THE NEW YEAR.

"The king is dead! Long live the king!"
How oft those words renowned
Come back to me when joy bells ring
With sweet and cheering sound!
Those bells that say, "A Year is dead!
Another's king to-day!"
Aye, king, ere yet the echoing chime
Of midnight dies away!

And though the wintry winds oft sing
The dead king's funeral song,
We know that round the new-born king
Spring flowers will bloom ere long!
Then be thy sorrows what they may,
Let hope dispel each fear,
When all who meet thee, smiling, say,
"A happy, bright New Year!"

LEWIS NOVA.

THE CITY OF PEARL AND GOLD.

The moon sends down her silver rays,
And here and there a star is seen
That sparkles with a dazzling sheen;
With longing eyes I upward gaze,
While thought and fancy traverse ways
Beyond the range of vision far
Beyond the farthest, faintest star.

I heard in childhood of a clime,
A sunny clime with shady bowers,
A land of fairest fruits and flowers,
Of sights, and sounds, and songs sublime;
Beyond the boundary line of Time
This land of older story lies;
At times we call it Paradise.

In that far country, we are told,
A high eternal city stands—
A city builded not with hands—
Those gates and walls of pearl and gold
With splendor glisten, as of old
They looked and shone ere man was made,
Or earth's foundation stones were laid.

Grand is the palace of the King
Who sits upon the eternal throne,
And reigns in majesty alone;
While all his subjects tribute bring;
And seraphim of many wing
Before him in the sacred place,
With reverence veil their feet and face.
