For kindling take a quart of tar and three pounds of resin, melt them and bring to a cooling temperature, mix with as much coarse saw-dust, with a little charcoal, added, as can be worked in; spread out while hot upon a board. When cold, break up into lumps the size of a walnut and you have at small expense kindling enough for a household to easily ignite from a match and burn with a strong blaze long enough to start any wood that is fit to burn.

"I suppose you saw the old man?" said a young fellow to a friend who had been calling on his girl. "Oh! yes, I saw the old man," was the reply. "Don't you think he is a pleasant, good natured old soul?" No; I didn't find him particularly pleasant or good natured, but he has a broad expanse of sole. It made a deep impression upon me; and he throw so much of it into our parting that it was touching in the extreme.

THE Toronto detectives have been given the particulars of a daring robbery commited at Pickering, the information having been sent them in the hope that they may be able to obtain some clue to the perpetrators. Last Wednesday an hotel-keeper at Pickering was awakened in the night by a noise in his parlor, and on going down to discover the cause, he found three men rifling his sideboard. On his appearance the robbers drew their revolvers and commenced firing upon him, and compelled him to beat a retreat. As soon as he had left the room they made their escape by the window. The hotel-keeper lost all his silver and a cash box containing about $100.—
