The Feeble-Minded of Ontario
There are 1,385 feeble-minded persons in Ontario, according to a report and census being prepared by Dr. Helen MacMurchy, at the request of the Government. This number was shown up to the end of September when the census was still incomplete. Of that number 676 were women, 183 girls, 418 men, and 108 boys, exclusive of school children. The report contains considerable information as to the marriages of feeble-minded persons, the number of their children, and the number of those who have become charges upon the Province. The sad and defenceless position of feeble-minded women and the evils resulting from the lack of systematic care of this class is emphasized. Dr. MacMurchy says it is obvious that a home for feeble-minded women is required by the Province in the best interests of the community and of these women themselves.

Canada's Wheat Production
The Canadian Press cable service, maintained in part at the expense of the Canadian taxpayers, conveyed the information to Saturday's dailies that "a colonial statesman" had stated in London that millions of acres of land were lying idle in Canada and Australia because Australian and Canadian farmers were afraid to raise wheat in competition with countries closer to England.

Claims We Need a College of Forestry
At the Canadian Institute at Toronto on Saturday night, says The World, Thomas Southworth, Director of Colonization, took up the subject: "Do We Need a College of Forestry?" and in a clear, incisive manner argued that such an institution, to affiliate with our agricultural schools would be of highly educative benefit in the preservation of our splendid timber resources in the north, and an important factor in the gradual reforestation of the denuded districts of older Ontario. The scientific value of such a college would in a few years establish as a common practical knowledge in forest propagation what is now confined to the few who have made a special study of the question, and would enable our agricultural districts to regain in timber what is essential to the successful economy of every farming country, as well as the climate benefits in the way of regular rainfall and atmospheric moisture, both of which are essential to the highest results in crop production.

TRAINED BY CRUELTY
Animals, as a Rule, Taught Tricks Through Torture.

KINDNESS IS NOT A FACTOR.
The Result of the Methods Employed, Says an English Writer, is the Triumph of a Brute Over a Brute by Patient and Persistent Cruelty.

"I have an old fashioned belief that one should never make a damning statement unless he is prepared to prove it up to the hilt. And so I am confronted at the outset with an almost insurmountable difficulty—the layman who would accurately inform himself of the methods of animal training is opposed a bulwark of concealment grim and silent as the great wall of China," writes W. Bainton Clarke in the Manchester Chronicle.

"The gib assurance that 'it is all done by kindness' has become a by-word. No true lover of an animal being, he could any reasoning creature, lacking that particular affection, if he will carefully examine such facts as are obvious.

"Granted there are animals of extreme intelligence and ductibility. Granted there are men and women of extraordinary influence over birds and beasts. The best these twin can achieve in combination does not produce an effective stage show, nor can one-hundredth part of the 'entertainment' provided by the trainer be ascribed to his abnormal ability or to the especially acute intelligence of his pupil. It is more probably the triumph of a brute over a brute by patient and persistent cruelty.

"The public judges by what it sees on the stage and remarks in admiration and approval that there was 'no sign of a whip.' An animal exhibitor who was awfully cruel would be pretty well down in the ranks of showmen. I own a particularly ferocious looking bulldog who goes crazy with delight at the sight of a whip. It has been his pet toy for years and means the beginning of a romp. On the other hand, a movement of the trainer's finger almost imperceptible to the audience may suggest to the powerful imagination of the animal fensidish torture. It may recall the hot irons, the agonizing titillation of a nerve.

"Such appeals to the memory are, in truth, the stock in trade of the animal trainer. What the wretched creature has gone through during months of daily preparation can never be known. There is rarely a second person present, and the brute cannot speak. That is the most hideous factor of the case.

"There is no concealment of the fact that the training is apt to be hard and painful, and a blow is not uncommon from the most humane and patient trainer, angered, it may be, by stupidity and insubordination. If it is so with the boy, what must it be with the brute?

"There is no possession so hideous as that of the triumph, even momentarily, of cruelty. Touch a child, a horse or a dog with a whip and there is a hideous sense of satisfaction, even when the cause is righteous. The joy of inflicting pain is possible to the best of us and grows by what it feeds on.

"Imagine the situation between a coarse vulgarian and a helpless brute and you get the process of animal training.

"I have never known a disinterested member of the circus community pretend that the education of any animal was pleasant to the animal, and I have known them to speak with horror of the methods of some trainers.

"It is not very long since an athlete snatched the whip from a well known dog trainer on the stage of a London variety theater and soundly thrashed him amid the plaudits of the company.

"Another distinguished professor is blacklisted by one of the largest syndicates for undignified cruelty (off the stage) to his large and various family. Two of our best known managers absolutely refuse to deal with animal 'turns' and make no concealment of their reasons. And the editor, now deceased, of an important professional paper, for years refused to attend any place of entertainment where dogs are birds, or indeed any dumb creature save conventional circus horses, appeared.

GLASS IS PECULIAR.
It Has a Number of Curious and Contradictory Qualities.

Glass is one of the most interesting as well as one of the most peculiar things in the world. It has curious and contradictory qualities, and many astonishing phenomena are connected with it. Brittle and breakable as it is, yet it exceeds almost all other bodies in elasticity.

If two glass balls are made to strike each other at a given force, the recoil, by virtue of their elasticity, will be nearly equal to their original impetus. Connected with its brittleness are some very singular facts.

Take a hollow sphere with a hole and stop the hole with the finger, so as to prevent the external and internal air from communicating, and the sphere will fly to pieces by the mere heat of the hand. Vessels made of glass that have been suddenly cooled possess the curious property of being able to resist hard blows given to them without, but will be instantly shattered by a small particle of flint dropped into their cavities. This property seems to depend upon the comparative thickness of the bottom; the thicker the bottom is the more certainty of breakage by this experiment.

Some of these vessels, it is stated, have resisted the stroke of a mallet given with sufficient force to drive a nail into wood, and heavy bodies, such as market balls, pieces of iron, bits of wood, Jasper, stone, etc., have been cast into them from a height of two or three feet without any effect, yet a fragment of flint not larger than a pea dropped from a height of three inches has made them fly.

USED PSYCHINE 20 YEARS AGO.
"Years ago I was almost a physical wreck, and was suffering with lung trouble. Friends and neighbors thought I would never get better. I began to despair myself. Losing faith in my physician, I procured another one who recommended the use of PSYCHINE. It was surprising beyond description the effect it had. I seemed to gain with every dose. Inside of two weeks I was able to attend to my housework again. There are no symptoms of consumption about me now."
"MRS. HENDERSON, St. John, N.B."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.
If you must be frank, be frank with yourself. Every defeat develops a lot of new excuses. Most men are optimistic as long as things are coming their way. Pleading people is like laughing. It has to be done without an effort to be effective. The most sincere person in the world does not mean it when he says, "I don't care."

Some people get credit for being patient when the fact is they are merely afraid to talk back. Some people who never recognize a rebuff notice the slightest hint that can be construed as an invitation. Down at the bottom of their hearts most people believe a little in fortune telling and spiritualism and the mysterious generally.

Mine Preserved Bodies.
A curious story illustrative of the preservative properties of carbonic acid gas, or "choke damp," comes from China. In the province of Nanhwei a party of miners opened an ancient shaft where, according to the official records, a terrible catastrophe had occurred 400 years ago. When the miners entered they came upon the bodies of 170 miners who had perished in the mine, lying where they had been overtaken by the deadly gas four centuries back. The corpses to the eye were as though of yesterday, quite fresh looking and not decayed in any way. The faces were like those of men who had just died. On an attempt being made to move them outside for burial they one and all crumbled away, leaving nothing but a pile of dust and the remnants of the stronger parts of their clothing.

Poetry.
"Why are poets so little appreciated?" asked the young man with long hair.

"Well," answered Mr. Cumrox, "it's this way with a piece of poetry: If you can't understand it you don't care to read it, and if you can understand it you haven't any respect for it."

The Drama Today.
Manager—What have you got in the way of light comedy? Let me look over your manuscripts. Playwright—I don't happen to have anything on hand just now, but I'll write you two or three and bring them in this afternoon.

Umbrella Flirtation.
An umbrella carried over the woman, the man getting nothing but the drippings of the rain, signifies courtship. When the man has the umbrella and the woman the drippings it indicates marriage.

A brave man is sometimes a desperado, but a bully is always a coward.
Hallburton.

NOTICE TO FARMERS
Notice is hereby given that we are prepared to supply butter-makers and creameries in the district with the very best butter wrappers, suitably printed, at the lowest price. We will guarantee the quality of the parchment to be the very best, and will also guarantee satisfaction in the printing. Butter-makers who use the printed wrapper get from 1c to 3c per lb. more than those who use unprinted wrappers. A printed wrapper is a guarantee of quality, and also lets the consumer know whose butter he is using. 1 cent per lb. extra means $10.00 per 1,000 lbs., and we do not charge a quarter of that for an order of 1,000 wrappers. We will give special prices on orders of 5,000 and 10,000, and on a yearly contract will give an extra special price. We have bought the parchment from the right source, in large quantities at the bottom price, and can supply this line cheaper than any other printer in the district. Drop in and see us, or send for a sample of our paper or printing, and we will save and make you some money in your butter business. Now is the time to get busy. Do it now. The Watchman-Warder Printing Co., Limited, Lindsay.
