Prospering.

Many of our readers will remember and will be pleased to hear from the Ferguson family who lived here some eleven years ago. Migrating to the North-west they have done well and as the following excerpt from the Winnipeg "Sun" shows, have won honor and position in that country:—"Mr. Malcolm Ferguson, brother of Dr. A. H. Ferguson of this city, obtained the degree of M. D. from Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York, at the June examinations, coming out at the head of the list of the graduating class and taking 100 per cent in all the subjects, both primary and final, except chemistry, in which he took 80 per cent. It will be remembered that he received the greater portion of his medical training at Manitoba Medical college. He is the third of the well-known Ferguson family of this city, that secured a profession with distinguished honors. Five years ago Neil B. Ferguson stood third on the list at Ann Arbor university for the degree of L. L. B., and is now practising law in St. Paul, and Dr. A. H. Ferguson six years ago graduated as medalist in Toronto, and is one of the professors in our medical college here.—"The young men are deserving of much credit for the persevering manner in which they have fought the "battle of life"—left fatherless when quite young they have all succeeded in securing honorable positions in the world while Mr. A. H. Ferguson, we learn is doing the second largest business in Winnipeg.—[Ed.]

The Glorious 12th.

The village was made lively on the night of the 12th by a couple of noisy drunks on their way from the celebration at Port Perry. They imagined themselves possessed of the freedom of the town, but quickly found to their disgust that the public sympathized but little with either their imagination or condition. They were "run in" and contributed their mite to the revenues.

Journalistic.

It is only a short time ago we were asked what had become of Mr. Neil Brown, formerly a journalist of Cannington and later of the "Messenger," Collingwood. Mr. Brown was a genial and well known citizen of this locality and we were pleased to hear of him in the following from the Orillia "Times": "A copy of the North-western "Tribune" a paper published at Mount Pleasant, Mich., by Mr. A. N. Brown, an old Collingwood journalist, tell us that an editor is not without honor in a foreign country, however he may have been at home. When Mr. Brown, or Neil Brown, as he was familiarly called was in these parts, he was regaled, much as the average newspaper man is, and found it difficult to make journalism pay—at that time. But now he is the fortunate proprietor of a handsome eight-page sheet, (one column of which is taken up with an account of how "Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Brown were the recipients of munificent tokens of regard from a generous-hearted community"—we quote the caption of the article in question. It appears Mr. Brown has been honored upon the occasion of the tenth anniversary of his wedding. Numerous and costly were the presents poured in upon the happy editor and his spouse, and altogether it appears as if an editor's lot when cast among the Michiganders, is indeed, a happy one. Congratulations, brother Brown, may you live to enjoy many such interesting occasions.
