SERVICES AT JANETVILLE Spoke in Interests of the Dominion Alliance

From our own correspondent.
Janetville, May 31.—Mr. James Armstrong is at present working at carpentering with Mr. J. Ingram, Lindsay.
Mr. Richardson is completely overhauling and remodelling the residence he bought from Mrs. Thomas McGee. When completed he will have a very beautiful home.
Rev. Mr. Snowdon occupied the pulpit of his friend, Rev. Mr. Butler, in Wooler on Sunday.

Mr. Lewis Fallis, village, has taken agency for the Peter Hamilton Co., Peterboro, and from now on will act as their representative in Janetville. Mr. Fallis is placing on his lot a commodious building for the display of the different articles he is selling, and we predict for him a liberal patronage.

Mr. Gordon Ingram, of Lindsay, was in Janetville Sunday.
Sunday, May 30, was a notable day in church circles in Janetville. The morning service in the Presbyterian church was taken by Rev. Mr. Duggan, representing the Dominion Alliance. Mr. Duggan, who is a most excellent reader, in a very forcible and thrilling tone of voice, read Isaiah, chap. 5, denouncing woe to the drunkard and the seller of strong drink and took for his text the word of the Greeks at Jerusalem, "Sir we would see Jesus," from which he preached a powerful sermon, showing first of all the obligation upon the church to show the Christ to the world not only by the good among themselves, but by extending the helping hand to those who had fallen into the snares and temptations of sin. When Christ was on earth men thronged him, very many out of idle curiosity and this thronging of the multitude prompted, not by any real motives to forsake their sins, was so wearisome to the human nature of our Lord that frequently he retired to the Bethany home of Mary and Martha for rest. People were thronging the church to-day, some for twenty or thirty years, and yet not getting into vital touch with the Christ. Further Mr. Duggan confined his remarks of the evil of intemperance almost altogether to Canada, dwelt upon the duty of Canadian citizens to the immigrants, who as a mighty tide are coming to our shores, many of them with the strong purpose to forsake the old haunts of sin and in a new land in changed surroundings to begin life again. How important then to place out of their way the temptations so hard for them to resist. Much had been accomplished in the last ten years. Yet even now in Canada every year 5,000 men and women went down to drunkard's graves—an awful harvest—a line of graves if placed in a row over five and a half miles in length. The yearly product of the liquor traffic in Canada from which our Government received fifteen million dollars' revenue. As an instance of the manner in which crime diminishes, where strong drink is not sold, Mr. Duggan quoted the case of the Prince Edward Island, which is under Provincial prohibition. Some time ago a census of the prisoners was taken and it was found that the various jails throughout the province were empty except one, and it contained only one prisoner and he was there for the offence of selling liquor illegally. Mr. Duggan cited further instances and closed his most interesting discourse with an optimistic word for the onward march of progress of prohibitory laws throughout the United States and Canada and the whole world.

Morning, afternoon and evening services in the Methodist church were conducted by the Lindsay Y.M.C.A. evangelistic band, led by Mr. Blingham. Splendid singing, both by the band, the choir and congregation gave to the meetings a feature of interest and vigor—that without music it would be impossible, to have. The meetings were certainly well conducted, interesting and profitable to all, and the members of the band were listened to with deep attention. Under an urgent appeal many decided to begin the new life for Christ.
