CAPITAL VERSUS LABOR: A SOCIALISTIC PROBLEM

Eloquent Lecture by Eugene V. Debs, the Socialistic Candidate for the United States Presidency—The Labor Leader urges fidelity to Socialistic Principles.

Eugene V. Debs, the socialistic candidate for the presidency of the United States, addressed a most attentive audience at the Academy of Music last week. Mr. Debs was the head and front of the socialistic movement in America and for the time leader of the great railroad strike in Chicago in 1904.

But says one who knew him then he is greatly changed now. He is just as tall, just as large, just as forceful. But he has the added gravity of ten hard years. What he has lost in violence he has made up in quiet intensity. Perhaps, says a writer to the News, those days in jail, of which he is in no way ashamed, gave him time to ponder and decide that this was not the time for the whirlwind, but the still small voice which after all makes the best propaganda.

Mr. Debs has a rough and ready eloquence partly natural, partly induced by a wide acquaintance with the ills which afflict the working classes and partly from a pretty wide reading not only of socialistic authors, but of philosophers, sages and poets. His word painting is vivid, his language strong, but never violent, and his intense earnestness commands not only respect but a certain amount of conviction, as was evidenced by the frequent and hearty applause which punctuated his address.

Mr. D. Cinnamon who introduced Mr. Debs to the audience, spoke as follows: "I assure you that I am pleased to see such a representative audience of the citizens of Lindsay present to hear Mr. Debs deliver his celebrated lecture upon the social questions of the day and feel that I am glad that very many of you will go home from this place having different opinions and ideas concerning this question than when you came. I met a good Presbyterian the other day and on speaking to him about Debs, he asked the question, 'Who is Debs?' and I informed him that Mr. Debs was the socialistic candidate for the presidency of the United States. He said: 'That thing's already dead in Lindsay from the gang that belongs to it.' (Oh, oh)

I am not acquainted with all who profess to be socialists, continued Mr. Cinnamon. I said to that man, would you not condemn the church, by its members, neither would you condemn Christianity because of the inconsistencies of some professing Christians. I believe that true Christianity and Socialism are about the same thing, and I told him I believed the same that he did. We have a great many people who profess Christianity who do not know what Christianity means. No wonder there may be a few people who profess to be socialists, who really do not know what Socialism means. There are many who will agree with me, when I say that I am willing and ready to receive with open arms, any system or organization that has for its fundamental principles the uplifting of mankind that advocates and believes in the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man and that practices and preaches the Golden Rule. That's what the world wants, whether it is socialism or any other name.

Mr. Debs is the greatest platform speaker in America (Applause). I had an American traveler in the store the other day. He said he hadn't heard Debs, but the reputation he had in the United States was second to Abraham Lincoln. I feel proud to have the honor of introducing such a man to a Lindsay audience, not because he is an American orator, but because he has a purpose in life and that is "the uplifting of his fellow-men." I take great pleasure in introducing Mr. EUGENE V. DEBS

Mr. Debs, who was much applauded rising said "Ladies and Gentlemen—It's a wonderful age in which we live, an age in which mechanical miracles, or revelations in science, marvellous industrial developments and world wide social unrest. The history of the human race consists of a long struggle of class struggles through all the centuries of the past. The great mass of the people have patiently borne the burdens of the race, and for the most part, have died in despair. The central and controlling fact is the evolution of industry. There is no argument in abuse, no logic in contradiction. I shall address my remarks to your reason. It is labor that smites at the locked door of earth's treasure chambers.

Shall not labor come to its own? Who shall doubt it? Every social system has its period of birth, development and maturity. Every state of society that outlives its usefulness prepares the people for the coming of a better one. The new principle is being enthroned, not yet understood by the great body of the people. It seems strange, but it is nevertheless true that mankind have always found their conquerors and oppressors—they have always crucified their Saviour. Two thousand years ago, almost there was a man appeared on the earth who had a revolutionary message for the children of men. It was He who said, "Bear ye one another's burdens," it was He who said "Love your brother men"; it was He who said "Let He who is, great among you be the servant of all the rest." He had no desire to shine in society. He knew that true riches were of the spirit, and, not of the person. In every age there have been a few men, splendidly in advance of their times, and they have paved the way for better conditions for the human race. We are under obligation to them and we can only discharge that obligation by doing something in the interests of those who are to come after us. Whether a man be a Socialist or not, it is impossible for him to be satisfied with conditions as they are. In so much wealth, in so much poverty, in so much misery, the world is not yet civilized. The revolutionary forces are still in operation. Let us trace it. A century ago when your great-grandfather lived, this was a new country. Agriculture was the chief pursuit. Benjamin Franklin understood the value of the foot, when he said that man has a tool-using animal.

Tell me what that made a nation feeds itself, and I will tell you its history, social conditions and what it registers on the thermometer of civilization. Work has been subdivided and specialized. While the tool and production has been socialized, the ownership is still vested in the individual. John D. Rockefeller is a fully developed capitalist, of billion dollars. His income is $33,000 per hour. (Voice, "Just half of what I am worth.")

It takes a working man at a dollar and a half a day, just seventy-three years to get what Rockefeller gets per hour for doing nothing. We Socialists object to a system which enables a man to accumulate more than he can use, whilst the majority have nothing. The object of Socialism is to share the wealth equally among the people. The 70,000 men at Carnegie's mills produce by their labors thousands upon thousands of tons of steel, and yet do not own a single cog in it. He amasses a stupendous fortune, while the men that do the work remain in poverty. A large number of our people are in a state of poverty, their life is a continuous struggle.

In discussing the mining question, Mr. Debs remarked, "In America there are about 750,000 miners. They work hard and faithfully. They are producers of wealth. They ought to have all the comforts and privileges of wealth. I have not been satisfied to enjoy my own farside, I have gone down to see these men work and have said to myself, 'These miners are life convicts, there is no hope for them; they are working like galley slaves, they have no homes in the proper sense of the term. It is possible for love and object poverty to dwell beneath the same roof.'"

A pathetic description of the sorrows of a miner's wife and home was then given by Mr. Debs. Be it understood, he was asked, so long as the working man is in bondage, the capitalist himself is not free. If you inspect the two ends of a chain you will find the other end of the chain is fastened to the master. Is there anyone fool enough to imagine that the Czar of Russia is a free man? He has transgressed the moral law. Does anyone imagine that John D. Rockefeller is a truly free or happy man? Far from it, it is true he has material wealth in abundance. It is also true that, in its accumulation he has transgressed the moral law. There is one Judge that all of his wealth cannot bribe. He does not mingle freely with the lower class, he does not know the meaning of human brotherhood. He will be reduced to the democracy of the dust. What will he wealth avail him in his last hour? Absolutely nothing. Shrouds have no pockets, we leave this world precisely as we came into it.

It is impossible to wrong our fellow-men without injuring ourselves. You cannot save yourself at the expense of your brother. Wealth should not be the end, but the means of an end. We insist that the competitive age in which we live has in a large measure run its own course.

Competition that was natural, one hundred years ago, has become a self-inflicted most barbarous warfare, and the great army of workers are compelled to fight each other for existence. Here is your country you are relatively prosperous to-day. Sooner or later you are bound to have over-production which together with under-consumption is certain to help bring about the desired end and which will be but the harbinger of peace on earth and good will towards men. (Applause).

Why have we an army of tramps to-day and not a century ago? There has been an industrial revolution because a great deal more has been produced, than can be absorbed. Here's a man out of work; the times have become hard and he is dismissed; there is no longer any use for his labor power. He goes to some other place and the next, and the next looking for work. After a time, his last penny gone, he wends his way to the poor office. There is a letter for him; it is from the cottage home he had left behind him. The rent is due, it cannot be paid; his family are crying for food. This is not an isolated case. There are thousands of them in all great cities when periods of depression sets in. His sensibilities become blundered, his self-respect deserts him, he becomes the enemy of his fellowmen—he is a tramp. It is sometimes but a few steps into crime. In the United States we have about a million of these degenerates, also 600,000 thieves, gamblers and burglars, and 30,000 fallen women. These are the fruits of an outgrown social system.

The appeal with ever-increasing force to every thoughtful man and woman in the land. It should be abolished, not only in the interests of working men, but also in the interests of humanity. The middle-man is now in process of extinction.

A few men own our railroad, telegraph, telephone express, fleets, oil-fields, gas fields, coal mines, etc. All means of wealth in this country are being steadily into the hands of the few without regard to the great mass of the people. It has been reduced to figures that if the railroads were owned and operated by the people, one could ride across the country for merely one dollar.

Take business men themselves, is it not a fact that those virtuous of business are trying to understand the bringing failure on modern competition. The capitalist whether he will or not is compelled to reduce wages. Business men in competition are compelled to resort to very questionable dealing to keep their heads above water. Take two Christian business men, they are in competition. Each is trying to understand the other. One sees the downfall of his opponent. Does he mourn? Not a bit, he is glad of it. We are now merging from competition, into a co-operative basis. An honest business man is a contradiction of terms. Our economic relations determine in a large measure our feelings toward each other. I would not if I could check the centralization of capital, for it is the beginning of the end. Business men in these days do not love each other. It is so difficult to love the man you have been trying all week to defeat. (Applause).

Socialism is diametrically opposite to Anarchism; Socialism is the perfection of government, government for and by and through the people. It is pure democracy, it is social order, it is real civilization. Do you not think it is a beautiful world? Isn't the human a social being, is it because we ignore the social character of the human being that we are afflicted with so many ills. Profiting profit is more important today than human life. Socialism is the pith and marrow of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Francis E. Willard, when she first took up the temperance work said, "Drift is the cause of much poverty." In after years, having taken a social view of the question she said, "I am convinced that a great deal of drunkenness is caused through poverty."

You operate the mails, why not operate the railroads. You would not transfer the mails for if you did you would never be able to send a letter across the continent for two cents. You can operate the telegraph, telephone and express just as the mail.

In conclusion Mr. Debs said that his audience might say it was all right in theory, and that it was a beautiful dream, but they must remember that Stephenson and Columbus were dreamers.

Mr. Harte opened up his stables and turned out all his cattle to provide room for the horses, and every place was packed full. The proceeds amounted to upwards of $52, the baskets averaging $1.30 each. Superb baskets for 25c. The auctioneer, Mr. J. H. ly brought down the douse, while Sergt. Mitchell sang several songs in the good old English style which delighted the audience. Mr. Robert as he is a very high Adder, and Whiteside of Franklin helped along kept the prices of baskets around the dollar mark. We extend our best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Harte for their part in the social and hope to be able to record other pleasing events under the same roof.

Mr. O. R. Stacey, our popular merchant and postmaster is doing a rushing business this winter.

We noticed Mr. Vansickler in our village recently, looking as though Lindsay and married life agreed with him.

Mr. James H. Staples is making great preparations this winter for a bouncing summer with hogs, as he has purchased the whey of the Fleetwood cheese factory for the coming year of bran and chop. James is a hustler and no doubt will make the enterprise pay well.

Mr. Herb. Brown is busy taking out wood and timber for fencing purposes, and by the looks of things he is going in for improvements.

The letter from the town clerk in reference to the investment of a portion of the Collegiate Institute Sinking fund in debentures of the city of Hull, now held by the Amelius Jarvis Co., was left in the hands of the Mayor with power to make enquiries, and to make the said investment if he deemed advisable.

The auditor's report for 1905, attached to the annual statement of the receipts and expenditures, etc was read clause by clause and adopted.

The statement prepared by the town clerk of the coming year's expenditure was gone into carefully and numerous reductions were made in the same.

The town physician and medical health officer will be asked to submit an annual report to council for last year.

When the question of the grant for the Sylvester band came up the Mayor said he supposed the grant was a regular one.

Ald. O'Reilly said it was, and that a by-law or agreement to that effect had been made last year.

Mayor Vrooman thought Ald. O'Reilly was mistaken, but the latter was positive, and he asked Clerk Knowlson to fetch the document.

Mr. Knowlson did not make any attempt to do so, and on being asked why he did not get them, explained that there was neither by-law or agreement. A form agreement had been drawn up, but as the requisite signatures were not attached it was not valid.

On motion the secretary-treasurer of the Sylvester band will be asked by the clerk to render an account of their financial standing at the present date.

Ald. Maunders, Rea and McFadden were appointed a committee to investigate the condition of the dumping ground and the advisability of continuing the services of the caretaker.

The by-law re the appointment of a town solicitor was strongly opposed by Ald. O'Reilly who said that the council had no right to remove the solicitor unless there was some charge of misdemeanor, dishonesty, etc.

Mayor Vrooman said the council had a perfect right to do as they pleased. A man can be removed by a vote of council.

Ald. O'Reilly and the Mayor had quite a discussion, the former accusing the latter of acting the Czar over the members of council. The discussion and objection of Ald. O'Reilly had no effect on the former opinion of council for on motion of Messrs. Begg and Fisher the by-law appointing a town solicitor was referred back to the council for its final reading.

low as the lowest, with a first-class up-to-date stock to choose from. The highest prices paid for farmers' produce; also wool, hides-and sheepskins.

We are having the finest winter ever seen by even the oldest settler. We have just enough snow for good sleighing and the roads are all that could be desired.

Our lumber men are busily engaged in getting out their timber for the summer's cut. They are also shipping large quantities of bark. The open winter and recent thaw that interfered so much with the lumbering industry in other districts were not felt so much here, as there was enough snow left in the woods for good sleighing. The mercury dropped to about 40 below zero last week, and consequently the winter roads are good.

The train men have had very little trouble this winter up to the present. No drifts to contend with as in past winters.

Rev. Mr. Barry has just closed a very successful revival in the Methodist church. Several new members have joined and there has been a great awakening of interest in everything connected with the church work.

Mr. Balfour, of Saskatchewan, who has been visiting for some time at the home of Mr. Leith, has returned to his far western home.

The Edmond's Concert Company are playing for three nights this week to crowded houses.
