Rise! for the day is passing,
And you lie dreaming on;

Rise! from your dreams of the future—
Of gaining some hard fought field;

Rise! if the past details you,
Her sunshine and storms forget;

Rise! for the day is passing;
The low sound that you scarcely hear

A PLEASANT LOVE.

"I have got some news for you, Maggie," he said one day, about eighteen months after

They were walking along the green lanes of Perlock, listening to the ceaseless murmur

"You are going to be promoted," she said.

"Promoted, you little goose! No one ever gets promoted in the British army. Guess

"You are going to marry an heiress."
There was a lump in her throat as she

"Wrong again. No inestimable young person, with green eyes, a turn-up nose,

"Oh, Alice!" she gasped, and burst into tears.

"Why, whatever are you crying for?" he asked, and kissed away her tears.

"Yes?" she said, listening attentively.
"Then you'll be a young woman—I

"Oh, no! indeed I shan't, Alice," she said, eagerly.

"But I tell you, you will. I believe you are a born little flirt, and I shall come back

But she burst into tears again, and put up her pretty little hand as if to stop his teasing,

"I believe I shall come back and find you just as great a little darling as you are now,

"Oh, I hope she won't!" said Maggie, like a truthful little idiot.

"Yes, of course I shall, and I shall expect you to write back six pages crossed, and all

So Alice Granger went to China, and Maggie waited hopefully enough for a letter, but six

"Perhaps he's ill, or it's miscarried," she said, tearfully, half wondering if it could be

"Two years passed, and never a word.
It's too bad," she said bitterly, and Maggie was twenty years old when her father died, and the creditors did pounce

"Come in," she said.

The door opened, and there stood before her astonished eyes the form of Alice Granger,

"All right, Tim, put it down; that's right; now be off. There, I've brought the

"Oh! What will Mrs. Marshall and Miss Patterson say?" said Maggie in consternation.

"Nothing to you for the next half hour or so, for I have just seen them safely on their

"Oh, Maggie!" he answered, mimicking.
"What did you mean by going away from

"I don't know what you mean, Miss Patterson!" Maggie said, indignantly.

But Miss Patterson had swept out of the room without deigning to reply.

Then Maggie went into her own little room, the one place she had in the world entirely to

"All right, Tim, put it down; that's right; now be off. There, I've brought the

"Oh! What will Mrs. Marshall and Miss Patterson say?" said Maggie in consternation.

Miss Patterson walked in very much dressed, and rather flushed and excited.

"Yes, I feared so, and thought I would come and tell you, so that you might practice

"What for?" she asked, innocently.
"By, you haven't forgotten that we

"No, but you are engaged, are you not?"
"Yes, of course I am—to you?"

"Oh, but, Maggie!" and then he stooped and kissed her, and nothing more could be
