Capt. C. W. Burgoyne went down beyond Bobcaygeon on Tuesday, with the Kawartha. This is the second run down the lakes which Capt. Burgoyne has taken this season. The boys of the village have been busy fishing for suckers this week. The water is yet sufficiently cold to the fish bite well, and some fine members of this branch of the finny family were landed. Geach, who has been ill for

Mr. John Northey conducted the prayer meeting on Thursday evening,

While some men were working at her on Saturday, Mr. Ellis tied his horse to a post and the horse in some way got unfastened and ran up to the village and over the two bridges, without, however, any serious injury.

The spirited horse, owned by Mr. W. D. Prior, got caught on a pitch fork in her stable, on last Friday night. The prongs of the fork pierced her thigh, and Dr. Mason did all action." in his power for her, but the suffering animal died on Monday. The poor animal suffered greatly and her loss will be felt by Mr. Prior as she was a valuable animal.

Mr. Brokenshire has not been well since the sad death of his son, last winter, but his death was a terrible shock to all. His widow and family have the heartfelt sympathy of their many well-wishers here. The funeral on Tuesday was very largely attended. Mr. Wm. McArthur went up to Lindsay last Wednesday. He drove out eight miles into the country from Lindsay on Thursday morning, bought some tile for a drain, got them shipped from the Lindsay station on the noon train, and had them laid in place on the property, which he is repairing on Colbournest., before sun-down. There was a foot and a half of water in the cellar in the morning, and it was drained empty by night. Not a bad days'

The concert given in Twomey's hall last Friday evening, by the Killin-Keough Concert Co. of New York, was one of the best which has ever been given in Fenelon Falls. Mrs. Keough was the star of the evening, and her rendering of the aria from here, and"-La Travicata, was worth twice the price of the admission. His morning discourse was from the text, "Thou art the man," and those who heard it enjoyed a treat of the address was eulogistic of the late to look stylish and be uncomfortable or Sir Oliver Mowat, and the brilliant to be comfortable and look a fright. discourse was listened to by a very large congregation. Mr. Sinclair's definition of a gentleman was perfect, and his listeners could not fail to be impressed with the truth, that the speaker himself, a thorough gentleman, else he could not have so well described the late Sir Oliver.

TIMIDITY AND TALENT.

Lack of Courage Is the Death of a Great Deal of Ability. A great deal of talent is lost to the world for the want of a little courage. Every day sends to their graves a number of obscure men who have only remained obscure because their timidity has prevented them from making a first effort and who, if they could have been induced to begin, would in all probability have gone great lengths in the career of fame. The fact is that to do anything in this world worth doing we must not stand shivering on the brink and thinking of the cold and danger, but jump in and scramble through as well as we can. It will not do to be perpetually calculating risks and adjusting nice chances. It did very well before the flood, when a man could consult his friends upon an intended scheme for a hundred and fifty years and then live to see its success for six or seven centuries afterward. But at present a man waits and doubts and hesitates and consults his brother and his uncle and his first cousins and particular friends till one fine day he finds that he is sixty-five years of age; that he has lost so much time in consulting first cousins and particular friends that morning. Mr. Geach was vice.-Sydney Smith on "Courage In

One morning she was found dead in bed with an expression of abject terror on her face. I have no doubt that she died from fright produced by a night-

> > Blazed Her Way.

There is a story about Alaska and its people in which is mentioned a man who chose a bride from among some of the Indian tribes up toward the Chilcoot pass. He took her to a large city, Montreal, perhaps, and left her in a splendid hotel while he went out to see some one about a dog. She missed him sadly. She sat at the window looking out on the street four stories below. Solitude became intolerable. She decided to find her husband. There was an elevator, but she didn't care for it. Softly as moccasins could carry her she issued forth. When she had gone out, a bellboy saw queer marks on the balusters and doorcasings. The Indian bride had blazed her way with a tomahawk so that she could find her way back. The Indian bride was merely living up to her education, for it is very necessary to know how to blaze a trail in Alaska.

Men Crotchety at Breakfast.

"If waiters had their way, men would not be permitted in a restaurant before the dinner hour, or at least before lunch," said the proprietor of a cafe on upper Broadway.

"Why? Simply because they are so cross at breakfast. No, it isn't the question of tips altogether, although I never saw a waiter refuse a quarter. But the fact is men are crotchety before they get their breakfast. If they breakfast is on the table. There is no meal in the day where the waiters get so many 'kicks' as they do at breakfast, and the men are always more ill tempered than the women."

A Lincoln Story. Abraham Lincoln had a rule for evading difficulties. At a cabinet meeting one day, it is related, Mr. Seward jokingly remarked, "Mr. President, I hear that you turned out for a colored woman on a muddy crossing the other day." "I don't remember," answered Lincoln musingly, "but I think it very likely. I have always made it a rule that if people won't turn out for me I will for them. If I didn't, there might be a collision."
