SIGNS OF SUMMER

The lark is singing carols from
Its flawless place on high,
The sunshine hangs its banners
Of tinted o'er the sky;
And the hum of busy insects ans-
Wers back the linnet's song,
While the mists have veiled the morn-
Ings, and the lovely days grow
Long;

Now the leaves are all a-tremble
With the passion of the breeze,
And the grain fields change their
Hollows like the billows of the Seas;

While each cricket chirps its chal-
Lenge from its refuge in the grass,
And the blossomed bows are nodding
To the pilgrims as they pass;
Summer's come!

Now the dragon flies are darting
Their winged jewels through the air,
And the birds are singing sweetly
To companions everywhere;
While the mountains blend their gran-
Deur into softly moulded lines,
And the rocks peep out in gladness
From their drapery of vines;
While the streams laugh very softly to
The willows as they pass,
Over the flowers cluster gayly in
Their many-tinted mass,
Till the velvet moss is spreading
There is carpeting of green,
And a fringe of bushes furnish per-
Fect framing of the scene.
Summer's come!

Now the forest's cooling shadows
Tempt to rest at sultry noon,
While the murmurs of the leaflets
Tempt to slumber with their tune;
When the clouds are fleecy whiteness,
When the atmosphere is bland,
And the season spreads its gladness
And its plenty o'er the land;
While the lakelet drinks the sunshine
While its mirrowed gold is still—
While it waits to clasp the streamlets
In it gayly down the hill,
While God's beauties, like soft bless-
Ings, permeate the earth and air,
And unspoken benedictions meet our
Visions everywhere,
Summer's come!

Now the air is perfume-laden thro-
Ugh the watches of the night;
When the moonlight on the meadows
Is a glorified delight,
While it gilds the lake and river, as it
Adorns rugged scenes
With its lights and shadows shifting
Through a million leafy screens;
Every pool of shining wonder, every
One unstudied art,
Every hill and valley making of its
Varied work a part;
Every day a dream of beauty, every
Night a new surprise,
Every hour a tempting picture for
Wonder-haunted eyes;
When all these are spread before us
—each a gem without alloy—
When the soil responds in gladness
And the earth is drunk with joy,
While the heart intones its anthems,
Joining nature in her praise,
And perfection meets perfection in a
Thousand wondrous ways,
Summer's come!

SICKLY BABIES

Weak, sickly babies are a great trial to mothers. They need constant care both night and day and often wear the mother out. Baby's own stomach is the cause of most of the trouble; it is very weak, and in consequence very easily upset. Baby's Own Tablets will cure all baby troubles. They are mildly laxative and give prompt relief. Concerning them Mrs. R. J. Balfour, Orwell, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach troubles and constipation from which our little girl suffered and the entire-ly cured her. They produced sound, refreshing sleep, and I regard them as indispensable in any home where there are little ones."

Mothers from all parts of Canada write in favor of Baby's Own Tablets, proving the claim that they are the very best medicine for all the minor ills of infants and young children. Guaranteed to contain no opiate. Price 25 cents a box at all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

—Wm. Allan, a farmer aged 45 years, who lived three miles south of Seaforth, was accidently killed on Thursday. While he and his little boy were carrying a log for the well pump from an adjoining field to the house, Mr. Allan slipped and fell, the log striking him on the neck and killing him almost instantly.

NEWARK OR NIAGARA.

Mr. C. C. James Makes Correction of Paragraph in The Globe.

Mr. C. C. James writes:— In The Globe of June 1st appears this editorial note:—

"It has not been generally noticed that the name 'Newark' was not given officially to Niagara immediately after it became the capital of Upper Canada. It continued to be called 'Niagara' during the first two sessions of the first Parliament, as shown by its records, and the name 'Newark' was substituted during the last three sessions. Fortunately after York became the capital the newer name fell into disuse."

The writer of this note is, I think, in error, and I beg to give my reasons.

There are in the Legislative Library typewritten copies of the journals of the first and second sessions of the first Parliament. They are headed "Newark, 17th September, 1792" and "Newark, 31st May, 1793." The name "Niagara" does not appear. There are no records of the 3rd, 4th and 5th sessions known to be in existence. They may be found some day, and I have no doubt that they also will be found as of Newark. The writer of your note probably drew his conclusions from the volume entitled "The Provincial Statutes, Revised, Corrected and Reprinted by Authority, York, 1818." In this volume the names are given as in your note; but it should be remembered that it was a compilation made at York a quarter of a century after the sessions, and is not an original record. The original record distinctly gives Newark, and is, I presume, the authority in the matter. But even apart from that, the York, 1818, volume could not be accepted as authoritative on this point, seeing that it makes a mistake in numbering the sessions running over a period of eight years. In the volume there is no fifth session to the first Parliament, it being numbered by mistake the first of the second. The mistake is continued until, strange to say, we find the fourth session of the third Parliament in 1803, and again the fourth session of the third Parliament in 1804. In this year (1804) the compilers rectified the matter, but why they did not retrace their steps and correct the previous errors is somewhat strange. The error, doubtless, arose through thinking that only four sessions must have been the limit.

These mistakes in numbering the sessions were corrected in the statutes issued at Kingston in 1831 by Thompson and Macfarlane, but the old error of Niagara and Newark was perpetuated, and, stranger still, the 1799 session held at York is credited to Newark.

One further comment may be added: The statement might be made that the Legislature did not meet at either Newark or Niagara. All of Governor Simcoe's proclamations and orders were issued simply from "Navy Hall." The sessions were held in "The Council Room, Navy Hall." In all the official reports as to the Governor's comings and goings Navy Hall is mentioned, not Niagara or Newark. Therefore we conclude that the Governor located his Government at Navy Hall, the official journals were dated at Newark, and the settlers used the names Newark and Niagara without any apparent distinction.—The Globe.

He Had Right Reasons.

A writer in The Clinton New Era can vouch for the truth of the following: A western ex-member of Parliament, whose expensive family kept him, while a member of the House, in an almost "chronic state of impecuniosity," was approached by a delegation, with a view of again entering the political arena. He refused, and for eight reasons. When asked what they were he replied, "The first is my wife, and the other seven are my seven children."

An Elastic Tip.

Diner.—Waiter, I've dropped a six pence. If you find it let me have it back; if you don't you may keep it.—Melbourne Weekly Times.

"He's an unfortunate man of letters." "Why, I never heard he was an author." "Well, he was the author of several letters that lost him a breach of promise case."—Melbourne Weekly Times.

A Safety Match.

Cora—Was it a love match? Dora—Well, as her money paid his debts and kept him out of gaol, I should say it was rather a safety match.—Melbourne Weekly.

Love of the Home Town.

It is generally conceded that the children who entertain the deepest love for the home town grow up into the most useful members of society. But no child can have much love for "the old town" if he or she is unacquainted with its history. It has come to be accepted as a reproach that while the average bright child of a dozen years is able to reel off glibly everything worth knowing about every country under the sun he is apt to find himself beyond his depth when he is asked the simplest question about the history of his own township or village or city, as the case may be.

A plan which makes for familiarity with the history of one's home and which may be easily adapted with the necessary modifications to this or to any other progressive community is being tried with great success by The New York Times to commemorate the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of New York's incorporation as a city. The Times has offered a large number of prizes and medals to pupils of the public schools. The pupils are required to write essays based upon a series of seven articles printed by The Times from the pen of an authority on the subject treated. Teachers of the classes from which the successful pupils come are also to be awarded premiums.

It will be readily seen how easily this plan might be adapted to the schools of any locality. Public spirited citizens will certainly see that the rewards in any such competition inaugurated by the teachers shall be commensurate with the effort put forth.

—An old man named Macdonald, whose home is supposed to be in Glen Robertson, Glengary county, was killed by a freight train one mile east of Cornwall station, on 10 o'clock. When the engine slowed up the unfortunate man's body was found underneath. Macdonald was about 70 years of age.

—The government steamer Eureka sank at Sorel, Que., on Thursday night in a peculiar manner. She had stopped to coal, being on the way to Quebec. The coal tilted the steamer, and as the port holes, which are close to the waterline, were open, the water rushed in and threatened a swamping. An effort was at once made to get across to the government drydock in the Richelieu river, but on the opposite shore the vessel sank. All on board managed to jump in time and escaped.

—According to mail advices, the Kaiting correspondent of The North China Daily News says a horrible spectacle was seen there of two men nailed to wooden crosses and four others hung in wooden cages being paraded along the streets and followed by thousands of people. All of the men were dead, except one of the two on the crosses. They were finally plied at the entrance of the west gate, where they were left exposed alternately to the rains and sun. The man on the cross lingered for three days and then he was poisoned; and large spikes were driven through his wrists and his legs just below the ankles. The crimes of the men in the cages were robbery of a house, burning and murder. The two men on the crosses had caught a Yamen runner tied him up to a tree and sliced him to pieces.

Big Stock Reduction Sale

$25,000 STOCK (Retail Prices) TO BE REDUCED TO $12,500

No Half way Reductions in Price. We Mean Things to go Lively. Whatever will sell them we are satisfied with.

This Sale Starts Friday, July 3rd.

We have large plans and fixed principles to follow in this business and this planning, his growth—this determination calls forth resolutness at every step. We'll sell the finest stuffs—sell them quickly—now that we've passed the season's height—we'll let our workers work without profit for the time being, clearing decks, for the Fifteen Thousand Dollars worth of New Fall Merchandise that will arrive here next month.

Here are the reasons why (we simply must sell) the extra $12,500.00—because we must follow our fixed rule (and give you the benefit)—not to carry over any goods into another season. Because, as you all know well we have no room for the Fifteen Thousand Dollars worth of New Fall Goods if we did not clear out this extra Twelve Thousand Five Hundred Dollars and because we are re arranging the different departments in our store.

We also place on sale several lines of New Seasonable Goods bought by our Syndicate last week at actually half price and less.

There are so many good things in this Sale that it is almost like choosing from a basket of eggs where all are good.
