

WHY IT PAYS TO TRADE WITH US.

DUNDAS & FLAVELLE BROS.

Reason it in this way: Visiting personally the best markets of the Old World, and buying direct from the manufacturers of Great Britain, France and Germany, for spot cash, and then giving our customers the advantage of all this, does it not make matters plain.

Try us for your next parcel. If Mantles, we have nearly 1000 to choose from. If Suits then over 1000 to choose from. If Dress, then many thousand yards to select from. Try us for something, as a matter of comparison, let it be Cotton, Linen, Flannels, Carpets, House furnishings, Hosiery, &c., any of them, and then we will leave it to you to judge the advantage of trading with us.

A Barefaced Swindle.
The following, clipped from the columns of the Toronto Globe, Oct. 29th, is of sufficient importance to newspaper readers to warrant its reproduction in these columns:

To the Editor of the Globe.
Sir,—I am sure you will agree with me when I say that something ought to be done to stop the barefaced swindling (no milder name will do) which is going on in certain directions in our midst, and I have no reason to doubt that my experience in this city is the experience of others in many parts of Canada. I have read so much of the great success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People that I determined to try them for nervous troubles. I accordingly went to a drug store to procure a supply. On asking the druggist for the pills he took down a glass jar and proceeded to take out the quantity, "But," said I, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not sold in bulk, and that cannot be them." "O, yes it is," said the dealer, "we always get them in bulk and sell them that way." I had read the caution of the proprietors to the effect that these pills were never sold in bulk, and thinking that they should know best, I declined taking them, and left the store. My next experience was no more fortunate. Again pink pills in color to imitate the genuine article were again offered me. When I remonstrated this dealer admitted the pills were not supplied him by the Dr. Williams' Co., but declared that they were just the same. And yet, for the sake of a little more profit he would have imposed them on me for the genuine Pink Pills had I been less cautious. As I left the store I thought the repeated warning against imitations given by the Williams' Co. must be the result of bitter experience on their part. But I did not expect I would meet with three dishonest dealers (do you think the term too strong?) in succession. My next experience proved the third dealer little better than the other two. When I asked for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills he said he had them, and then produced a package which I saw at a glance bore another name, and which he insisted were just as good. I declined taking them, and turned to leave the store, when the druggist offered to give me the genuine pills. But I did not feel that I ought to patronize a man who would have imposed something else on me had I been less guarded, and declined buying. I almost despaired getting the genuine Pink Pills unless I sent to headquarters; but on my visit to the fourth drug store I was more successful, and was at once handed the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. No doubt, Mr. Editor, my experience is that of many others, and no doubt hundreds less cautious are constantly being deceived. I think the newspapers ought to do something towards protecting their readers from frauds of this kind. We frequently read of reporters doing clever detective work, etc., visiting churches in the garb of the lowly, and writing up their reception. Here is a new field for them. Let some clever reporter travel the length and breadth of this city in humble guise, and see how many dealers are honest enough to give him what he asks for without trying to impose a substitute upon him.

I trust, Mr. Editor, you will give this a place in your columns, as it may serve to prevent some one else from being cheated.

Live Cattle Trade Ended.
Mr. A. J. Thompson, who has for years been a prominent cattle dealer, upon being asked his opinion on the scheduling of cattle in Great Britain, said:—"I do not think there are any contagious diseases among Canadian cattle, and I am of opinion that the scheduling should not have been done. I do not, however, think that it will in the long run do any harm to Canada, though the loads on the ocean will be sold at a loss of from 40 to 50 per cent. These loads are made up of cattle that are neither stockers nor beefs. If they were beefs the loss would not be so great. I do not think the scheduling will do any harm. It will pay the Canadian farmer to fatten his cattle at home. Some parts of the country are adapted to raising stockers, and in other parts these stockers can be fattened. We could fatten in Canada many more cattle than we do. The farmer would have all the manure for his farm. When I go through the country I see that the farmer who fattens his cattle is prosperous. For dealers the cattle trade has been a losing business for years. A reason for this is that Canadian freights have killed the trade. If the scheduling remains in force we can ship from what points we please. I can send cattle from any point in Canada to Boston or New York $5 a head cheaper than I can to Montreal. The scheduling will occasion loss to the trade this fall, but by spring we shall be on our feet, and considering what I have said, we shall not suffer in the long run. Our cattle will have to be killed promptly over there, but if they are in good condition we can compete. Last year I had a load over and slaughtered them and obtained from $2 to $3 more than if they were on foot. If the scheduling continues the Canadian freights will not eat up the profits."

Scotch Haggis.
In making a Scotch haggis procure a sheep's pluck and stomach-bag; wash the pluck well and put it on in a pot to boil, allowing the windpipe to hang out of the pot, so that any impurities will come out by it; boil gently from one and a half to two hours. Get the stomach-bag nicely cleaned by a butcher; wash it thoroughly, and put it on in cold water and bring to the boil, which will cause the bag to contract. Take it out of the pot immediately, wash and scrape it well, and lay it in salt and water until needed. Mince the best part of the lungs and the heart, leaving out the grizly parts; grate the best parts of the liver, and put all in large basin; chop the suet very finely, add a middling-sized onion very finely chopped up, two teaspoonfuls of pepper, a breakfast-cupful of the liquor in which the pluck was boiled to moisten and mix the whole. Now take up the stomach-bag, keep the fat or smooth side inside, and fill it up, but not quite full, sew up the opening, and put it in boiling water to boil gently for three hours, prick the haggis several times with a darning needle to prevent it from bursting; also put a plate under it to prevent it sticking to the bottom of the pot.

A Canadian Eagle Story.
The Prescott Messenger says:—Considerable excitement was caused at one of the Government marble quarries last week by an American eagle being captured there, while in the act of trying to carry away a small child. The little fellow was about 10 years old, and had gone to the quarry with his father. He was playing near by when some of the employes heard him crying loudly. They rushed out, and saw the cause of his fright. A large bird was hovering over his head attempting to carry him away. A man by the name of Paton hastened for his gun and soon had the bird sprawling on the ground. Mr. Paton then captured it and found that he had shot an eagle. The little boy escaped being injured by the timely appearance of his rescuers. He was, however, badly frightened. The bird measured four feet from tip to tip.
