Better Mail Service Wanted on C.P.R.

The attention of The Warder has been called by a subscriber to the poor mail service that farmers on the C.P.R. line south of the town are receiving, a very poor service indeed when it is considered that residents at Janetville, Burketon, Pontypool, Nestleton, Nestleton Station, Lotus and Cadmus receive their mail two and three days late. In fact they receive mail from Toronto sooner than they do from Lindsay.

It is not generally known, but for the benefit of the public in general, it might be stated that the C.P.R. carries mail only to Bobcaygeon and Dunsford once a day (at noon) and back again on the regular trains. No mail is carried on the trains going south to the vicinities mentioned above. If a Lindsay citizen wishes to mail a letter to any person living in the above-mentioned places the said letter must be mailed at the local post office before 5.50 p.m. The letter is then carried by the Grand Trunk to Toronto and back again from Toronto over the C.P.R. main line to Peterboro and distributed to the points previously mentioned. Any letter mailed after 6 p.m. and up to 7.40 p.m. is carried by the Grand Trunk via Peterboro by the Smith's Falls and Toronto mail clerks, and then distributed.

As can be readily seen it is a very roundabout service, and there are a number of farmers living in the vicinity of Nestleton who are anxious to secure better mail service. They wish to receive their mail from Lindsay sooner, and it would seem that they have a serious grievance. The proper thing to do would be for the farmers in the above vicinity to petition the Government with a view to having the mail carried on the C.P.R. trains going south.

The situation effects the merchants of Lindsay to a certain extent. They place their advertisements in the local papers, advertising bargains for certain days, but if the papers are not delivered until the day after the bargain both the merchants and the farmers are the losers.

The Warder would be pleased to see the farmers act in the matter and petition the Government to have mail carried south on the C.P.R.

Eczema was Spreading

TILL D.D.D. CURED IT.

This is a translation of a letter written us in French, on April 16, 1910, by Mr. Dan Babineau, Cap Lumiere, N.B.

"I had been suffering with eczema for about 6 months, and had consulted several doctors, who did not do me any good. The disease was spreading, and I was most uncomfortable. I thought I would go crazy. All my friends were telling me I would lose my hands unless I found the right treatment.

One day I read the Messenger about your D.D.D. treatment and asked for a sample. It did me so much good that I immediately ordered two large bottles. It took eight bottles altogether to cure me of this terrible disease. I shall never be without a bottle of D.D.D. in my home."

The records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of the most severe cases show that D.D.D. stands to-day as the absolutely reliable eczema cure.

Write to-day for free trial bottle to the D.D.D. Laboratories, Dept. L.W.W., 49 Colborne-st., Toronto. It will give you instant relief.

Bad Accident at C.P.R. Crossing on King-st.

An incident which resulted in the death of a valuable draught horse, and which almost caused the death of two well known farmers of the Township of Emily, occurred Saturday night about 7.45 o'clock, at the C.P.R. crossing on King-st. The two men who barely escaped with their lives are Mr. Jos. Dorgan and Mr. Patrick Duffy, and the horse which was killed belongs to the latter.

There were few eye-witnesses of the bad accident, but in two minutes after the smash the street was crowded with people. It appears that Messss. Dorgan and Duffy were driving home after spending the day in town, but they failed to hear the whistle of the train as they were nearing the King-st. crossing. Not until they were within a few feet of the crossing did they hear the whistle and then beheld the train coming. Mr. Duffy endeavored to pull up the horse and did manage to swerve it to one side, but the frightened animal leaped forward and tried to cross the track before the train approached. It was useless, and the engine struck the unfortunate animal on the head, shunting it several feet away. The animal reeled to one side and collapsed on the road and apparently suffered untold agony in its dying moments. Blood flowed profusely from a terrible wound in the animal's head.

The two occupants of the buggy had not time to jump out before the crash came, and consequently for a time were in a very dangerous position. The wonder is that they were not killed, as the buggy was tossed to one side and badly wrecked. Messrsf Dorgan and Duffy were hurled out, but beyond sustaining a minor bruise or two were uninjured.

It was stated by one of the occupants of the buggy that they were unable to see the train coming on account of two rigs driving ahead of them.

The animal was removed to the dumping ground later on in the evening.

Will Farmer's Gain or Lose When Canada's Door Is Open?

Is the United States Market Worth the Price that We Must Pay for It Under Reciprocity?

A QUESTION FOR FARMERS.

From the Canadian Century.

When we allow vast quantities of food from Australasia and the twelve favored foreign nations to come freely into Canada how are we going to prove to American customs officials that the farm products we are trying to send across the United States boundary were really produced in Canada?

Ask your neighbors this question.

We may be sure that the farmers of the United States will insist upon customs regulations that will prevent Canada becoming the back door entrance to the United States for all the great food exporting countries of the world. The enforcement of these regulations will be very annoying. The necessity of proving that every consignment of food imported into the United States from Canada is actually Canadian will scare American buyers. They will naturally pay lower prices for Canadian farm products than for American farm products when they have to take the risk of disputes with customs officials as to whether they are genuine Canadian or come from countries overseas.

Prices are always fluctuating in the United States, and while a consignment of Canadian butter or eggs is being held up at the United States customs awaiting proof of genuineness the price may go down.

AUSTRALASIAN FOOD FOR CANADA.

During the fiscal year ending March 31, 1901, there came to Canada from Australia and New Zealand 568,980 pounds of butter, 1,149,979 pounds of fresh mutton and lamb, 107,383 pounds of canned meats and small quantities of other meats. In view of the fact that such quantities are imported under the present tariff, what may be expected when the duties on butter and cheese are abolished and the duties on meats greatly reduced as a result of the reciprocity compact with the United States.

Farm products from Australia and New Zealand come in by way of both the Pacific and the Atlantic. New Zealand frozen lambs coming in by way of Vancouver have been sold as far east as Winnipeg. A large consignment of lamb carcases from New Zealand has just reached St. John, N.B.

The New Zealand steamship "Aorangi" is now on its way to San Francisco with 5,000 carcases of New Zealand mutton and large quantities of butter. They cannot pass into the United States without payment of high customs duties. Is it not probable that such cargoes will be diverted to Canadian ports when the Reciprocity Agreement goes into effect? There is nothing in the Reciprocity Compact binding the United States to admit farm products free or at reduced rates from Australia, New Zealand, and the twelve foreign countries that have favored nation treaties with Canada.

HE LOSES HIS BET.

A New Brunswick farmer writes to The Canadian Century as follows:

"There may be something in what you say about the danger of competition from great food exporting like Australia and Argentina, but I'm willing to bet that not one pound of food will come to Canada from Switzerland, which is one of the twelve countries you mention, as entitled to the privileges of the Reciprocity Agreement. What do you say to that?"

You lose your bet. During the fiscal year ending March 31, 1910, 227,954 pounds of cheese were imported into Canada from Switzerland. The Canadian customs tariff on cheese was three cents per pound. Is it not reasonable to suppose that when Swiss cheese can come into Canada free the quantity imported will increase rather than diminish?

PRICES IN THE UNITED STATES

Even if the Reciprocity Agreement did not let in Australia, New Zealand and twelve foreign nations besides the United States, even if the favored nation treaties could be got rid of so that Canada could open its markets to the United States alone, the majority of Canadian farmers would gain nothing by reciprocity, while they would take very great risks.

Anyone who makes a careful study of the markets in the United States will note that the prices vary in different sections of the country. Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis, New Orleans and San Francisco all have different prices, and there is a still greater variation in prices in small cities, towns and villages throughout the country.

The Canadian farmer should compare the prices he obtains for his products in a small village near his farm, not with the prices in Boston, New York, Chicago or some other large city in the United States, but with the prices obtained by farmers in small villages in the United States equally distant from the great centres of population. He must take into consideration not only the cost of transportation to the big cities of the United States, but also the middlemen's profits.

A table of comparative prices in Montreal and Boston the week the Reciprocity Compact was made compiled by the Montreal Herald, a Liberal newspaper, with the assistance of a number of prominent produce dealers and food experts. Cheese, eggs, live poultry, carrots, celery, lettuce, onions, squash, tomatoes, beans and cranberries all commanded higher prices in Montreal than in Boston. The best creamery butter was 1½ cents per pound higher in Boston than in Montreal, while storage creamery butter was one cent higher in Boston. Dressed poultry averaged about the same in the two cities. Hay and oats were considerably higher in Boston.

Since then butter prices have declined in most of the markets of the United States. A leading produce dealer of Montreal received the other day a telegram from Chicago offering him 300 tubs of September creamery butter, cold stored, at 18 cents, Chicago. At the time this telegram was received the same kind of butter was worth 24 cents to 25 cents in Montreal.

Mr. Gage, president of the Toronto Board of Trade, recently prepared a table of prices in Toronto and New York, comparing the Toronto market reports with the New York market reports as given in the New York Commercial Bulletin. The table follows:

Product—	Toronto price	New York price
Best creamery butter in prints, wholesale	—26c	—26½
Prime chickens	18 —20	—15
Prime turkets	20 —22	—18
Ducks	18 —20	15—16
Geese	15 —16	—14
Bacon	16 —16½	—16½
Hams	13½—15	—14
