flags legion, red, white and blue conspicuous, the maple leaf everywhere. Emulation was rife, rivalry in loyalty keen, and whilst there was no disparagement of any each thought-and who shall say him nay-his own effort best. Then, for the holiday, it was a day of early breakfasts, the "truly thankful" grace for which was speedily followed by the donning of spring attire, regalia adornments, and then sallied forth "duly drest in Sunday best" the men, Celts, Germans and Canucks, white and colored, mustered at the trysting-place. Pardonably mutual admirations were predomeyes sparkled with enthusiasm's faces flushed with patriotic ardor, uprose the inspiriting martial and national strains, and e'en the isolated cynics could scarce forbear to praise.

And now that the welkin rang with patriotic airs, such as "The Red, White and Blue,"
"Rule Britannia," "Blue Bells of Scotland," The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls" and other inspiriting strains, "Forward!" was the word and prompt action the response. Amidst cheers such as only happy and contented men give the procession moved. It was better than a royal procession—there was the same enthusiasm, but the pageant was more homogeneous. Nothing was omitted and nothing could have been dispensed with. Young and old, the rich and the poor, kings of labor and workingmen's clubs, old pensioners and school children, national, philanthropic and benefit societies, et al, making a procession a mile and three quarters long, attested the heartiness of the citizens in the parade and the depth of their interest in the due celebration of Dominion Day.

The parade was indeed a noble triumph. The three miles of streets traversed were densely thronged with citizens and visitors. The bells rang, the trumpets blared, the people cheered, and all went merry as a marriage bell. The crowds were good-humored and easily handled by the army of police on the route. Indeed, there was something very impressive in the sight of the many thousands of men, women and children patiently waiting for hours the approach of and passing of the procession. Every coign of vantage was taken possession of by those anxious to view the cavalcade. Venturesome lads climbed the his father and mother for all that they have telegraph poles, crowds thronged such capital done for him, and he has a right to ask himself sites as St. Lawrence Hall, the new Bank of Commerce building, the Canada Life premises, the new Music Hall and the steps of St. Andrew's Church and those of Euclidavenue Methodist Church. A lucrative best please them and make the most of ourharvest was reaped by householders along the line of route, who let windows commanding good views of the procession. In several instances the strength and safety of the new fire escapes were tested by the throng of people packed in them. Roofs of houses were not too lofty for the hazardous ones who risked life and limb to "assist" in keeping Dominion Day.

White plurs were the outward sign and token of true Canadian hearts. The City Fathers set the example, it became contagious, Old Probs was in the conspiracy, and the result was that there was a "run" on the light white headgear on Saturday which cleared out the large importations farseeing tradesmen had made. The ovation tendered the Dominion Day committee, our bright, brave future citizens, our resplendent Fire Brigade men, the nacontingents of the perspiring body, ceased not till the goal was reached. Here, in Exhibition Park, the weary pilgrims of the nationally as well as individually. There has never yet been an age when it was not conhas never yet been an age when it was not conhas never yet been an age when it was not conhas never yet been an age when it was not conhas never yet been an age when it was not conhas never yet been an age when it was not conhas never yet been an age when it was not considered a sacred duty of the son to love and sidered a sacred duty of the son to love and sidered a sacred duty of the son to love and sidered as acred duty of the son grounds and listened to the speeches. Hon. John Beverley Robinson, who was received with a storm of applause, said : LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: I wish I was an alderman so that I would have the necessary voice to address such a large audience as this from this platform. [Laughter.] We have been warned by the committee not to take up a further length of time than ten minutes. This puts us in the position of a gentleman the House of Commons that I once knew. He had been warned several times to tease speaking, when he turned and said: "What do I care for time? I speak for posterity." Well, gentlemen, I cannot afford, even for posterity, to speak longer than ten minutes, but just let me remark to you what amazing contrasts there are between the gentlemen who occupied those old outposts some 200 years ago and those of the present day. The Province of Ontario and the Dominion of Canada are much indebted to General Simcoe for services rendered both in war and in peace. Much as we are indebted, however, to General Simcoe, we must not lose sight of the services rendered to these provinces by the United Empire Loyal

Eastern States it is customary for distinguished gentlemen to talk about the services rendered by their Puritan ancestors, but the persecutions they had to undergo were as nothing compared with the trials of the United Empire Loyalists. [Applause,]
The Dominion of Canada is also indebted to Farmers' Day at Grimsby Park and the as well as to the assembly which succeeded it Niagara Chautauqua, the rustic delights and in the union of the provinces in 1867, for serquiet resting-places of Lorne Park, Long vices in peace as well as in war. And what Branch, Victoria Parkand the thousand and one a grand country is ours! Where is there such a magnificent line of steamers or such a length of railways? In July, 1867, this Dominion of Canada was launched as it were on the arena of the world, and I know of no country that, under the circumstances, has advanced more rapidly. [Cheers.] Years ago a wish was expressed by the Queen that from the Atlantic to the Pacific there should be one continuous stream of British people, enjoying British laws and British freedom, and this wish is now fulfilled. [Loud applause.] Now, gentlemen, I think I have talked almost too long; still at the same time, when we have such a loyal subject as this to speak on, we are apt to take no note of time, and I hope you will kindly allow me to say a word or two more. It has been mentioned and discussed that it would be better for the Dominion of Canada if she had alliance with the United States, or Commercial Union, or Federation, but for my own part, gentlemen, I think we are well enough as we are. [Loud cheers.] I would sek if there is another country so speat and prosperous as this, and it this same why throw ourselves away? We would only be selling ourselves, perhaps, for "greenbacks" instead of gold. And further, gentlemen, proud as we are of this great nation, I look forward to the time when there will be one universal day with the Anglo-Saxon speaking race, both in England and America. [Cheers.]

The next speaker was Sir Daniel Wilson, President of the University of Toronto. The learned man was loudly applauded by the assembly near him. Owing to the distance from the public he was obliged to address himself principally to those assembled on and near the platform.

"We are celebrating to-day," he said, "the Natal Day of our Dominion, and I rejoice in the manifestations of honor and devotion to Young Canada. We occupy a position altogether unique in the history of civilized nations of the world. We are at once a member of the great British Empire and yet a Dominion with every facility and every freedom, and where every treasure is placed within our reach that man can desire. What good could come of loosening the bond that binds us so closely to the Motherland and to the associations connected with the victories of Blake, of Nelson, of Marlborough and Wellington, down from the days of Alfred to the reign of our Gracious Sovereign Queen Victoria! [Cheers.] This great land committed to our charge by Mother England, stretching northward and westward beyond the Rocky white sheet upon which we are to record themselves by telling what they knew.

the history of she future, points out that we O'Sullivan knows it will be easy enough to should extend the same rights and privileges that we enjoy to those who are bound under the iron rule of European despotism.

[Applause.] Let us not nourish a selfish policy. Let us all here unite in building up a great future for our Dominion, and should she in future days be destined to stand alone as an independent nation, let us trust and believe that by that time she will have parted with the Mother-land as a son parts from his father, strong in faith. And the time may yet come when our glorious Dominion will proudly staud before the world as a powerful nation, to step into the breach and aid the Motherland. Let us place ourselves under the divine protection of our fathers' God, and hope that our future privileges and enjoyments may be doubled and that the nation may rise in freedom, literature and science. [Loud cheers.]

Mr. E. E. Sheppard, the President of the Canadian Legion, was the last of the speakers. Mr. Sheppard came forward amidst considerable cheering and applause. He said :

We have heard a great deal this afternoon—
[A Voice: "Louder." Mr. Sheppard: "Wait a minute"]—of the glories of Canada, and all of which I most heartily endorse. We have heard a great deal about the past and present, and I wish to say a few words about her future, On New Year's day we all make good resolu-tions and probably break them soon after. On birthdays we promise to do great things before we are another year older. On our National Birthday I think it is eminently proper that we should think not only of our past but that we should make a few good resolutions for the future. A young man, when he comes to the age of 22-and how he came by the many beautiful and pleas-ant things which surround him. He thanks how he shall govern his future life and do the best thing possible for himself.

Now this lusty young nation, 22 years old to-day, has a right to ask who his fathers old to-day, has a right to ask who his fathers selves. Our fathers came from the old lands forest and the savage by land.

women that came with them? Loving, true sweethearts of brave and courageous men. They came to face privation, to face dangerthey came to face that most terrible of things—the unknown. Now, were the sons of such fathers and mothers—the descendants of these brave people who left a small certainty in the old land in search of a larger liberty. unrestrained by the conventionalities of life and unhampered by prejudice? They were a race which were willing to make sacrifices. Are we, their descendants, a race that are willing to make sacrifices, endeavoring to retain the great liberties which were our heritage? Every citizen should ask himself these ques-tions: Do we make sacrifices? Are we a sordid people? It is physically impossible to put matters together here in a way that will be en-tertaining or of value, but I do want to impress may it always be held by Canadians as their most inviolable duty, their sacred duty, their sacred duty, their sacred birth. [Applause and cheers.]

The Newfoundland Trouble. HALIFAX, July 1. -Rev. Dr. Hawley, Vicar Apostolic of the west coast of Newfoundland, writes that the French ships of war practically ignore the existence of the political arrangements on that coast. French war ships take complete charge of the harbors and exercise unlimited police control on the waters, notwithstanding that British war ships may be in port, and New-foundland magistrates residing on shore at the time. The French, he says, act as if the west coast of Newfoundland was in French and not British waters. The Americans were granted certain fishing rights by the treaty of 1818, but what, asks the doctor, would be thought if they sent down every spring men-of-war to take charge of our bays? He protests vigorously against the police protection of the fisheries being confided to either French or English ships, and says if Newfoundland became part of the Canadian Confederation the Dominion Government would immediately take police control of the fisheries, thus putting an end once for all to the vexed question.

Murder or Suicide.

HAMILTON, July 1 .- About 8 o'clook this morning an unknown man was found dying in his room in the hotel at Clappison's Corners. He lived long enough to say that a man had done it and then jumped out of the win-dow. In the wounded man's hand at the time, however, was a bloody knife and it is believed around Clappinson's Corners that it is a case of suicide. The man was removed to Dr. McGregor's residence. He lived but a short time. The man came to the place but a short time ago and is unknown to anyone around here. He was looked upon as being

The Divorce Court's Monopoly. CHICAGO, July 1.—Judge Collins to-day decided that divorces in the Jewish Church

IN GUARDED WHISPERS.

COONEY THE FOX TALKS WITH RE-CORDER BOLAND.

The Cronin Suspect Suddenly Appears in Court at Kansas City and Swiftly Disap pears-What Beggs Says.

CHICAGO, June 28 .- Young Carlson, whose parents own the cottage in which Dr. Cronin was murdered, declares two mer came to the cottage yesterday and threatened him with death if he should identify Martin Burke, now under arrest at Winni.

The special Grand Jury will probably finish its work to-morrow handing in a few indictments. It is probable John F. Beggs and Patrick Cooney, Burke's partner, will be in the list. Alexander Sullivan's friends say they do not fear his indictment, yet there is astrong feeling that a true blll will be found against the ex President of the Land League. So much evidence has been laid before the Grand Jury regarding the inner workings of the Clan-na-Gael that it is believed the Grand Jury has made up its mind to throw out a drag net. The iceman, P. O'Sullivan, has been "leaking" right along and it is probable by this time there is little he has not told. His attorney is a man who has been engaged in a number of murder cases where conspiracy has figured largely, and it is a noteworthy Mountains to the Pacific Ocean, like a great fact that his clients have generally saved hang him on the testimony already gathered against him, so there is no merit in his being stubborn.

Dan Coughlin will not be asked to "squeal," but enough is known of him and his connection with the murder of Cronin to justify the prophecy that if anyone is hanged he will be one of the lot. The Illinois Conspiracy law is a fearful weapon, and in this case the State will use it for all it is worth. No difficulty is apprehended in inducing Burke to confess when he comes

The men who stand a chance of being placed on trial for the murder of Cronin are Daniel Coughlin, Frank Woodruff, Martin Burke, Patrick Cooney (when caught), Beggs and possibly Alexander Sullivan. The Grand Jury to-day examined Edward Spellman, the Peoria distiller and district officer of the Clan-na-Gael. Mr. Spellman was called in to be examined about the alleged disbanding of Camp 20 since the murd der. He told the Grand Jury the camp ha not been disbanded. He said the records of the camp had not been destroyed and that any records pertaining to the camp were a the disposal of the Grand Jury.

D. J. Lyon, ex-police justice, was exam ined in regard to the bogus lawsuit tried be' fore him in which Dr. Cronin was a witness The suit was a trumped up affair, the sole object of which was to place the doctor on the witness stand so that on cross-examination his life from early boyhood could be

John F. Beggs, Senior Guardian of Camp 20 Clan-na-Gael, who was arrested Tuesday, was to-day allowed to see reporters. He denied that he has squealed and said that he had nothing to tell. He claimed his treatment by the police was brutal and that the police had not offered the slightest excuse for his detention, which he declared was illegal. Beggs attributed these trials? For liberty. And who were the his arrest to the machinations of a local politician.

> Assistant State Attorney Baker, of Illinois, has arrived in Winnipeg with the papers for the extradition of Martin Burke.

Knew the Sypmtoms.

Wife-Cyrus, I am sure young Spoonamore is becoming serious in his attentions to our Susie.

Husband-Nonsense! What makes you "He wears a new necktie every time he

"Do you think Susie cares thing for "I know she does. She has esten an enion this Spring."

PAINTS.

e, Paint

rimmon