WHEN THE SPAVIN CAME.

It ended the brilliant career of the Park Police Horse. The fall from greatness of a police horse that had taken the blue ribbon at the national horse show is told by Sewell Ford in "Horses Nine" as follows: For a whole year Skipper was the pride of the force. He was shown to visitors at the stables; he was patted on the nose by the mayor. The chief, who was a bigger man than the mayor, came up especially to look at him. In the park Skipper did his tricks every day for ladies in fine dresses, who exclaimed, "How perfectly wonderful!" as well as for pretty nursemaids who giggled and said, "Now, did you ever see the likes of that, Norah?"

And then came the spavin. Ah, but that was the beginning of the end! Were you ever spavined? If so, you know all about it. If you haven't been, there's no use trying to tell you. Rheumatism? Well, that may be bad, but a spavin is worse. For three weeks Reddy rubbed the lump on the hock with stuff from a brown bottle and hid it from the inspector. Then one black morning the lump was discovered. That day Skipper did not go out on post. Reddy came into the stall, put his arm around his neck and said "Goodbye" in a voice that Skipper had never heard him use before. Something had made it thick and husky. Very sadly Skipper saw him saddle one of the newcomers and go out for duty.

Curling and Hurling. Curling, the game that was for a long time furtively indulged in here by a few braw laddies, has been placed on a substantial footing, with numerous well organized teams and well contested tournaments. Handball has been wrested from the monopoly of a few professionals, and today a handball court is a popular feature of every well equipped athletic club. Discuss throwing, that the Grecian youths excelled in at the Olympian games, has recently become a regularly scheduled feature of all big athletic meetings. More recently the royal and ancient game of golf has been transplanted from the hills of Scotland.

But hurling is far more ancient than any of these. The Scotchman, proud of the antiquity of golf, points to the time stained documents carelessly preserved in Edinburgh showing that as early as 1457 the game was being played in the Scottish youth from more serious things, and to this day hurling has continued through all the centuries the popular game of the Irish people.

The First Flank Attack. We have a record in the book of Joshua of "the stratagem whereby A' was taken." This tells us how 5,000 men were set in ambush behind the city, so that when the king of Ai and his hosts were drawn forward to the fight a flank attack was made with overwhelming success by the warriors of Israel.

Not less disastrous was the fate of Leonidas and his brave little band of heroes when the Persians at Thermopylae, led by a traitor, took them in the rear, 480 B. C. It was by a masterly maneuver nearly 300 years later that Hannibal dealt one of his heaviest blows against the hosts of Rome. Having concealed his brother Mago, with 2,000 horse and foot soldiers, among the reeds, he entered the Roman forces across the river Trebia. The legions fought bravely and held their own until Mago, rising from ambush, attacked them in the rear and routed them.

The Meaning of Historic. One of my artistic friends was upon a business visit to a picturesque district of Perthshire the other day. A little leisure was afforded him by the wait between trains, and he asked a native if there were any historic places in the neighborhood, so that he might spoil a film or two, with which he had loaded his camera. "No, there's no anything historic about the place. The Black castle up by there used to be historic, but it's no' sa' historic noo!" What that bucolic individual imagined the word "historic" to mean is not very apparent by the reply.—Glasgow Times.

Curious Death Custom in Fiji. The Fijians believe that in case a marriageable youth or maiden dies without having gone through with the elaborate nuptial knot tying ceremony of the islands his or her soul is doomed to wander about forever in an intermediate region between heaven and hell. When any one dies, man, woman or child, a whale's tooth is placed in the hand of the corpse, the missile to be thrown at the tree which stands as a ghastly point out the road that leads to heaven and the one that leads to hell.

His Social Repetitions. "You say his wife had him arrested for repeating? I didn't know she took any interest in political elections?" "In political elections?" "Yes, didn't you say she accused him of repeating?" "Yes. Bigamy."

More to the Point. The Parson—I intend to pray that you may forgive Casey for having thrown that brick at you. The Patient—Mebbe yer riv'ence 'ud be saving time if ye'd just wait till O'gill well an' then pray fer Casey.—Brooklyn Life. Too Far to Walk. Leading Lady (of defunct opera company)—I wonder if we'll ever be able to fly. Manager—Well, that's about the only possible way we'll ever be able to get home.

Stow's Celebrated Monkfish.

One of the nightmares of John Ash-ton's "Curious Creatures of Zoology" is the monkfish, or sea monk, he being indebted to both Aldrovandus and Stow for his account. If the old writers are reliable, these monsters were quite common in the North sea, the British channel and along the Irish coast up to the year 1414, when they are said to have become extinct through the ravages of a plague similar to that which was affecting men at about the same time. The superstitious of those days believed that they were priests or monks who had been cursed for some crime and condemned by God to an endless life beneath the waves. Stow's account of one caught in 1187 is as follows: "He had the shape of a man in all points and was kept in the castle at Oxford by the keeper thereof. All manner of raw meats he did gladly eat, but more greedily of raw fish, after that he had crushed out all moisture. Often he was brought to the church, but showed no signs of reverence, and at length, when not well looked to, he stole away to the sea and was never seen again after."

A Bargain Counter Husband. "I don't think it's a nice thing to say of Mrs. Odsen that she got her husband at a bargain counter. "Oh, but it's true. He was the young man that saved her life in a crush at a glove sale at Spotcash's one day."

Imagination. "Don't you find literary work a great tax on your imagination?" "Yes," answered the author. "I write on imagining that every book I write is going to be a hit and make a fortune."

It is the opinion of the cynical bachelor that the original bone of contention was a rib.—Pittsburg Dispatch.
