Little Local Lines

Warden Parkin was in town last Thursday on county business. The Bell Telephone Company has granted the Toronto operators a seven-hour day. Rev. Fred Wilkinson, of St. Peter's church, Toronto, preached in St. Paul's on Sunday. A reception service was held in Cambridge street Methodist church, on Sunday evening, which was also Communion Sunday. Mr. J. W. Flavell, of Toronto, has tendered his resignation as a member of the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto. Mr. Jos. Moehan and Mr. James Warde delivered two fine teams of heavy draught horses to Mr. Stenair at Cunningham on Saturday last. Mr. W. H. Simpson has sold his speedy pacer, Joe Allen, to Mr. W. P. Robinson, proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, Gooderham, for a good price. The thermometer at Minden registered 30 below zero on Tuesday, the 12th inst. The most severe snow storm of the season preceded it on Sunday, five or six inches having fallen, it is said. The Otanabee Navigation Company, of Peterborough, has received steam-boat business upon the waters of the Otanabee River and the Kawartha Lakes.

At a recent meeting of the Durham Old Boys' Association, Toronto, an address was presented to the President, Mr. James L. Hughes, (brother of Col. Sam.) appreciative of the life and character of their father, the late John Hughes, of Cartwright. Mr. Graham, leader of the Ontario Opposition, has introduced an amendment to the Liquor License Act repealing the clause requiring a three-fifths majority for the adoption of local option.

Mitchell correspondence Stratford Herald: Mr. Newton, of Lindsay, played the organ in Knox church on Sunday last on trial. For a number of Sundays lately the choir have had the privilege of hearing a number, and Mr. Newton has left a good impression. It is altogether likely that he will get the position as organist and choir leader.

During the past year the total income of the Stratford waterworks was $23,914, and the working expenses $7,757. This left gross earnings of $16,157. The interest, and sinking fund amounted to $9,811. Several hundred dollars was paid over to the City Council, as office rent, and the balance was spent in extensions to the system.

The Imperial Government has appointed Capt. H. S. Rogers, R.E., son of Col. H. C. Rogers, postmaster of Peterborough, to the position of Surveyor of Prisons for England and Wales. Capt. Rogers is a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and has served 13 years in the Imperial army in India. For the last two years he has been on the War Office Staff, London. Before entering on his new duties he will spend a month in Canada visiting his parents.

The Dundas Telephone, Light & Power Company are making progress, and the telephone will be in operation as soon after the opening of spring as the poles can be erected. Satisfactory arrangements are about to be closed with the Bell Company, by which the Bell will connect with the Dundas Central, thus giving a line to Lindsay and long distance lines. The Dundas Company will also run a line to the boundary of Lobbaygeon where the Bell will join and give connection with the Bobcaygeon Central. It is also quite possible that the local Company may extend its system on the north side of Bobcaygeon. At present contracts have been made for poles, 25 feet long and 6 inch tops, sufficient for eighteen miles, and an order has been given for a switch board, and wire for eighteen miles.

The Grand trunk flyer which is scheduled to leave here at 9.23, and reach Peterborough at 10 o'clock, p. m., was more than an hour late on Saturday night. The cause of the trouble was a break to some part of the engine between Peterborough and Omemee. As there is no telegraph station intervening the officials at Peterborough, says the Examiner, were at a loss to locate just where the train was disabled. The distress whistle was blown, but the sound did not reach the city, so that no aid was sent out. The break was partly repaired and, being a down grade, the train was easily brought into the city. The action of the frost, followed by higher temperature, it is understood, the cause of an uneven road bed in places along the line, and it is believed that this was the reason for the break to the engine.

Attention is called to the advertisement of the Minnehaha Mining & Smelting Company, which appears on page 12. The property is in the Rainy River district, and the reports of the assays published are certainly of a most encouraging character. Mr. A. W. Sparling and Mr. W. S. Collins of Toronto, have been in Lindsay and neighborhood this week soliciting stock. They have with them specimens of the ore, which have been seen in this office. Parties interested in mining should certainly examine them when they get the opportunity.

WHAT WE ARE GETTING

AMAZING IDEAS THAT BRING ENGLISH GIRLS TO CANADA.

"A Quid a Week, Grub, and a Chance to Splice the Boss"—Queer Characters Who Apply At Canada's Offices In Britain For Information About the Dominion—Some Expect Free Fares.

With the new year, writes the London, Eng., correspondent of The Toronto Star, a more strenuous emigration campaign has been initiated to procure settlers from the British Isles for Canada than ever before, and all circumstances point to the numbers of emigrants leaving the British Isles in the spring being far in excess of all previous years. Since Mr. Bruce Walker has been in control several innovations have been opened out, York, Aberdeen, and Londonderry, whilst that at Cardiff has been transferred to Exeter. All these offices are now situated on the ground floor, and have plate glass windows, in which to give a good display of Canada's products. In order to make a special appeal to agriculturists, twenty-five farmers have just arrived from the Northwest. They are to be placed at the service of booking agents throughout the country in order to supply the farmers with regarding agricultural conditions and possibilities to anyone thinking of booking passage to the Dominion.

Special attention is also being paid to the emigration of women, for whom the Dominion offers a special advantage. Mrs. Simpson Hayes, a particular lady journalist, is for the time being in charge of this department, and is kept continually busy answering queries from aspirants to Canadian domestic work, and perhaps also to a future spouse for the lonely swains of the prairie. She has succeeded in interesting some prominent philanthropists in this special branch of emigration work.

Is It Possible? Some of these young ladies are quite incredulous when informed of the value of a really good domestic in Canada, and the conditions under which they have to perform their duties. Recently two whose crimped hair and general demeanor strongly suggested the factory made their appearance at the Emigration Office and expressed their desire to settle in the Dominion.

"Are you good at cooking and domestic work?" inquired the polite official. "Yes," answered one of them promptly. "I should just say I could. I'd do to cook my old man's meals for the last five years, and 'e's mighty particular. An' I'd do to do all the 'ousework an' look arter the kids since mother died. My sister's old enough now, so I went to work."

"Can you undertake domestic work in Canada?" "Yes, I like it better than gummin' labels, and they say blokes out there sometimes marry their slayves, don't they?" "That's a thing has happened in cases," was the reply. "An' 'ow does the oof go? You know, 'ow do they brass up? What's the wages?"

Pretty High Figure. "They pay out there as much as four pounds a month and everything more than that even in some cases." "Come, get off, mister, whose leg are you a-pullin'?" was the young lady's polite way of intimating she did not believe this statement, and it took some time to convince her she was not being "coddled," as she termed it.

Then for the first time she turned to her companion, with the remark: "Lor, Lize, just fancy, a quid a week, all yer grub, and a chance of splicing the boss! Canada's a bit of an orl right. Come on, Lize." And the two damsels departed with their stock of pamphlets.

How Some Would Farm. It is quite a study from real life to watch the crowds; they are now flocking to the Emigration Office in search of information. A pale and hollow-faced young man, with the office-stool marked plainly upon him, will ask for his grant of land, and express considerable annoyance at not being able to get the necessary document forthwith. Generally the idea of these youths is to live midst the social whirl of a neighboring city, and employ others to look after their land.

Then, perhaps, will come along a swaggering young fellow in leggings and knee-breeches, who is "going out to do a bit a ranching, but don't know. Haven't much money, but dare say could get hold of ten thousand or so, enough just to buy a decent little show, with a bit of game on it."

If the ten thousand referred to is the lowest currency of the realm, it is doubtful whether he could produce sufficient to waste as much of the official's valuable time as desirable.

Lindsay Dundas & Flavell Limited Lindsay Ont.

He will start with Halifax and go slowly through to Vancouver, asking all sorts of foolish questions, chiefly relating to the opportunities which occur in the Dominion for enjoying one's self. Then he finally departs with a "Er, ah, yes," and perhaps goes off to spend another genial hour in some other office.

Some Expect Free Fares. Quite a number of the unemployed look to the Emigration Office for relief. With a crushed and almost hopeless air they ask for "some of them free circulars," always emphasizing the fourth word. They are generally joined by half a dozen similarly situated companions outside, and jointly discuss the prospect of raising the amount they might as well be told that a million dollars was required. The majority of them have not possessed such a sum in their whole lives. There are amongst would-be emigrants the professional man, tired of the ceaseless struggle for genteel existence, the tradesman whose income has been worn down by competition, nomads who have fled to the other British possessions, and feel sure Canada is the place for them, and a host of others too numerous to mention. Yet they would be in many ways suitable emigrants, and, taken on a whole, the percentage whom a casual observer would deem as undesirable is very small.

Wives Needed In West. Averting to emigration for women, a sure tonic awaits anyone bold enough to open up a matrimonial bureau for the purpose of supplying Canadian settlers with suitable spouses. There are increasing numbers, especially in the west, lacking this item of blissful domesticity, and still large numbers of lassies in the Old Country ready to give their heart and hand to the lonely settler. All sorts of devices have in the past been employed to make known their desires. At one time a missive in the middle of a Canadian cheese was a favorite if somewhat haphazard means of communication. But a buttonless bachelor recently placed a note in a barrel of apples, stating that he was in need of a suitable life partner, and entreating the finder of the missive to "deliver the goods."

This letter found its way into the British press, and has resulted in Mr. Peter B. Aill of Birmingham, whose name was "mentioned in the case," being the recipient of epistles from a number of young ladies who were willing. Their ages ranged from 19 years upwards, and one even confessed to 40, but, according to her letter, she did not look it, and had a great many estimable qualities which counterbalanced what might be considered a slight disability in the matrimonial stakes. There were fair, dark, and auburn maids, as well as a widow or two, with varying numbers of children, only too ready to share the fortunes of the apple packer.

One Was a Married Woman. One applicant's letter may be worth referring to. She was neither a spinster nor widow, but a married woman with one child. She stated that she and her husband had not found perfect bliss in their union. She, moreover, hinted that she was not addicted to hard work. So they had parted, or rather he had done the parting, and she had gone home to mother's. She had, so runs the letter, considered the advisability of invoking the aid of the law, but on consideration had decided to let her better half go his own way. She herself was anxious to settle in Canada, and desired to compare notes with the apple man.

A DAM BUILT ON END. How a Clever Engineer Conquered a Mechanic's Difficulty. Almost every boy has built dozens of dams in various ways, constructing them across the bed of the channel, wide or narrow, to be dammed. But did any boy ever think of building a dam on end and then tipping it over? An inventive American engineer, Isham Randolph, who became famous by his work on the Chicago drainage canal, has tried this idea on the Niagara river 200 yards above the Horseshoe fall and of course an ordinary dam could not easily be built in the fiercely racing currents of Niagara hurrying to plunge over the fall. So Mr. Randolph decided to build his dam on end on the very edge of the river. It was not meant to do more than raise the water level a few inches, so as to prevent water scarcity in winter for the Canadian town of Niagara Falls when the ice jam comes on. A dam seven feet or so high was enough and fifty feet long. Turned on end, this meant a column fifty feet high and seven feet four inches square. The clever engineer used concrete as the cheapest, easiest and least corrosive material. But any column of any material was certain to break in the shock of falling. How was that to be provided for?

Easily enough, the inventive builder argued. Up the middle of the concrete column, like a huge backbone, he ran a strong iron chain weighing about 800 pounds. The whole column weighed some 200 tons. At intervals eight feet apart all the way up it along the landward face wooden wedges were inserted, so that in breaking it would follow these lines and break into regular blocks, held together by the chain. The plan was audacious, but entirely practical—a true "Yankee notion." On Nov. 9, 1905, the finished dam was sent flying over by three hydraulic jacks. Amid the breathless interest of a large crowd of spectators the concrete column fell, splashed and settled. When splash and spray subsided there it stretched, broken at the destined points, tilted a trifle irregularly in the middle, where the river bed was higher, but quite effectual. The depth of water increased ten inches at once. "The obelisk dam" was a success.—William Bittenhouse in Forward.

KENNEDY COBALT, LIMITED MINING COMPANY. Affords Conservative Investors an Investment that is Sure to Result in a Good Profit. This property is known to be one of the best in the Cobalt District, situated as it is between the celebrated Nadeau and Kay-Foster mines, both of which are paying producers, and the veins which they are operating extend clear across the property of the Kennedy Cobalt, Limited, and are opened up to within 25 feet of the boundary on each side. It is estimated that there is over Ten Million Dollars Worth of Silver in the mine of the Kennedy Cobalt, Limited. It is proposed to sell 100,000 shares of the stock at 50c a Share in order to raise sufficient money with which to develop the mine. After 100,000 shares have been sold (and 50,000 have already been sold), the price will be advanced to one dollar a share; thus you have a chance of doubling your money before the 1st of May, and no one need be surprised if the price goes up to $5.00 a share within the next eight months. The excitement in Cobalt stocks last summer was small in comparison to what it will be during the ensuing season. Inquiries concerning the Cobalt District are many and coming as they do from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Chicago and other places, insures an active market with a good increase in price during the coming season. Until the last day of February, 1907, the stock will be sold at the following prices, viz., 20 shares for $10, 50 shares for $25, 100 shares for $50, 200 shares for $100 and 50c per share for any additional number required over 200 shares. For further information and particulars apply to J. H. SOOTHERAN, Lindsay.
