LANDMARK DESTROYED

An unusual log house on the farm of D. Ferris, on the 5th con. of Ops, about three miles south of Lindsay, was consumed by a fire Sunday night about 8 o'clock. Many Lindsay residents saw the reflection in the sky and thought it was a farmer's wife burning. The old shack was close to the river bank, and was used as a shelter by picknickers who were wont to dine there during the summer months. It is supposed that the building was burned by the carelessness of some boys from Lindsay who skated over the river yesterday afternoon, and who were warming themselves at an old fire place which was in the building. It was amongst the first of the old log houses put up in Ops, and was built 75 years ago by the late John Ferris.

DON'T STOP

(By Rudyard Kipling) If you stop to find out what your wages will be And how they will clothe and feed you, Willie, my son, don't you go on the Sea, For the Sea will never need you. If you ask for the reason of every command And argue with people about you, Willie, my son, don't you go on the land, For the Land will do better with you. If you stop to consider, the work you have done And to boast what your labor is worth, dear, Angels may come for you, Willie, my son, But you'll never be wanted on Earth, dear.

Former Y. M. C. A. Secretary in Pulpit

The congregation of the Cambridge St. Methodist Church listened attentively and with much interest to a sermon delivered by Rev. F. A. Robinson, of Toronto, last night. The reverend gentleman was at one time a resident of Lindsay, having been Secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., and is well known to a large number of Lindsay citizens. Leaving the Association work he entered the Department of Evangelism of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, of which department he is now Secretary, being associated with Rev. Dr. Shaver, of the Department of Social Reform. Rev. Mr. Robinson's address last night was inspiring and very interesting, dealing with a phase of his work in visiting mining and lumber camps, construction work, etc. While in town Rev. Mr. Robinson was a guest of Dr. Clarke.

PALESTINE Palestine, Dec. 28.—The Misses Florence Greaves, Effie Macmillan, Arrhina McPhail, Rachel Macmillan and Alice Greaves, of the L.C.I., are home for the holidays. Mr. Malcolm Logan, who has been in the west for some time, returned to his home for the winter. Miss Effie Macmillan is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Macmillan. Mr. Will Macmillan is at home for the holidays. Mr. Elquhart is visiting at the home of his mother and his sister. Mr. Elmer Fraser, of Kiskadee, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Will Dollitt.

A number of young people from here attended the Christmas tree concert in Islay school on Wednesday evening.

We wish to congratulate Miss Elquhart, our teacher, on the splendid success of the concert and Christmas tree which was held in the school on Thursday evening. The pupils were well trained and conducted themselves in a very creditable manner. One of the main features of the program was a reproduction of war, which was conducted by the pupils and thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The violin selection rendered by Mr. Elmer Fraser, accompanied by Mr. Will Dollitt were very much appreciated and received the applause of all. Stella Claus did not fail to appear and both old and young were delighted with the many presents he found on the tree for them. The program ended by the school singing a chorale entitled "Our Emblem," which was followed by the national anthem. Miss Edna McArthur is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil McArthur. The Misses M. Graham and M. Truman are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Macmillan. We are sorry to learn of the illness of Miss Maggie J. Macmillan at the home of her uncle, Mr. Duncan MacNabb, Woodville. We wish Miss Macmillan a speedy recovery.

Joffre Is Strictest of Disciplinarians, But Is Very Popular

France had had a Gen. Joffre in 1870 the Germans would not have won. This is the unanimous opinion of those who know the masterful personality of Gen. Joffre, the Commander-in-Chief of the French army. He is, like our own Lord Kitchener, an organizer of victory. He does not believe in flashes of genius. He knows that long and careful preparation is necessary. He has been at the head of the French army for three years. Never for a single waking hour in those three years has he forgotten the purpose for which he was appointed—to prepare for the struggle in which France is engaged to-day. He is a stout man, heavily built, who, in times of peace, lives the ordinary life of a professional Parisian with his wife and daughters. Gen. Joffre is a restful man. His wide brow, under close-cropped white hair, is tranquil. His blue eyes are calm and clear. Beneath a heavy white moustache his lips are firm; they show his teeth a little when he talks. He does not talk much. He has a vast capacity for silence. "AS HARD AS NAILS." That is Gen. Joffre at home. In the field as in his office at the Ministry of War he is another man, a man "as hard as nails." He gives orders and expects them to be carried out exactly; if they are not there is trouble. He may sympathize with the incompetent, but he cannot overlook failure. After the manoeuvres of last year he dismissed five generals. France, who had known little of this masterful Chief of the General

GENERAL JOFFRE.

Staff before, suddenly became aware that its armies were being re-organized by an exceptional man. His career has been exceptional from the first. When war was declared in 1870 he had scarcely finished one year at the Polytechnique (which corresponds to our Kingston Royal Military Academy). At 18, therefore, he was given his commission, and as an artillery subaltern took part in the defence of Paris during the siege. He attracted attention; he was employed in the reconstructing of the Paris fortifications which followed immediately upon the war. The forts at Enghien were of his designing, and one day Marshal MacMahon, after inspecting his work, put a hand upon his shoulder and said, "I congratulate you, Captain Joffre." Captain at 22! So well had he done that he was sent to Pontarlier to assist with the defence. "This is all very well," he said, "but I don't want to make fortifications all my life. I want to command troops."

HERVES WERE BAD Hands Would Tremble So She Could Not Hold Paper to Read. When the nerves become shaky the whole system seems to become unstrung and a general feeling of collapse occurs, as the heart works in sympathy with the nerves.

Mrs. Wm. Weaver, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes: "I doctored for a year, for my heart and nerves, with three different doctors, but they did not seem to know what was the matter with me. My nerves got so bad at last that I could not hold a paper in my hands to read, the way they trembled. I gave up doctoring things I could not get better. A lady living a few doors from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so to please her I did, and I am thankful to-day for doing so, without help."

BACK FROM FAR NORTH

M. VANASSE HAS FUND OF INFORMATION ABOUT ESKIMOS. Historiographer of Capt. Bernier's Expedition Tells of Native Lamps Which Alford the Little, Light and Heat Which Suffices the Eskimo During the Long Winter—Average Length of Life About 40.

Special reports of the officers who were appointed to take a census of the inhabitants of the Far North have been compiled by the census and statistics branch. These reports are of more than ordinary interest at least from an ethnological, if not from a statistical point of view.

M. Fabian Vanasse, historiographer of the Canadian Government Steamship "Arctic" under Captain Bernier, was appointed to take the census of Baffin Island and took in addition the census of Kilkenek, or Port Burwell, on the south side of Hudson Straits. His report contains the following interesting remarks as to conditions among the Eskimos: "The lamps which are used by hunters to light and heat their igloos, as also to cook with, are nothing more than a stone block of about eight to ten inches in circumference in which is carved a hole in the shape of a cavity about three inches deep. This cavity is filled with seal oil, then a wick made of dry moss is placed around this bowl, and when this primitive wick is well soaked with oil it is lighted. The lamp gives a dim light and produces a heat of about two or three degrees. This affords all the light and all the heat which is enjoyed by the Eskimo during his existence in his house of snow. The yearly value of the hunt for each Eskimo hunter is placed at $300 or $1,000 on the coast. If this forsaken one of civilization were living in the proximity of our competitive markets, if he knew the value of the products of the hunt, if he were more concerned about the future, he might live in modest comfort, in spite of all the inconveniences he has to suffer from the inhospitable climate where God has placed him. But unfortunately the Eskimo has no idea of the economic values he holds in his hands after his slaughter of 10 or 20 polar bears, his capture of 25, 30 and sometimes 100 foxes, of two, three or four narwhals, of eight to ten wolves, of hundreds of large salmon, each weighing 10, 20, or 30 pounds, and which he throats to his dogs. Besides this he is charged with the year by the skimmers of the sea who visit him to collect his furs. At the trading counters he exchanges for a few pounds of biscuits and tobacco, a few quarts of molasses, pipes, matches and some few yards of shabby cotton goods, his silky furs of the greatest economic value.

Generally speaking, the Eskimo does not attain a very advanced age. Some have been met, however, aged 60 to 65 years. The average length of life of this people is from 35 to 40 years. There is no settled age for domestic pairing. There are couples of nine and twelve years; then children live together in the igloo as man and wife. The chief provides regularly for the wants of his companion. After a few months, and even a few years of this apprenticeship, the rife life, if any friction occurs between the couple separate without noise, and for the time being he can hardly ever agree. One can hardly honor with the name of wife of the unions formed under the igloo of the Eskimo. These unions are, for the most part, simply promiscuous pairings. But it must be said, to the honor of the Eskimos of Baffin Island, that this state of affairs tends more and more to disappear among these tribes. The zealous work of the Anglican unions among this people during thirty years has largely contributed to diminish, or even extirpate entirely, the practice of destroyer of the family and domestic happiness."

The visit to the domicile, or the igloo, M. Vanasse writes, is not what one may think. The igloo is of circular form, eight feet in diameter and as much in height. It is made of blocks of snow, the door is at the bottom, on a level with the ground, it is about one foot and a half wide and two feet high. It is not every one that can pass through it easily. To get in one must at first get on his knees, then lie flat on his stomach and slide in, snake-like, for a distance of about ten or twelve feet in the door. One never gets in and comes out for this reason. The tube is not kept in an exaggerated state of cleanliness. Once in the igloo you are asked to sit on a block of snow, which is covered with a deer-skin. In less than five minutes you are covered with the white hairs of this fur. But after a few visits to the domicile one does not notice these small details. The interpreter is alongside of you. Naturally this brave man, the sage of the village, has no idea of what constitutes a census. He is to be made to understand the questions put to the head of the igloo. There are English and French words which have no equivalent in the language of the Eskimo. Thus, for example, the words "years," "months," "days," "hours" are denunciations of time absolutely ignored by the natives. These are so many mysteries to them. "What is your age?" was invariably answered by "none savi mi." Then, M. Vanasse writes, he had to enter a conversation carried on almost entirely by gestures than by the voice, with the interpreter, in order to make him understand the question. This done, the interpreter and the hunter, or the wife of the latter in his absence, made endless calculations. It was a review of all the important events in the country from as far back as the hunter could remember, and the farthest away event was used as a basis to determine as near as possible the date of his birth.

MARRIED. ANDERSON—IVESON.—At the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday, December 30th, by Rev. E. Hindson, B.A., brother-in-law of the bride, John Ernest Anderson, B.A., of Lindsay, to Mayme A. Iveson, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Iveson, Metcalfe, Ont.

IDENTIFYING HER. "Brown, do you know the lady across the street?" asked Smith. "Let me see," replied Brown, "she certainly looks familiar. That's my wife's dress, my daughter's hat, my mother-in-law's parasol. Why yes! That's our cook."

English Schoolboy "Howlers." The following answers were given in an examination in an English school: "James the First claimed the throne of England through his grandmother because he had no father." "Monarchy is the state in which a man has but one wife." "Joan of Arc was the wife of Noah." "Julius Caesar had a cadaverous appetite, and before he died he ate two brutes."

Mouth of a Whale. The whale rarely, if ever, swallows anything larger than a herring. Although the head is of enormous size, from one-quarter to one-third the length of the body, and the mouth fifteen to twenty feet long and six to eight feet wide, the opening of the gullet is not larger than a man's fist.

Sweet Oil. "Gertie," said a mother to her five-year-old daughter, "here's a dime. Run down to the drug store and get me a bottle of sweet oil." "I object to Mr. Dobson as a jurymen," said the opposing lawyer, now a prominent Manitoba lawyer, to the student judge, with a surprised look, for this was not on the program. "He is working for Robbins," was the reply. "Working for Robbins. How's that?" "Pressing his 'Hay'."—Saturday Night.

At Last the Socialists

A committee of the German Humanitarian League, prudently dating after five months of war, and with the tide turning against the Fatherland, they propose to desert the ship to Socialists in Europe and America, denouncing the crimes of the Kaiser and the Prussian military caste and urging the "comrades" to rise and destroy the German war party. With the honorable exception of Liebknecht this belated appeal is the first indication that the German Socialists are dissatisfied with the fruits of the Prussian war policy. At the commencement of the European conflict the great Socialist party in the Reichstag were heart and soul with the Warlord, and unanimously voted all necessary supplies. Now, after five months of war, and with the tide turning against the Fatherland, they propose to desert the ship to Socialists in Europe and America, denouncing the crimes of the Kaiser and the Prussian military caste and urging the "comrades" to rise and destroy the German war party. You cannot have your cake and eat it. You cannot take a chance of pulling off a successful practical cruise and then hope to escape punishment by striking the Jolly Roger when you see that success is impossible. The German Socialists are just five months after the fair.—Beck's Weekly.

To Help Settlers.

The Canada Gazette states that, owing to the widespread failure of crops in the Moose Jaw, Swift Current, Maple Creek, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge land districts, it has become necessary for numbers of the settlers to leave their lands for the purpose of securing employment, and the intervention of the Government has also become necessary to provide such settlers with work, and in some instances with immediate relief, in order to prevent hardship to themselves and their families. The Government has, therefore, decided that the time of all homesteaders in these districts spent in employment elsewhere this year shall be counted as if they performed the residence duties.

Big Fish Story.

The biggest pike that was probably ever taken from a stream in this section was brought into town recently by Messrs. James Skilton and John Lockhart, who corroborated a big fish story by producing the goods, and causing the Doubting Thomases to restore their faith by sight. The fish, which measured 1 3/4 feet and weighed 21 pounds, was caught in the Mud River, by Mr. John Cassidy, of Chestport, and required the combined efforts of the Chestport and Walkerton talent to land it. Served on a side dish, it later played a big part in reducing the high cost of living in certain quarters here.—Walkerton Herald-Times.

Undue Pressure.

A student named Robbins, when a sophomore in a New Brunswick college, had paid considerable attention to Miss Hay, a fair co-ed in the same institution, but towards the close of the season, James Skilton and John Lockhart, who corroborated a big fish story by producing the goods, and causing the Doubting Thomases to restore their faith by sight.
