How Halton County Was Hit by the Closing of the Farmer's Bank

Milton, Ont., Jan. 7.—Halton county prides itself on its reputation as the richest and thirteenth little county in Ontario. Milton is the centre from which Halton was raided.

our success and our neighbor's. WORK OF PROMOTERS. And if the Halton men themselves worked hard, the institution's promoters worked harder.

NEARLY HALF A MILLION "It will cost Halton county not much under half a million before the Farmers Bank is done with."

LINIMENT FOR SHARES. One man tells a remarkable story. Illustrative of the lengths to which a promoter went.

OLD MAN'S LOSS. The position of one retired veteran of Halton calls forth much sympathy.

GOVERNMENT PROTECTION. "We thought we had the protection of the Government," said a shareholder.

Days when he was to enjoy the fruit of his labors, the resting time of his life had come.

The telephone rang. The word came from Milton that the Farmers Bank had gone up.

He never made a better speech in his life than that night, after he got that news," said one of his friends.

NOT A TEAR. At not one of the farm houses visited did even a woman shed a tear over dashed hopes.

Another man has a farm worth about $5,000. He holds twenty-five shares of Farmers Bank stock.

These are typical cases among the hundred and fifty-four Halton shareholders.

"We thought we had the protection of the Government," said a shareholder.

towards putting the bank on the way to success. If there was any thing wrong that we did not know of, it was surely the Government's business to let us know of it."

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was cancer of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to a sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles. It has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all.
