THE HUNTED CZAR.

Advices from London speak of a fresh attempt on the life of the Czar of Russia, in which it is said that several army officers are implicated. A large number of persons have been arrested in St. Petersburg and the discovery of the plot has caused the imperial family to make a shorter stay in that city than was intended and to abandon the court balls and festivities. No details of the plot are given and a Vienna paper warns its readers that the story of attempted assassination must be received with some degree of caution, but it seems probable that an abortive attempt was made, but that the conspirators were betrayed before they could carry out their plans.

What is to be the end of all this conspiring and plotting in Russia? No matter how severely detected conspirators may be punished, no sooner are they removed from the scene of action, by death or banishment, than a new set step into their places and take up the dreadful weapons which have been wrested from them. Nothing seems to be effective to stop the desire for the death of the Czar of Russia, neither punishments or anything else. It is not easy for the people of a free country to picture to themselves a people among whom reside a numerous and constantly growing class, whose one idea is that of assassinating the ruler of the country. Suppose that we had in this country an organization or association whose declared purpose and cardinal principle was the murder of the Governor, it is easy for us to say that we would put them down by the strong hand of the law. But suppose that a very large majority of our people really sympathized with the organization, though not willing to take any active part in the assassination; in such a case it will be readily seen that the law would be practically inoperative.

Such is the case in Russia. While there are hundreds and thousands to whom the idea of murder is horrifying and revolting, they cannot close their eyes to the viciousness of that system of autocracy which finds its embodiment in the Czar, and so they are compelled in a measure to tacitly consent to that of which they disapprove, at least in theory, and to keep silence and feign ignorance of Nihilistic and Anarchistic movements and designs. When it is considered that the Czar of Russia might, with one stroke of his pen, heal very much of the discontent which is so rife among his subjects, by giving the country constitutional guarantees for its liberty, and that a strict enforcement of law would summon to his side many who now are apathetic and hopeless for the future of Russia, his blindness and stupidity seem amazing. He must certainly know by this time that no people of the present day will accept willingly the dictum of any man in place of settled law. His own personal experience must have convinced him that despotism is an anachronism, and that autocracy is not suited to the age in which he lives; and yet he persists in trying to rule without any law but his own pleasure. He is simply provoking his fate. The Nihilists will persevere in their plots until they kill him, and his blood will be on his own head for not yielding to the just demands of his people for that measure of liberty under law which is the birthright of every human being.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Old Sores, Wounds and Ulcers.—The readiness with which Holloway's unguent removes all obstructions in the circulation of the vessels and lymphatics, explains their irresistible influence in healing old sores, bad wounds and indolent ulcers. To insure the desired effect the skin surrounding the diseased part should be fomented, dried and immediately well rubbed with the Ointment. This will give purity to the foul blood and strength to the weakened nerves, the only conditions necessary for the cure of all ulcerations which render life almost intolerable. No sooner is this Ointment's protective powers exerted than the destructive process ceases and the constructive business begins—now, healthy growth appears to fill up the lately painful excavated pit.

Lessons From Life.

A Great National Calamity, What it Teaches

The last few years have played sad havoc with many prominent men of our country.

Many of them died without warning, passing away apparently in the full flush of life.

Others were sick but a comparatively short time. We turn to our files and are astonished to find that most of them died of apoplexy, of paralysis, or nervous prostration, of malignant blood humor, of bright's disease, of heart disease, of kidney disease, of rheumatism or of pneumonia.

It is singular that most of our prominent men die of these disorders. Any journalist who watches the telegraph reports, will be astonished at the number of prominent victims of these disorders.

Many statements have appeared in our paper with others to the effect that the diseases that carried off so many prominent men in 1887, are really one disease, taking different names according to the location of the fatal effects.

When a valuable horse perishes, it becomes the nine days' talk of the sporting world and yet thousands of ordinary horses are dying every day, their aggregate loss is enormous and yet their death creates no comment.

So it is with individuals. The cause of death of prominent men creates comment, especially when it can be shown that one unsuspected disease carries off most of them, and yet, "vast numbers of ordinary men and women die before their time every year from the same cause."

It is said if the blood is kept free from uric acid, that heart disease, paralysis, nervous prostration, pneumonia, rheumatism and many cases of consumption, would never be known. This uric acid, we are told, is the waste of the system and it is the duty of the kidneys to remove this waste.

We are told that if the kidneys are maintained in perfect health, the uric, kidney, acid is kept out of the blood and these sudden and universal diseases caused by uric acid will, in a large measure disappear.

But how shall this be done? It is folly to treat effects. If there is any known way of getting at the cause, that way should be known to the public. We believe that Warner's safe cure, of which so much has been written, and so much talked of by the public generally, is now recognized by impartial physicians and the public as the one specific for such diseases.

Because public attention has been directed to this great remedy by means of advertising, some persons have not believed in the remedy. We cannot see how Mr. Warner could immediately benefit the public in any other way and his valuable specific should not be condemned because some nostrums have come before the public in the same way, any more than that all doctors should be condemned because so many of them are incompetent.

It is astonishing what good opinions you hear on every side, of that great remedy and public opinion thus based upon an actual experience, has all the weight and importance of absolute truth.

At this time of the year, the uric acid in the blood invites pneumonia and rheumatism and there is not a man who does not dread these monsters of disease; but he need have no fear of them we are told, if he rid the blood of the uric acid cause.

These words are strong and may sound like an advertisement and be rejected as such by unthinking people but we believe they are the truth and as such should be spoken by every truth-loving newspaper.

Interesting Jottings From Other Places.

Brechin.

The Rev. W. P. Herron writes: "The prospects for Methodism are brightening here. The dawn of grander and better days is visible upon the horizon. The interest and activities displayed are indicative of future effects. The erection of a new brick church has been decided upon. A suitable lot has been purchased. The plans and specifications are being prepared and in a couple of weeks tenders will be advertised for. A large amount has been subscribed and a number of entertainments have been held with great success, financially and socially. The people of Brechin and vicinity deserve great credit for the liberal patronage bestowed by them. A revival is to be held and we are looking forward to a rich blessing from God in the saving of souls. Grand weekly prayer-meetings are held, at which the attendance is very large and great interest manifested. At these meetings seed is being sown, the harvesting of which we look for ere long.—"Packet."
