THOU ART, O GOD!

Thou art, O God! the life and light Of all this wondrous world we see;

When day, with farewell beam delays Among the opening clouds of even,

When night, with wings of starry gloom, O'ershadows all the earth and skies,

When youthful spring around us breathes, Thy spirit warms her fragrant sigh;

When the Rev. John Rees, of Crown Street, Soho, London, was visited on his death-bed

DOMESTIC HINTS.

It is curious how, in a well-regulated body, the desire for food is experienced day by day at exactly the same hour

As a tooth-powder is better than almost anything that can be bought. It keeps the teeth brilliantly white and the gums hard and rosy.

To prevent wax candles from dripping lay them in a refrigerator for a few hours before they are needed.

Trunk rests, low frames upon which the trunk is stood, are new and valuable, particularly to tall women, who find the stooping over to pack irksome and uncomfortable.

To test drinking water, put a dessert-spoonful of clear solution of tannin into a quart of a pint of water.

Salt, heated dry and applied to the outer surface over the seat of inflammation or congestion, will give almost instant relief.

An eminent writer on the training of children says that "an active, cheerful, good-humoured nurse, by regular affectionate attendance, by endeavoring to prevent all unnecessary suffering, and by quickly comprehending the language of signs in her little charge, will make a cross child good-humoured, while a careless, negligent or stupid woman will injure the temper of an angel."

The great secret of success in making dough nuts is to have the fat boiling before attempting to cook them.

A good recipe.—Mix into a light dough three cupfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of sugar, a saltspoonful of salt, one ounce of butter, one egg, a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar.

Gold frames do very well for paintings, but when it comes to "frames of mind" the less gilt the better.

It may be a good thing to be "in touch with the people," but it depends a good deal on how the people take hold of a fellow.

"You can't go home when it's raining like this. You'd better stay and have dinner with us." "Oh, it's not so bad as that!"

I do not cast my eyes away from my troubles, says Southey. I pack them in a little compass as I can for myself, and never let them annoy others.

A red nose is a thing which should be treated in its earliest stage, as every time the vessels distend the easier it becomes for a redness to establish a firm hold on the face.

Highland policeman to itinerant piper—"Come on now; move on out of that. Are you going to stan' there all night, annoyin' ta' lieges, playin' your 'Prises on ta' standard o' Mar'?"

Nothing is to be compared for value with goodness; riches, honor, power, pleasure, learning, the whole world and all in it, are not worth having in comparison with being good.

When the hour of death comes—that comes to high and low alike—then it is not what we have done for ourselves, but what we have done for others, that we think on most pleasantly.—[Sir Walter Scott.

A man who can give up dreaming and go to his daily realities, who can smother down his heart, its love or woe, and take to the work of his hand and defy fate and if he must die, dies fighting to the last—that man is life's best hero.

The minister got mixed on the name of the deceased woman, and didn't discover his mistake until told of it after the funeral.

Mr. Ketcham—"How is your boy getting along at school?" Mrs. Cheatem—"Splendidly! I just tell you my old friend, that boy of mine will make his way in the world, don't you fear.

During the eight years he's been going to school they have had 32 examinations, and he's managed to dodge every one of 'em."

Constant laughter is not cheerfulness; it is more likely to be the expression of folly. Send us hence a thousand miles from a face always parading itself in smiles and giggling.

A real jurymen's difficulty. Says Bridget to Pat—"An' how do ye loike being on the jury, Pat?" Says Pat—"It's somewhat confin'."

J. NEELANDS, D.D.S., M.R.C.D.S., DENTIST, Lindsay.

By the aid of the new Hydro-Carbon Gas process he can make indestructible porcelain fillings and store broken and decayed teeth to their original shape, contour and color.

Gas, Vitalized Air, administered for nearly 25 years, extracting teeth for thousands of persons without particle of pain.

Mr. NEELANDS uses Hall's Local Anesthetic for extracting teeth. He is now using a new style of his last visit to New York, which removes the teeth without danger of injury to the gums or jaw, the gums healing up beautifully in a few days.

Artificial teeth inserted on all the people for their retention and comfort. Numbers of persons are wearing teeth made by Mr. Neelands over 20 years and never required repairs.

Persons from a distance will please send a 10c card before coming. Office, Kent Street, Lindsay
