

THE TWELFTH.

The glorious Twelfth of July, this year was enthusiastically celebrated very generally throughout the whole Province. Reports from all parts speak of the good order as well as the enthusiasm which marked the ceremonies. The speeches delivered were on the whole marked by fairness and ability, and free from much of the buncombe which in the past has too often been characteristic of Twelfth of July orations. The temper displayed by the Orangemen throughout the Province on the occasion, as evidenced by the applause which is reported in connection with the speeches delivered, indicates that the day of the political wire-pullers who have so long kept themselves in the front on the Twelfth, is gone. Hence the absence of such talent on the occasion, and the presence of so many citizens upon the platform throughout the province whose high standing, and respectability is a guarantee of the sincerity of their praises of the principles and work of the Order, and of their utterances upon the important national questions with which they dealt. Whilst the celebration of the day was unusually extensive and enthusiastic throughout the province, the Orangemen of Lindsay and surrounding district are to be congratulated upon the splendid display which marked the occasion of the Twelfth in Lindsay. In point of numbers it was the largest gathering of the kind ever witnessed in the Midland district, whilst as to the good order which prevailed and the general respectability which marked the whole proceeding, it was exceedingly creditable to the Society, as well as to the district generally. The very large proportion of young men in the ranks shew that the membership of the order is continually on the increase, and as to the men they were splendid specimens of Canadian manhood. The conduct of the men both in the line of march and during their whole stay in town was loyal to the reputation and to the principles of their Order, and the applause with which they greeted the sensible and reasonable utterances of the majority of the speakers shewed clearly that the Orangemen of Lindsay and surrounding district are loyal to the rights and liberties of good citizenship—equal rights to all, special privileges to none. The enthusiasm of the vast assemblage gave unmistakable evidence that the Orangemen of this district have fully sized up the wire-pullers and manipulators who have been endeavoring to misdirect the energies of the Order to further purely party and personal ends. Their hearty responses to the liberal utterances of this district upon the important national questions of the hour; but whilst indicating their loyalty to the principles of equal rights to all, there were no indications of their mistaking offensive utterances against any sect as an evidence of good citizenship. The demonstration throughout was a credit to the Order and to the district, and we congratulate the fraternity on the splendid celebration of July 12th, 1889.

Presentation and Address.

The students of the senior form of the Collegiate Institute before parting for the holidays, presented Mr. J. C. Harstone, headmaster of the Institute, with a magnificent copy of the complete works of Robert Burns, in four volumes containing over fifty steel engravings. The following is the address:—

Mr. J. C. Harstone M.A.

OUR DEAR PRINCIPAL.—It is with a feeling of sadness and the deepest regret that we have reached the last day of our happy term of school; that we go, many of us, out into the world a gain, out from the sheltering walls of our dear Collegiate Institute, out from the strong protecting influence you have steadily though unconsciously thrown around us and which has most assuredly left its traces for good indelibly stamped upon our characters, aiding in the building up of some, the strengthening of others. So with this regret is mingled a feeling of true pleasure that we have not been amassing mere academical knowledge alone, but that there has constantly been exerted a strong undercurrent for good, a feeling that the close of the term finds us a little nobler, a little stronger for the great battle of life, armed, let us hope, with some of that patience which in the end overcomes all things.

We have always observed that you have made the welfare of your pupils a constant study. You have been identified to a most laudable degree with those movements which tend to give recreative amusement to the pupils of the school. All athletic sports of a manly character and beneficial effect have been encouraged and recommended by you not so much for the pleasure derived therefrom as for the fact of their having profitable effect on the intellectual progress of the school. Even before we had the pleasure of treading the halls of our handsome Collegiate Institute you had suggested the raising of a fund wherewith to equip a reading room, which in your generous emulation for the interests of the school you assured us should not be surpassed by any in connection with a Collegiate Institute in this province. Nor has it proved to be otherwise. Those pupils of the school who have enjoyed the results of your tuition since you assumed the important and well-merited position of Head Master of the old High School, have noticed that several of the best equipments of the school for the mental progress and general comfort of the scholars, coincide with your views of an ideal perfection in the above mentioned lines.

Dear Mr. Harstone, we wish to express in some way our strong attachment to you, and our appreciation of those admirable qualities so characteristic of you, that scrupulous impartiality which you have always so rigidly shown in the classroom, that stubborn patience which we have all so much wondered at and admired while we wondered that unwavering courtesy, upon which we believe cannot be placed too high an estimate; finally, that mingling of dignity and simplicity which casts a charm over the whole.

This being the occasion of the close of the first school year in the history of our beautiful Collegiate Institute with which as chief promoter your name will always be indelibly associated in our minds, we deem it a peculiarly fitting opportunity to present this address to you, bearing indications of our esteem and affection, breathing tenderest wishes for your future happiness. We wish it to be accompanied by this copy of Burns' works as a slight token of regard. May it ever be associated in your mind with very pleasant memories of your sixth form of 1889.

Dear Mr. Harstone, could you look into our hearts just now and see the warm glow of affection we feel for you, you would surely be glad for our sakes that we are afforded this happy opportunity. We all take great pleasure in inscribing our name to this address. In each name we ask you to count a friend. And in the years to come should you ever be tempted to fear that the good seed, which you have unwearingly sown, has fallen in desert places then we ask you, come read this declaration of ours that we are conscious of leaving you a little nobler than when we first came under your influence, that you have in your quiet effectual way, accomplished a great and noble work which shall be multiplied and continued to be multiplied, as we give that to others what we have received from you.

We desire our kindest regards to Mrs. Harstone. And now we must say good-bye to you and to the school we have grown so fond and proud of, and in our most earnest wishes for the welfare of the school we can but trust that it may be many long years before your connection be severed from Lindsay Collegiate Institute. Your affectionate pupils.

Signed by the pupils of the Fifth and Sixth forms of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute.

A Satisfactory Explanation.
Distracted mother (at her daughter's wedding)—Oh! Oh! What shall we do? The groom hasn't come, the guests are beginning to giggle, and my daughter is in a faint.
Friend of the family—Calm yourself, madam. I saw the groom only two hours ago, entering the great dry goods emporium at the corner. He said he had forgotten to get gloves.
Distracted mother (suddenly breaking into smiles)—Oh, then it's all right. He's probably waiting for his change.

Verulam Council.

Council met on Saturday July 6th. Members all present, the Reeve in the chair. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

Mr. Fairbairn and Mr. Braden reported that they had inspected the gravel pit on the 10th Con. on Lots 2 & 3 and found it to be a first class pit but could make no arrangement with the owners. Hartnett asked $300 for it. They also examined the gravel pit on Lot 4 and found very good gravel and with that consideration would not recommend the closing of the old boundary road until some arrangement be made with Hartnett. They consider $25 and the old road a good price for the pit.

Moved by J. Patterson, seconded by J. Lithgow—That Councillor Kelly be instructed to procure the service of Jas. Dickson, P. L. S. and such evidence as may be necessary to locate the road surveyed by T. Dennehy, P. L. S. across John Dobson's lot. Carried.

Moved by J. Kelly, seconded by J. Lithgow—That Wm. Junkin, pathmaster, be instructed to remove the late John Ellis fences E½ Lot 18 Con. 4 at the angle at the Red Rock to the proper width and this Council pay him for so doing. Carried.
