The lynx is a somewhat rare specimen of our Canadian wild animals, and the taking off of this individual makes another step towards its extinction.—Arrow.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Wm. J. H. Ware of Victoria, has been out in the agency business, but he has joined with R. Morgan on the Canal at $1.25 per day. GOOD TIMES.—The times are booming here since the canal started, and the storekeepers are having a busy time for a while as it takes a lot to feed a couple of hundred men especially some of those Irishmen.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Our village is increasing as there are two new houses going up. I wonder who are the lucky birds?

UXBRIDGE. SEALING GRAIN.—For some time past farmers in the neighborhood of Chalk Lake have been complaining of thieving. They lost grain, sheep and poultry. Last week Ralph Mayantire had a large quantity of rye and some whiffletrees stolen, and suspicion fell on two young men named Thomas Patterson and Arthur Knight of Uxbridge township. Constable Frankish was empowered with a warrant and arrested them. The charge was heard by P. M. Campbell in the market hall on Monday and both men were committed for trial at Whity at the next court of competent jurisdiction. Patterson confessed to his share of the proceedings. The young man has only been married a couple of weeks. When the two prisoners were taken back to the lock-up Knight's sister, a low-down dame, became hysterical clutching her brother and endeavoring to take him away. She made so much fuss that the constable allowed Knight to walk up to the hotel with her until she became pacified. Patterson's young wife bore her trouble with a brave front. Mr. Chapple conducted the case for the prosecution and Mr. D. Whiteside for the defence.—Journal.

Mr. Broad was also a local minister in the Methodist church here, rec-sec. in Cresswell lodge I. O. G. T. VICTORIA ROAD. Special to the Watchman. (Crowded out last week.)

HOUSES WANTED.—Daily people are looking for houses in this place but no house to be had. Why don't those who are so busy hauling lumber away build here? No better place in the country—central, healthy and well watered; surrounded by a gentle range of hills, giving it the appearance of a village in the valley of the rockies. The air dry and easy on weak lungs. Any possible stench or disease is always carried away on the buoyant basin of Grass river. For invalids Victoria Road is second to no other place in Canada.

HUNTERS.—are beginning to talk of going north. CREDITABLE.—Alonza Demorest sen. has greatly improved his residence in appearance and no doubt in comfort to himself. May he long live to enjoy it. All plucky men deserve credit.

CAMERON. Special to the Watchman.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.—A very pleasant time was spent at the residence of Mr. Gordon Townsend on Friday evening last when the members of the Zion Good Templar's Lodge took possession of his residence for the time being and by their action shewed the inmates of the home that they had come to spend a special hour with Mr. Townsend, who has for very long time been seriously afflicted. Mr. Taylor Parkin after a time called order and opened the order of business by singing a hymn and offering a prayer to the Giver of all good things in behalf of Mr. Townsend and his home. Then the following address was made, and Mr. Townsend was made the recipient of a beautiful easy chair, the gift of his Zion friends, and sympathizers. Mr. Townsend, though weak, made a suitable reply, and thanked the good-hearted people for their much appreciated kindness. The following is the address.—To Mr. and Mrs. Townsend—We, the members of the Independent Order of Good Templars of Pleasant Valley Lodge do now meet with you this evening to spend a social hour and to tender you our sympathy in this time of Br. Townsend's affliction. We look back to the time when you were able to pay us a few friendly visits to our lodge, and we think of the pleasant times we spent together and the kind feelings that have existed between us and we do pray if it be the will of an all wise Providence that you may again be restored to your aforesaid health that those friendly visits may be again repeated, and we do sincerely trust that that power who has been your stay and support thus far will still be your stay and consolation to the end, and now we ask you to accept of this chair as a souvenir of your friends of Pleasant Valley, for you and your partner thought life as a token of their good will and sympathy towards you. Also we do sincerely hope and pray that when our meetings on earth are ended we shall meet in a higher and better home where affliction and pain can never enter and where death never comes. Signed on behalf of the lodge (Sarah Worsley C.T., Richard Cooper R.S.).

After partaking of the good things provided by the ladies of the lodge and spending an hour or so in singing and recitation the company dispersed to their homes feeling that by a little effort and sacrifice on their part, a cheerful remembrance was awakened of similar occasions in the days now gone by.

I PRESUME I'M NOT IN IT.—On Sunday evening last one of our young men undertook to see a young lady home from church, having of course first gained her permission to do so at the church door. All went well until the gate was reached and when the amorous swain turned round to greet his partner lo! the bird had flown. Naturally he felt a little cheap, but he expects better luck next time.

HOME FROM MANITOBA.—Mr. David Thompson, jun., returned from Manitoba last week. He speaks well of the prairie province.

Portrait of Professor Conn, Who Discovered the June Butter Bacillus. Our readers will be pleased to see the picture of Professor H. W. Conn of Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., the man who is sure he has found a culture which, if stirred into cream and allowed to ripen any time of the year, will produce in butter a flavor like that given by June Grass. The portrait is reproduced from The Creamery Journal. Professor Conn found the germ in some butter that came from Argentina. Undoubtedly in a few years dairy science will have progressed so far that the culture in cream and milk of flavor germs careful factory men will be able to produce at all times butter and cheese of any kind desired. We are rapidly approaching that period. Bacillus No. 41 is now in use in over 100 creameries, Professor Conn says. In an article in The Creamery Journal on the use of pure cultures in cream he tells us: "The ripening of cream is a process quite similar to the fermentation of malt and seemingly is undergoing very much the same kind of a history. Like the fermentation of malt the ripening of cream is simply the growth in it of micro-organisms, the difference being that in this case desired organisms are not yeasts, but bacteria, and are not planted in the cream intentionally by the butter maker, but are there at the outset when the cream is set for ripening. The object of the ripening also is slightly different. It is not intended to produce alcohol, but rather to give rise to a certain amount of lactic acid which hastens churning and gives a greater yield from the cream, and, more important still, to give rise to a certain series of decomposition products which have a very delicate aroma and taste, and which impregnate the butter, giving to it the peculiar desirable taste of a first class product."

As to what No. 41 will do, particularly what it will not do, the professor writes: "Bacillus No. 41 will not affect the grain of the butter; it will not affect the amount of the butter. It does not greatly affect the aroma of the butter—that is, the products that appeal to the nose—and while butter made by its use does have a pleasant aroma it is not commonly a very prominent one. When tested by the nose only, the butter, therefore, is not rated at its full value. Nor will Bacillus No. 41 make first class butter out of third class cream. With the use of this culture, as without it, it is necessary that care should be taken by the butter maker and the milk producer to have good cream. But the good effects of the culture are several. First and foremost, it does improve the flavor. This effect is first seen in the cream. When two lots of cream from the same gathering are placed side by side, one inoculated with Bacillus No. 41 and the other not, and allowed to ripen together, the following differences will be seen: The ordinary cream will in a normal manner sour and thicken. The inoculated cream will not become so sour nor so thick, but will acquire a rich, pleasant flavor. Both will be acid, but the one will commonly have a thin, sour taste, and the other a rich flavor, besides the acid taste. If the ripening is continued longer, the effect is still more noticeable. The normal cream becomes thicker and sourer and more unpleasant, while the inoculated cream does not grow much sourer, but its flavor increases in richness. If now butter be made from the two samples, the one will make a good, but moderately flavored butter, the other will be like it in every respect except that its flavor is noticeably richer and more agreeable."
