Victory is Ours.

THE great sweep of victory claimed by the Globe, after a week's meditation and a counting of noses, has developed into a real victory for the Patrons and Independents, who now control the balance of power. This is as it ought to be, and undoubtedly great good will come of it. It is but the beginning of the end of extreme partyism, let us hope, of matters political. Inasmuch as the Reform minority in East Victoria and the Conservative minority in West Victoria are practically disfranchised of that most cowardly and disgraceful of all acts, "the gerrymander." The Patrons, as a party, in both these constituencies, had an almost insurmountable task to perform in the face of party majorities, in either riding, of 400 to 500. And when we consider the many mean devices employed, and the dishonorable tactics resorted to by both political parties during the late campaign, need we wonder at the result? Whilst our respective Patron candidates might have polled more votes in some polling sub-divisions in either riding, yet in others each did fairly well. When the aims and objects of the Patron movement are better understood by the masses, chiefly composed of the farmers and the great industrial classes, and when the wealth producing element in society are fully alive to the fact that their interests are subordinate to those of the professional title, then will the struggle be commenced in dead earnest for the supremacy, and we make bold to say that but one result can ensue when the event is brought to a climax. On taking a careful observation over the political horizon, we are at a loss to know how Sir Oliver (astute politician that he is) proposes to ever undertake to carry on the affairs of government whilst he is in a minority without even the election of a speaker. The duty, undoubtedly, of the Patron members in the new house will be to insist that all their demands be complied with, that nothing short of it will suffice, that they propose to honor their obligations as Patrons by standing firmly for principles, and, by so doing, not only earn the everlasting gratitude of those who have reposed confidence in them, but also become as it is their right, the controlling influence in parliament, commanding the respect and admiration of the intellectually free and independent of all classes. The friends of Patronism have done nobly throughout the province and when the members assemble in the house it will, we have no reason to doubt, be found that at least 21 members will be seated on the cross benches. Like many other journals, we object to the classification given by the various Grit and Tory organs. At most Sir Oliver will have but 46 straight supporters exclusive of the Patron vote in a house of 94, when the house meets. What a hollow victory.

Where The Patrons Stand.

THE Farmers' Sun, which is the organ of the order, in this week's issue publishes an editorial outlining the position of the Patron members, and the course to be pursued. The declaration reads as follows:

In all measures that have been discussed before the country, such as the payment of salaries to county officials and their election by the people, the removal of the Lieutenant-Governor's perquisites of about $23,000 a year, and the observance of greater economy in public service, the amendment of the assessment laws which now favor the professors and burden the masses and others, Patron representatives will vote solidly in the house in the interests of their constituents. Many other measures will directly or indirectly affect the people in the rural sections to a greater or lesser degree, and on all such questions it will be the duty of Patron members to act unitedly as far as possible, after having discussed the questions in their own caucus. Where divisions occur, as they may occur, on any new questions, they will not be occasioned by party considerations, but because our representatives aim to be men of ideas who support measures and not men or parties. When Patrons divide it will not be as partisans. This is the true Patron policy, and it is one that commends itself to thoughtful and independent electors everywhere. Partisan politicians are too frequently the serfs of unprincipled leaders. There may be men now or hereafter who receive the confidence of Patrons and betray the trust reposed in them by becoming partisans and obeying the party whip, but when the party caucus has either a direct or indirect power over a Patron member, that man will be disowned by our order and handed over to the enemy. Such is the policy of Patronism, and therein lies its power.

The Grand President's Address to the Electors.

The Provincial contest is over and the election of seventeen representatives upon the platform of the Patrons of Industry has proven to the Province that the masses have determined that their interests shall be no longer made second to those of the few who assume to have the right to rule the land. That a greater number of Patrons have not succeeded in the contest which is just completed is neither a matter of surprise nor discouragement. When it is considered that our organization has been but four years in existence, and that we had arrayed against us parties of historic age with perfect organization, with the prestige and power of governments, Dominion and provincial, and led by men of the distinguished ability, skilled in all the wiles of statescraft and entrenched in power and assisted in the campaign by a host of officials, federal and provincial, it is a marvel that the toilers did not, as of old, in the end respond to the party whip. A victory has been gained, the equal of which has never been known in the history of Canada. That hundreds of men in each of over half the constituencies of Ontario, in times of peace and without undue excitement, should turn their backs upon prejudices, the growth of generations, and voluntarily resist all the devices of party heelers for the sake of the common good, is a revelation to partisans who have always declared that when the elections are on "Patrons would be Grits and Tories, as of yore." The experiment has been tried and our people have proved true, and we are to-day respected even by those whose interests led them to oppose our views. Our platform commends itself to the better judgment of all, and there is little doubt that if the electors of Ontario could have been persuaded before the trial that Patrons would themselves prove true to our principles, thousands of others would have flocked to our standard. Hereafter the Order of Patrons of Industry will be recognized as an important factor in Canadian politics, and the fault will be our own if we are not consulted in matters of legislation when our interests are involved. Shall we now be satisfied at having convinced our rulers that party names have lost their charm? Are we content to have placed a few independent men in the legislature; or will we mass our forces, rid ourselves of traitors and prepare like earnest men for the greater battle which is to come? The knowledge gained by experience in the contest just past should be of value in the future. Let past mistakes be carefully noted. Let the organization be perfected in every constituency. Let the utmost harmony prevail in all our associations. Eschew religious and partisan discussions. Let the Patrons' platform be our only political creed. See to it that the "Canada Farmers' Sun" is read in every home; and when our principles are again put to the test in the greater contest, involving Dominion interests, the great mass of Canadian electors will pronounce with no uncertain sound that legalized robbery and class legislation shall be a thing of the past. C. A. MALLORY.

Coulter, the real-estate man, represents the old insurance companies of North America, the Atlas and the Phenix-five companies-the North American Life and the Manufacturers Accident Insurance Company. These are the best! Deal with the people's man! 27. -Complaints are being made that some people are guilty of taking copies of different magazines from the reading room of the Mechanics' Institute, and forget or neglect to return the same. It would save the librarian a good deal of trouble and the borrowers a good deal of well-merited censure, if they would return them without delay. The directors are determined to put an end to this practice. -At a regular meeting on Tuesday evening the Citizens band elected the following officers:-President, A. Brown, secretary, H. Harry; treasurer, S. Calvert. The band is now doing well under the instruction of Mr. A. Brown, and they are conducting matters in a business like manner. All persons desiring to engage the band will consult Mr. H. Harry in the future, as he alone is empowered to make engagements. -On Monday last a farmer from Fenelon, named John Bryson, drove into town where he purchased some groceries, which he left in his buggy in the Mansion house yard. Shortly afterwards he returned and found a portion of them were missing. He reported the matter to Chief Bell, and left for home about two o'clock. Before seven o'clock the chief arrested three boys named John Burk, Alex. Burk and George Sharp, and at the same time secured nearly all the groceries. They were brought before P.M. Deacon, pleaded guilty, and the two Burks sentenced to three days each and Sharp to six days in the common gaol.

-Work was resumed in the Grand Trunk shops Tuesday. -The Dominion prohibition convention opened in Montreal Tuesday. -Israel Clutchey, a stonemason, was killed by lightning at Udera village, Ont., on Monday. -Mr. R. S. All druggists. -27-1 -During the terrible thunderstorm Tuesday, Mr. Israel Clutchey was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Harry Webster also received a severe shock, but will recover. They were engaged under Mr. Webster's barn. Others there at the same time were uninjured. -A young lad who was unable to swim was in bathing near the new wharf on Tuesday evening. He went out on the shore and finally took a plunge off the wharf, and was only saved from drowning by the presence of mind of Master Bert Lamont, who went to his rescue. -Ernest Neeland, son of Mr. J. Neeland, dentist, had a narrow escape from drowning at Sturgeon Point yesterday. His sail boat upset and he became entangled in the rigging. Messrs. George Goodwin and Oswald Hamilton rescued him with some difficulty, there being a heavy sea running at the time. -On Tuesday afternoon as Mr. T. Pryer was alighting from the eastbound accommodation train at Cobourg, he slipped off the platform of the rear car under the wheels. His right foot was badly crushed and was amputated by Dr. Ivey, Grand Trunk surgeon, of that place. -Dominion day was celebrated at Cannington with full program. The attendance was very poor, but the sport was good. A named race for trotters and pacers proved to be the attraction of the day, and was very exciting throughout, there being no less than seven starters facing the wire. The race was won in three closely contested heats by Mr. St. John's five-year-old pacer, Fortunate, by Easy Fortune, B. Bermingham's Nellie B. second, and Bay Chief third. Mr. St. John is delighted with the first effort of the progeny of his popular stallion Easy Fortune. -The Knowlson-Curtis patent car coupler has been placed on exhibition for some days in the window of Gregory's drug store and attracted the attention of many people. The device is simply in construction, and does away with all danger, as the couplings can be made from the top as well as both sides of the car. The attachment is simple and cheap and can be utilized upon any of the old style draw heads. This fact alone will commend it to the average railway manager, and there appears excellent prospects for its adoption on all leading American railways. Several cars are to be fitted out on the Midland division, and a thorough test will thus be given the new device, and if it proves entirely satisfactory there will be many purchasers to hand to secure the control of the same.
