River Question in Australia.

Notwithstanding all the tactless assaults on the Federation and the parochial attitude adopted toward national obligations at the recent Premiers' conference, writes our Melbourne correspondent, the Premiers have made a tremendous stride toward the settlement of the rivers question. They have secured a five years' truce between the three States of New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia, which are vitally interested in the waters of the Murray, by means of an agreement which, if ratified by the three Parliaments, will enable the States to carry through important water conservation works. Taking the second and clearer step first, it is a subject of intense satisfaction to Australians that conflict over riparian rights has been avoided. As the Nile is to Egypt, so is the Murray to great areas in New South Wales and Victoria. For waters are a sine qua non. South Australia has fought the schemes of her neighbor because she feared that the flow of water, when the Murray reached her territory, would be se low as to impede navigation. The agreement guarantees South Australia a flow of 337,000 cubic feet per minute, provides a commission to administer the schemes of the other States, and limits the diversions of water during the seven months, July to January inclusive, to 293,000 cubic feet per minute on the part of New South Wales, and 147,000 per minute on the part of Victoria, with lesser quantities during the rest of the year. The making of the agreement has been received with accla-Tenders will be received up to mation throughout the Common-AUGUST 1st, 1903, for the instal- wealth. Nothing short of a cata-
