May Be Local Option Contest In Lindsay

The Pioneer, the official organ of the temperance party, says: "There are 85 municipalities in which local option by-laws were defeated on the first Monday in January, 1910. All these may vote again on January 6, 1913, along with the 187 wet places which were open to attack this year, and in which contests did not take place. This will make a complete list of 272 places that are now open for action looking towards the sub-

TORTURED FOR THIRTY FIVE YEARS

I really could not live without "Fruit-a-lives"

FRENCHVILLE, Ont., Jan. 29th, 1910.

"For thirty-five years (and I am now a man over seventy) I have been a terrible sufferer from Constipation. No matter what remedy or physician I employed, the result was always the same—impossible to get a cure. About two years ago, I read about "Fruit-a-lives" and I decided to try them.

I have used "Fruit-a-lives" ever since. They are the first and only medicine that suited my case. If it were not for "Fruit-a-lives" I am satisfied that I could not live." JAMES PROUDFOOT.

The Little Widow.

A Toronto editor tells the following story—therefore, it is not necessarily true.

To a certain Ontario city, there came a charming widow on a visit and her victims were not a few. One of her most ardent admirers was about to make a trip to Winnipeg, and she asked him to go to the cemetery and place a wreath of flowers on the grave of her deceased husband. He promised to fulfil this mournful mission and, faithful to his trust, proceeded to carry a profusion of chrysanthemums.

What was his surprise to find two graves in the lot, each provided with a stone on which was inscribed the name of the beloved husband. The later one, however, conveyed a shock in the final quotation: "Be Thou Also Ready!"

Absentminded Member.

Not long after Hon. W. J. Hanna's appointment to the portfolio of the Minister of Agriculture, when he entered a certain Methodist minister of Conservative leanings. The Premier introduced him to Mr. Hanna, remarking, "Mr. Hanna is a strong Methodist, Dr. C."

The Doctor beamed on the Provincial Secretary and asked: "Let me know who is in charge in Sarnia now?"

Mr. Hanna replied: "Oh, he's all right, Mr. —. Oh, hang it all, I've forgotten his name."

How Wilcox Won.

Mr. Oliver Wilcox, the Conservative M.P. for North Essex, had a hard time winning the seat in the recent Federal campaign. And yet he got in on the right with the colored population of Windsor. There are several thousand negroes there, and one night just before election day they had a big chicken feast, which Mr. Wilcox attended. The story goes that when called upon for speech he addressed the company somewhat as follows:

"Fellow countrymen, I am delighted to be with you at your great national feast. But I must remind you that no reciprocity carries you will have no more feasts all Canadian chickens will be shipped across the border."

That was enough for the colored voters.

McGaw Heirs Hopeful.

Since the death of the late William McGaw, who died recently in Kitchener, Ont., shortly after an estate formed that he was heir to an estate worth millions left by an uncle in Buenos Ayres, relatives of the family in Brant County have gathered with the view of establishing their claim to the fortune.

All belong to the same family, which left Scotland many years ago to settle in this country. There are a dozen or so relatives who were connected with the deceased millionaire, the chief of whom are James and Gabriel McGaw of Brantford. The family propose to secure legal aid in establishing their claim.

Pictou's Celebrities.

A great many claims have been put forward as to the ancestry of Andrew Bonar Law, who has succeeded Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour as the leader of the Unionist party in Great Britain, and a great many places have claimed the honor of being connected with his birth. It now appears that the publisher of the subject that the Prime Minister of Great Britain is a great-grandson of John Dawson, one of the pioneers in the commercial life of Pictou, N.S., and his remains to-day lie in the old historic Laurel Hill Cemetery in that beautiful town.

Heretofore Pictou has had prominence in producing college presidents—Sir William Dawson, who spent long and ably conducted the affairs of McGill University, was born at that place. Rev. George M. Grant, late president of Queen's University, and the Rev. D. M. Gordon at the present time principal of Queen's University, Dr. Forrest, ex-president of Dalhousie College, Halifax, N.S.; at the present time principal of Dalhousie; the late Rev. Dr. McRae, one time principal of Morin College; the Rev. Dr. R. A. Falconer, at the present time president of Toronto University; the Rev. Clarence McKinnon, president of Pine Hill College, Halifax, and hosts of other prominent educational leaders at the present time carrying on the work of the United States, and of Canada, the United States, and Great Britain. Heretofore this school pre-eminence has been the one in which Pictouians have been most in evidence.

Now it appears that the next Unionist Prime Minister of Great Britain will be descended from a Pictouian, Dawson by name. Bonar Law's great-grandfather came to Pictou from the parish of Irongrey, Dumfriesshire.

Canada's London.

As to the reproduction of London place names elsewhere, the city of London in Canada is far and away the most prolific example. Not only is it situated in the center of the Thames, but all the historic localities in old London—Pall Mall, Charing Cross, Cheapside, the Strand, etc.—have been appropriated in the name of the new. Bendigo, Australia, also has a Pall Mall and a Charing Cross.—London Chronicle.

A Canadian Blue.

Mr. Howard R. L. Henry, of Winnipeg, a Rhodes scholar, has just won a unique distinction at Oxford. He is the only Canadian to either Oxford or Cambridge this year to get his full blue, this being for association football. An athlete receives his "blue" in England when he has been chosen and has competed as a member of a representative university team or crew.

Mr. Henry, who has just completed his course at Oxford, has also been called to the English bar at the Inner Temple, London, being presented by Mr. Athery Jones, M.P., and will practice law in Winnipeg.

Mr. Henry is a nephew of Dr. G. A. Bingham, the well-known Toronto surgeon, and of the latter's brother, Dr. H. S. Bingham, of Dovercourt road, Toronto.—Toronto Star Weekly.

Not the Proper Noun.

There is a Teutonic citizen of the name of Kleopfer, who went about an Ontario city, on the twenty-second of September, exclaiming on the vastness of the political chaos.

"Yes, indeed," said one Liberal sympathizer, "it was a regular earthquake."

"Exactly," agreed Mr. Kleopfer, "quite a landscape, quite a landscape!"

Berlin's Building.

Building Inspector J. Cook has intimated that permits for new buildings for the year had been aggregating a total of $350,000. The larger portion of this amount included the new $100,000 public school, and for private residences, over 200 being erected during 1911.

Land Vacant Sixty Years.

For the last sixty years a piece of land situated in the best residential section of St. Thomas, Ont., has been lying without building or tenants owing to the fact that a clear title could not be secured. The ownership of this property was decided out of court. The original owner, Rev. John McIntyre, emigrated to Australia some sixty years ago, having raised the money by placing a mortgage to his brother, the late Archibald McIntyre of St. Thomas, who fenced the property and paid the taxes until his death. It has been paid by his heirs.

No communications had been received from the descendants of Rev. J. McIntyre in Australia for 40 years. As the heirs of the late Archibald McIntyre wished to get a title, they applied to the commissioners at Ottawa three years ago for a deed as the mortgage had been destroyed by fire. On the day the deed arrived a claim was put in to get possession of the property, which had just been sold for $8,000, which will be equally divided.

SAILING THE AIR.

How It Feels to Soar Aloft in a Balloon or Aeroplane.

ALL SENSE OF HEIGHT LOST.

Consequently There is No Feeling of Dizziness or Giddiness, and After Rising a Few Hundred Feet There is No Sensation of Speed.

Comparatively few persons can look down from a great height without a creepy sensation running through the nerves and chasing down the spine, and one would naturally think these unpleasant symptoms would be intensified if one were to rise several hundreds of feet in the air in a flying machine. But that idea is a mistake, according to Mr. Charles G. Turner in an article in the Pall Mall Magazine, in which he tells how beginners are taught the use of the aeroplane and describes the sensations of flight.

He says:

"The manner in which a course of flight lessons begins depends chiefly on the weather. If it is fine and calm a pupil is at once taken out for passenger flights, sitting behind the teacher or beside him, according to the type of machine, and having nothing to think about except the novelty of his experiences and the new aspect in which he sees familiar things.

"His first flight is a great event in the career of the pupil, and when it is over he is anxious for the next. His estimate of the difficulties that lie before him is more modest, and he is ready to beseege his instructor with questions. He climbed into the passenger's seat and gripped the stanchions with both hands. He need not have gripped them quite so hard, for he soon found that the motion of the machine was not in the least disturbing.

"To start it a mechanic stood behind the main planes and gave the propeller a turn and suddenly the machine was giving out a tremendous roar and making the machine vibrate. Other mechanics were holding on to the tail booms to prevent the aeroplane from shooting forward before the pilot was ready.

"But almost immediately the passenger observed the pilot hold up one hand as a signal, and on the instant the machine plunged forward over the ground like a swift motorcar. Before he had time to observe and note his feelings the sensations had changed. The machine was traveling forward with perfect smoothness, the noise of the engine had curiously softened down, the ground no longer raced beneath the machine, and he realized that he was flying and that already he was twenty, forty, fifty feet above the ground.

"Flying has been compared to many things, but in truth no comparison is good. Perhaps I may correct one or two common but false notions concerning it.

"There is no sense of traveling at a great height. There is not the slightest danger of giddiness. To me this was no surprise, for, as every balloonist knows, it matters not whether he looks down from 20 or 2,000 feet—the sensation of height is absent.

"To take my own case, I cannot look down a 100 foot cliff for many seconds before feeling unsafe, but I can look down from a balloon that is two miles above ground and can gaze at the scene below for half an hour without a qualm. It is the experience of every aeronaut.

"It is impossible also with reasonable accuracy without the aid of an aneroid to estimate one's height. You see trees far below you, but they are high enough for you to appear to be mere bushes, but you cannot tell whether you are 400 feet up or 700.

"Again, the sense of speed is almost entirely lost when you have attained a height of 800 or 400 feet. The ground

The Auto Scorchers.

Lawrence Mott, who writes wild West Canadian stories, tells a yarn which will be appreciated by motorists. He says we ought not to condemn auto scorchers without hearing their side of the speed question.

"Hasty condemnation is always a mistake," he says. "Once on a Canadian railway I got the train for a five-minute lunch. The man beside me was eating something in a great hurry, and when he finished he snapped at the waiter:

"Call that a ham sandwich? It's the worst I ever tackled. No taste at all and so small you could hardly see it."

"You've got yer ticket," said the waiter. "This here's yer ham sandwich."

A Statesman's Son.

Capt. Walter Long, A.D.C. to His Royal Highness the Governor-General, is thirty-two years old, and has had a brilliant career and a long list of honors. He served frequently mentioned in despatches, and received the D.S.O. Capt. Long is the eldest son of Rt. Hon. Walter Hume Long, who has held many high Cabinet offices, including that of the Secretary for Ireland, and who was one of the three in the running, the other day, for Mr. Balfour's late position. Like his distinguished father—who is the idol of the squires and yeomen of England—Capt. Long excels in field sports of all kinds. He is a good polo and cricket player, an excellent shot, and a keen cross-country rider. For three years he discharged the arduous duties of adjutant of that famous regiment, the Scots Greys—Toronto Star Weekly.

Writing of the work of the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, says "The Hon. W. Wakefield says: 'Examined for the mission staff there is a doctor in the northern peninsula of Newfoundland, or along the coast of Labrador from the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Cape Chidley.' Instead of debating whether to call in Dr. Smith, who lives two streets away, suppose you had to travel from the back of a pack, or from a railway train or motor car, but not in a railway train or motor car, but on a sledge drawn by dogs over the ice, snow, or in a small, rickety boat, along the wildest and roughest coast in the whole world.

passes below you very slowly, while if you get up to 800 or 1,000 feet it is only by steadily watching the ground that you perceive that you are moving. Yet all the while there is that steady gale of wind upon the face that informs you of your speed.

"In descending a pupil notices that the speed of the ground rapidly accelerates. The chances are that he cannot distinguish the moment when the landing wheels again come into contact with the earth. The machine moves forward over the ground until its momentum is exhausted, and he and the pilot then descend from their seats."

The Doctor's Sin of Omission.

Dorman in his "Primitive Superstitions" tells of an Indian who had been badly hurt by a grizzly bear. The medicine man prescribed a mixture of rattlesnakes' heads, wornout mosquitoes and chewing tobacco, seasoned with petroleum and red pepper, of which the patient was ordered to take a pint every half hour. "He was a brave man, but he died with the utmost expedition," and at the trial the quest was agreed that that death was due to the doctor's omitting to dance and yell.

Peterboro Inter Fast R

The Lindsay intermediaries were a tree at Peterboro on Friday afternoon their first game of the mid-winter season against the fast Peterboro septette. The overwhelming, one-sided, unlucky score of 13 to 1 is the cause of much comment of the part of the Lindsay fans this afternoon, especially those who failed to accompany the locals on their excursion to the eastern diggings. It is only too true, the O.H.A. intermediate season did not do quite to the liking of the local fans, but after hearing all the excuses (and there must be many) the concluding editor has come to the conclusion that although the intermediaries were trimmed good and plenty yet there is some hope for the future. That is to say, on the first game last night the locals displayed marked ability, and with a change or two on the line-up, combined with a few more practices to round it into proper condition, they will demonstrate that they are in running. There are some fans here who are sanguine that in the return game the locals will win out in a tidy score. However, there is one use counting chickens before they are hatched, nor is there any use in saying the fact that the local team received theirs in the place where the chicken got the On the showing last night Peterboro had the better team; they won by a score of 13 to 1. In fact as far as actual playing is concerned they had the odds in their favor, but their shooting was erratic. Time and time again Lindsay forwards, along with Spratt the crack defence player broke through the Peterboro defence and sailed to the nets.
