The Kind of Pollywogs We Are.

Without our annual phrenological chart being presented by either the editor of the "Warder" or some of his correspondents we would indeed feel lost. During the twelve years we have done business here the "Warder" has never ceased to tell the public how insignificant and utterly worthless we are. It is quite impossible for the "Warder" to look on us without being impressed with the absolute certainty that we are unfit to live. We believe the "Warder" and its correspondents are biased. In fact we are beginning to think we are not among the beloved ones who enjoy the smiles of the genius of the "Warder." Harrowing thought! Here is the latest contribution presented with all the bold and generous exuberance for which the "Warder's" writers are now famous. It fairly makes us smile even through the transports of rage which by this time ought to be devastating our person: To the Advocate we would say, that we know exactly what kind of a pollywog he is, with more tail than head, wriggling his way in some ditch or cesspool, where he has for the time taken up quarters, and that he is of little or no consequence whatever, except to disgrace the fourth estate. Besides that he has never displayed any gratitude, honorable feeling, principle, or manly spirit of any kind. It is a singular fact, that in all his varied career, he has never once had the fortune to make a mistake that led him to take up the side of right. He is always with those whose characters and conduct need an apology, which he is ever ready to make for whatever it will bring him, and judging from the past, we believe he would spare no man, no matter how much he might be obliged to him, if he had ten cents to make by it. We would advise him in future not to put his dirty rag upon every black spot he may happen to see upon the robes of his friends, he cannot hide it, neither can he rub it out, and to touch it with anything so vile only makes it worse, more conspicuous and disgusting. Until he has acquired some manhood and learned the ways of decency, let him confine his exertions, which are considerable to the running of his own little one-horse business, where his native insignificance and puerility may pass without comment, as it escapes observation. Our readers will at once rise to the awful occasion and stamp us out. We have no doubt they will. What else could possibly follow such a denunciation as the above? We have numbered the earth long enough and ought now in all reason to make way for the colossal check and gigantic exhalations of the "Warder" and its genuine correspondents.

NOXON'S New Steel "Hoosier" Drill.

3 important points to be considered in buying a Drill; REMEMBER, this is the only drill that deposits the grain an even depth in hard and loose soil. The only drill in which the hose can be instantly changed to sow the desired depth without stopping the team. The only drill that will insure an even growth, as no other drill will do in all conditions of soil. The only drill that commences to sow the instant the team begins to move. The only drill which can be changed from drilling to broadcasting or vice-versa in less than one minute's time. EXAMINE THE NEW STEEL FRAME "HOOSIER" DRILL and be satisfied that it is the best drill in the market. A Good Stock of all kinds of Implements, Buggies and Waggon always on hand.
