Pain in a Buried Leg

About three weeks ago John Bonker, a Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway brakeman, lost his leg under the cars at Boonville. The limb was buried there and Bonker was removed to the company's hospital in this city, where he is still. About a week ago Bonker began to experience the sensation that his amputated limb was in its accustomed place and great pain was felt in the foot. So intense did this feeling become that the crippled man tossed from side to side of his little cot in the surgical ward of the hospital and moaned with pain till the doctors became alarmed at his condition. He could not sleep, nor could anything be done to relieve him. Bonker's father visited Boonville to-day and had the leg removed from the grave. The lid of the box was raised and the toes of the foot were found to be crossed. No other peculiarity was discovered. The lid was closed and the coffin reburied. The injured man at the hospital at once experienced a sensation of relief, and the trouble has entirely vanished. The case is a very peculiar one and has excited much comment in medical circles.—St. Louis Republic.

The Lake Magazine for August, 1892.

The first number has been issued of a new high-class Canadian magazine, published by the Lake Publishing Company of Toronto. In its chaste and elegant appearance it rivals the best of its American contemporaries, and while in the character and popular interest of its contents it scores a decided success. The magazine is devoted to politics, science and general literature, and purposes filling in some measure, in the discussion of public questions, the place filled in Britain and the United States by the leading reviews of these countries. The greater portion of the magazine will, however, be given to articles, fiction and poetry, similar in kind to the best literary magazines. The political articles will be contributed by leading statesmen and writers of both political parties, and appearing under the names of the individual writers as full and exhaustive discussions of timely topics of public concern, will possess unusual interest and value; in fact no intelligent student of political affairs can afford to neglect reading them. In the present number are articles on Canada and Imperial Federation, Edward Blake and Ireland, a Cheap and Simple Franchise, from the pens of leading Canadian journalists, and also articles on the Land of Manana, a Canadian Literature, Second-Sight Along the Wires, Art in Canada To-day, The Doctrine of Handicaps—all interesting and well written. Two stories and two poems of superior merit, in addition to a number of illustrations complete the list of contents.

Killed by a Robber.

MONCTON, N.B., Aug. 1.—This town was startled to-night by the murder of one of its policemen by a robber. The store of Wilson & Co., Chatham, was robbed on Friday night. A Moncton man read about it to-day and made up his mind that he had seen suspicious characters in a Moncton house of ill-fame. He got more information, communicated with the police and the latter surrounded the house. Officer Steadman being stationed at the back door. When the house was entered in front by the marshal, Foster, a girl, gave the alarm and two men rushed out. Steadman headed them off and caught one. Both commenced firing, but Steadman held his man until another officer got him, then he fell back saying, "My God, I'm murdered." It was found that he was fatally shot in the left breast and also had a bullet in his thigh. The man captured refuses to give his name and is not known in the town. The other man escaped. Steadman is the oldest police officer on the force and was at one time marshal of the town. The burglar arrested was shot in the leg supposed to have been done by Steadman in self defence. The prisoner has been identified as one of the gang stealing a ride on a special train between Campbellton and Chatham on Thursday last. The man who escaped is described as middle-aged, dressed in black clothes, dark shirt, black spotted necktie, whiskers three weeks or a month's growth.

The Retaliation Policy.

The treaty of Washington must be observed in spirit and letter by the Dominion of Canada, or it must be repudiated by the United States. It may be that it will be better repudiated. This nation is rich enough to build a ship canal through its own territories, and as to the Canadian claim of exclusive jurisdiction over the St. Clair flats, that is a claim which the United States neither will admit or arbitrate. The right of the United States to navigation of all the waters that lie between the shore line of the two countries never will be surrendered peacefully, and it is not written that the United States ever has been compelled to make surrender as the result of war.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"It is very much to be regretted that the House of Representatives, which is controlled by Democrats, should have passed a bill empowering the President to lay an embargo upon Canadian vessels passing through the St. Mary's Falls canal. It is well to consider that there may be other results brought about besides the gratification of spite, and that the sudden stoppage of an artery of commerce will have serious effects upon the market prices of grain and the rates of transportation. The interruption of commerce would produce a convulsion in the grain markets of the world, and could scarcely fail to be disastrous to the farmers of the West. Probably nothing has given more offence to American citizens who believe that in international questions the same code of manners that prevails among private gentlemen should govern than the mean attitude and the mean pettifoggery tone which has characterized President Harrison's messages on foreign affairs, and it is a surprising blunder that a Democrat House should pass a measure which will properly be regarded as a commemoration of his record. The subject of our relation with Canada is altogether the most difficult problem in our foreign affairs, and to turn it over to a person of exceptionally narrow mind and violent prejudices for settlement according to his arbitrary discretion is an act which may lead to the most disastrous consequences."—N. Y. Evening Post.
