HON. J. W. ST. JOHN'S ADDRESS AT L.C.I. CLOSING

Valedictorian's Address and Musical Program—Mr. Thos. Stewart, Chairman—The Speaker of Ontario Legislature gives Practical Advice to Students

On Tuesday evening, June 26, the annual closing exercises of Lindsay Collegiate Institute were held in the Assembly hall. An excellent program of music was given, the valedictory was read by Mr. A. D. Flavelle, and an eloquent and practical address was given by Hon. J. W. St. John, speaker of the Ontario legislature. Mr. Thos. Stewart, chairman of the school board, presided. The first item on the program was a piano solo by Miss Marjorie Ross. She played with good style and interpretation Chopin's 1st Prelude, and Liszt's "Liebestraum." The other musical numbers were also of the classic order, in keeping with the occasion. The difficult Siciliana from Gounod's opera "Faust," was sung in splendid voice by Miss E. Brady, her sister playing the accompaniment. She responded to an encore by singing differently "The Loves." Master Jack Newton played a selection from Rossini's "William Tell." Mr. L. Newton accompanying on the piano. Mr. Stewart announced the young violinist as "Mr. Newton." After hearing the selection he would not change the appellation, for he said, "Master Jack plays like a man."

The valedictory was a well written paper, and was delivered in manly style by Mr. A. D. Flavelle. It is as follows: Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: Under the control of the mighty Jove, lord of all, the earth rolls on in its appointed course bringing new times and seasons in their proper order and Father Time reaps his harvest heedless of man, ever bringing wondrous changes throughout the world. And so, amid these great changes who can expect that even so small a spot as this on the world's surface should be passed over.

The students of former years have gone and many are forgotten. But new students filled with the same hopes and ambitions have taken their places. And now the time comes for us who have completed our course to leave this place and be forgotten. But what must be, must be. It is with a feeling akin to sadness that to-night we say farewell to this place, which, though some have been acquainted with it but a short period, it has become endeared to our hearts for all that we have seen, heard and done here. Is not life before us? If we leave this field do we not enter on a greater, grander work? It must be the memory of the days spent beneath this roof which causes us to regret the parting; memories of the days that can never return, days of joy and sorrow, of hope and despair. Days of work well done and days of work neglected, or victory and defeat. Our school days are behind us and yet, are they? Is not all life one great, grand school, in which some advance far, others little? We are not all alike, we cannot be in all things, but in this particular we are, we all love the old school and whatever the future may bring forth, will cherish the memory of the years spent here among the happiest we have.

As we turn back over the pages of memory, how the thoughts of the past few years crowd in upon us. We remember the times when we have helped to swell that noble army of delinquents which nightly gathers in the "first form." How we have rebelled against fate when we had made other plans, but which we must do that it was all for our good. We recall the reprimands for neglected work, and how we thought at the time, "Oh, why can't they let us alone? disregarding all the time the fact that it is we who must do the learning and not the teachers. We do not forget either the bright days when we received praise for good work, and the joy which comes with the knowledge of a task well done. But, unlike the children in the fairy tale, who studied and studied and studied, "till their brains grew big and bodies grew small," and they were all turned into turnips with little but water inside, "the school curriculum has not been the only part of our education. We recall vividly the triumphs of the school in the field of sports, and have sorrowed with her defeat, while in the practice hours we have striven to build up the body, not at the expense of the mental training, but in conjunction with it, that with healthier, stronger bodies we may cultivate the mind more fully. Nor can we overlook that part of our education gained in the Literary Society where those who will, have every opportunity of learning to have confidence in themselves in appearing before the public.

What we owe to our teachers, time alone can show, but even now we begin to realize how much they have done for us, not alone in directing our studies and correcting our mistakes but in the interest they have taken in us individually and the sympathy and help they have extended to us in times of difficulty and discouragement. We may, probably will, forget much which they have taught us, but the right principles of work and life which they have patiently endeavored to instill in us, we will not forget and not the least part of the sorrow we feel at leaving is occasioned by the fact that we must leave those who during these years, have been among our best friends.

To the students who come after us to fill our places we wish to say this: Our predecessors have established a great name for this school, not only for academic work, but for turning out the kind of men and women who make the best citizens. Remember this: It all depends on you whether this record is kept up. Strive that it may be. It will be no light task, it will mean a great deal of hard work, but if you do, you will have the knowledge that you have benefited not only yourselves but your successors. And it is not only the school work that must be kept up, but the Literary Society, the Lectures Course, the Cadet Corps, and the sports. None must be kept up at the expense of the others, but each receive its share and there is no doubt that the honor of the school will be kept up. Yes, not only kept up, for what is not advancing, receding, but, augmented by new laurels on every department, it will get brighter and brighter each year.

And now we come to the closing words. A last good-bye must be said, but that does not make it easier. Sometimes when things did not go right we have wished there was no such thing as school, or that we were any where but there; but now, when we have to go, we feel altogether differently. Never again as students will we listen to the Literary Society concerts, to the hoarse words of command coming from the drill field, to the steps approaching along the hall which produce a death-like stillness in the form where chaos reigned supreme. Never again will we take part in the school yells and the other pranks of student life. All these times are behind us. But we enter upon our new life with a knowledge that the time here has not been wasted, but that we are better fitted to carry on the struggle of life than when we entered.

Chairman Stewart congratulated Mr. Flavelle upon his excellent address. Proceeding to the presentation of the French prizes, Mr. Stewart informed the audience that the meetings of the French class are weekly, and each member is required to read aloud 5 minutes at each session. Every day a member omits to attend a fine of one cent must be paid into the treasury. "I am not furnished with the names of the delinquents," said Mr. Stewart, "nor the account of the number of times they were fined; but the money that bought these prizes was taken out of the cash box which the fines filled. The complimented Miss Wilson on the manner in which she has conducted the class, and said that study of French and other modern languages should be encouraged, with the intention of enabling the pupils to speak as well as read and write."

Mr. Kingsley was presented with three classical books, bound in Morocco. He accepted them with a few well chosen words. The second prize was divided, Miss Touchburne and Miss Hall receiving the honor. Mr. Stewart, introducing the Hon. J. W. St. John, speaker of the assembly of the province. "We are pleased to have him with us as a man, as well as on account of the high position he holds, and because he is almost one of us. He was born in that part of Ontario county which ought to be a part of Victoria county—the part lying between Mariposa and Lake Simcoe."

Hon. Speaker St. John said: I feel it a great honor to be present and take part in your closing exercises of 1906. I was pleased to accept the invitation to be present, and to see in the audience some familiar faces which I have seen, and known, and respected years ago. He spoke of the fact that the institution is one having years of success to its credit. He had heard a lot of good things about Mr. Harstone, the present principal, whose father was a Latin teacher, of whom many great men of to-day were pupils, among them Chancellor Burwash of Victoria college. Mr. St. John addressed his remarks particularly to the young and spoke along very practical lines. His subject was "The Secret of Success."

"To youth the question of success is a very important problem. Success, what is it? A prominent man in the United States was once asked 'What is the secret of success?' "He replied, 'There is no secret to it. It is just dig, dig, dig.' "That doesn't look so roseate, but it is true. "The great metaphysician Hamilton, says the secret of success is in doing the simple every day things well. "The man or woman who attempts to rise to do big things will founder, but if they try to do little things well, they will rise to success. Judge Harding, your chairman, Mr. Flavelle, and others here can testify that what I say is a fact. "If you black your boots, black the heels. If you do anything for your playmate do it magnanimously. Do your own work. It is no credit to you that you have a clever father or mother. The work of Kipling, Marconi or Paderewski will bring no success to you. Do your own work well. Dig for yourself, not minding what others do. "Do what you have to do well. True success is slow. Hard work and perseverance succeeds every time. Hard work doesn't hurt, but it makes the future work easier. "Edison says that success is the result of 2 per cent. genius and 98 per cent. hard work. "In order for the boy to succeed, parents should give some care as to what he goes into for his life work. A young man or woman should choose a vocation, not an avocation. "It is the man and not the job that determines his respectability. You should not be ashamed of hard hands or a dirty face if they are the result of honest toil.

"The thing in which you take the most pleasure is what you will likely try to do the best, and in that you will succeed.

"The two keys of success are Principle and Method. Principle is the throne-word of humanity. Without it you will founder on the rocks, and be a failure. If you have not the ballast of conviction and a firm grip on the principles of life you will fail. The principle of absolute honesty is an essential to every man's life, without it he is handicapped."

Method is thoroughness. The boy or girl who comes to the front must be thorough.

"Success is self-respect, and you must earn it. "If you are not fitted for the toil of life, you had better migrate to the moon."

Mr. St. John's address was full of valuable advice and suggestion to young and old alike, and those who heard him will doubtless remember the truths so plainly presented.

He warned the boys to shun strong drink, and made the statements: "I never touched liquor in my life, and the lack of it never stopped my growth." (Those who have seen the speaker will see the force of this).

"The railroads and public institutions are doing more for the temperance cause than the church is." They will not employ young men who are intemperate.

Speaking of young ladies, he said: "A young man is most likely to choose a companion from among the young ladies who do something for somebody, and not do somebody for something."

Mr. Ed. Kyle, one of the old boys of the institute moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and complimented the valedictorian and those who took part in the musical program.

The motion was seconded by Mr. J. W. Lummie, another ex-student and the audience heartily acquiesced.

Mr. Stewart endorsed the remarks of the mover and seconder, and in presenting the thanks of the audience to the speaker, he asked the pupils to carry with them the advice of Mr. St. John if they would win success. Mr. St. John replied: "If my address may be of any service I am amply repaid. Thank you for the motion of thanks." After the singing of "God Save the King," the audience dispersed. The teachers, members of the school board, and a few others were invited to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, where a pleasant half hour was spent with Mr. St. John and his host and hostess.

Alexander Muir Dead

Mr. Alexander Muir, head master in Gladstone public school, Toronto, since 1887, and widely known as the author of the popular patriotic song, "The Maple Leaf," died suddenly on Tuesday night.

Branch of Standard Bank in Lindsay

The Standard Bank of Canada is opening up a branch in Lindsay, and it is expected that it will be opened on Saturday morning. Mr. F. F. Loosmore, who some years ago was employed in the Lindsay branch of the Dominion Bank, and has since been with that bank in Toronto, will have the management here. He has secured temporary quarters in the J. A. Fluey block on west Kent street, but expects to move near to the centre of the town before long, in fact as soon as a suitable property can be secured and fitted up in up-to-date style. The Standard Bank is an old established institution, having 35 branches under progressive management, and pays 12 per cent yearly dividends, 3 per cent quarterly. The progress that Lindsay hopes to make in the near future will doubtless make ample business for a fourth bank.

Keep Children Well

Stomach and bowel troubles kill thousands of little ones during the hot weather. Diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum sometimes come without warning and if prompt aid is not at hand the child may be beyond aid in a few hours. If you want to keep your children hearty, rosy and full of life during the hot weather give them an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. This medicine prevents illness and cures it when it comes unexpectedly. And the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine is absolutely safe. Mrs. W. J. Munroe, Sinaluita, Sask., says: "For more than three years Baby's Own Tablets is the only medicine I have given my children, and I think the Tablets invaluable for stomach and bowel troubles." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 2 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont. Keep the Tablets in the house.
