-Subjoined is an extract from a letter from Mr. J. C. Finley of Auckland, New Zealand, dated July 15, to a friend in Lindsay. I send you a justice number of the Otago Daily Times, which gives an excellent resume of the progress the province of Otago has made in fifty years. Everything land is growing steadily in New Zealand. Its resources are being developed and we feel like a little nation of ourselves. The American-Spanish war is stimulating New Zealand to see that much more friendly relations with Canada and United States are given the European colonies don't want to race. We in these colonies don't want to see any European power established in the Philippine Islands. In fact we are anxious to see a union of all the English speaking people. If we could see that we would feel secure against any combination that might be formed against us. Kindly let me know how things are moving in Lindsay. I suppose the place has grown considerably since we left. Remember us kindly to all old friends.

Anyone who would like them by sending a stamp to pay postage. You are indeed very welcome to send, as I can get more when I return to Florida next fall. Address Mrs. F. A. -A gentleman who knows whereof he speaks informs us that Toronto dealers are busy early on unloading their outgoing consignments of dry goods. These visitors during the industrial fair, who is particularly true of our countrymen, bring into view tons of superannated truck and tables and chairs, many of which can be sold only to buyers who confidently believe that everything bought in a big city must be first class. It is no time for proper inspection. We trust that the readers of THE WATSONIAN who go to Toronto this year will be on their guard, or will better still, see that their expenditure will both directly and indirectly be of more benefit to them.
-There is a gentleman visiting in the township of Fenelon who can be pardoned if he finds his sojourn there an occasion for some pride as well as unusual interest. He is Mr. Thomas Jarvis of Godschick. As the age of sixty he is spending a short time amid the scenes of his boyhood. Though much altered, yet they suffice to vividly recall the early days of the township when its first settlers, took up their claims. His father, Mr. Thomas Jarvis, was a pioneer among the death in 1873, men, and at the time of his death he was the oldest resident in Fenelon. Among the papers that belonged to his father, Mr. Jarvis has one of an Orange almost historic value. It is an Orange certificate issued by an English lodge in 1831. It has the massive seals and brilliant ribbons characteristic of important papers. "We, in that period, and reads as follows: "We, the undersigned officers of lodge #2 of the Loyal Orange Institution of Great Britain, do hereby certify that the bearer, Mr. Arthur Jarvis, has been regularly initiated a member of our order, and has during his continuance amongst us, conducted himself as a worthy and deserving member. Witnessed this 12th day of April, 1831. Jos. Pigott, master; Chelwood Estace, secretary."

-It is perhaps not generally known that persons find lost articles and leg-ends. This is the third meeting of the club to restore them to their owners. To know him is to see the new criminal code regarded as theft and punishable accordingly. A reward cannot be successfully demanded. If any trouble or expense is necessarily incurred in connection with the found articles, such expense can be recovered. The newspaper is the proper medium by which to discover the owner and the finder is expected to advertise at once.
-The steam barge "Maggie Revel" of Cobouck brought an excursion down to Rosedale one day last week and she also took them part way back. The "Maple Leaf" did the rest, and had her share of the marine disaster. All was going well on the return trip when the craft became suddenly disabled. At the proper signal shouted by a medley of unrecorded shouts, the "Maple Leaf" was only a short distance from the shore when the "Maggie Revel" headed out to port.
-Mr. Rogers, jeweller at Woodville, has in his possession an article whose value is enhanced both by its age and the purpose for which it was originally used. It is a iron pot of about three quart capacity, somewhat urn-shaped and prettily decorated with three short legs. On the other the figures initials "P. E. B." and the date "1886." It is what was known in times past as a "gold-pot," and was used to keep gold or other treasure that its owner buried in a secret place, or safe keeping in the absence of vaults and banks. Until the absence of the pot was discovered, it was believed to be the property of Mr. Rogers, baker of Woodville, in whose family it has been through the generations since ceasing the date of its manufacture, more than 200 years ago.

-Some consternation was caused in a camp across the lake one night recently by an invitation to come over and "take something." It was dark when the water was sought, and the darkness above the water. Overcoming his first fear that Meghito was seeking another figure, the chief of the camp ventured to investigate, and followed the summons until near the shore. Then he described a well known cottager, who resides east of the Point, holding a newly-constructed megaphone in his hand. A successful test of this instrument had produced the flutter across the lake. Whether any other words could be heard so far we are not sure.
-The boy who is reported to have stood on the burning deck was the height of composure compared with Wheelman Winters of the Crandella on Saturday afternoon. When drawing nigh the lower wharf at Sturgeon Point the burly navigator proceeded to "stop her" with the usual musical performance, when to his dismay he discovered that the gong was had parted. With comradable agility he sprang to the whistle-cord and assayed to liberate sundry mighty blasts, but with such vigor did he apply himself that the strained hip parted and allowed him to execute a somewhat undignified descent from the wheel-house to the deck. Now thoroughly rattled, he "let her go," and clambered to the hurricane deck, where he engaged in a rough-and-tumble with the whistle and rudder-post. Meanwhile the crash was nearing. Just as the whistle fell, the vessel heeled over, the wheel, steamer struck Le-reappeared at the wheel, and the way he steered her past the white-washed storehouses as a mariner. His remarks on this occasion were too numerous and fervent to mention in print, with the exception of his powerful rendering of those memorable words, "Remember the Maine," when the vessel came to a standstill. Mr. Winters is now reading Mark Twain's "Old Times on the Mississippi."
