WHAT THE EDITOR CANNOT DO

Don't think because the reporter sees you getting on the train that he ought to know who you are and where you are going, or if he sees you greet some friends that he knows who they are and where they are from. We aim to get all the news, but you may be the one we don't happen to know. We try to become familiar with names and faces, if possible. But during the years past we have been to church and failed to see you there; we have hung around the town pump, but some of you weren't there; we have loafed on the street; we've even risked our reputation on back streets on a dark night, but you weren't all there. And we'll be hanged if we know where to find you all. So if you are going or coming, or know anybody cutting up queer capers, let us know.—Belleville Intelligencer.

THE BODY'S KITCHEN

Dirty mouths are not only offensive and unsightly, but, according to the Lancet, a constant and serious menace to the health of their owners. Indeed, that journal goes so far as to say, "on the condition of the mouth much of the health of the nation depends." Being the gateway to lungs and stomach, through which all the food and drink and a portion of the air we consume must pass, its sanitary condition is as important as that of the household kitchen.
A very little care, in the form of two or three inexpensive daily scrubbing with a milk antiseptic, is all that is ordinarily necessary to keep this important entrance clean and sweet. Such a routine should be commenced early in the child's life, and insisted upon until it has become a habit. The average reader may be inclined to consider this a quite unnecessary warning, and decent care of the mouth certainly is much commoner than it used to be.

Among a considerable portion of the community, however, and particularly in the case of children, there is still need of much oral missionary work. A little observation of one's neighbors' mouths in street cars and other cosmopolitan public conveyances will amply justify this conclusion.

FARM CONDITIONS

Mr. Donald Sutherland, superintendent of Colonization for Ontario, in a report advances the statement that the higher cost of living is due to farm conditions. The farm products of Ontario, and he speaks as a practical farmer, could be increased by 100 per cent., were the land properly worked. He says he finds that not only are the farms of the Province, generally speaking, not being properly tilled, but that less of it is being cultivated than formerly.

The reason advanced for the fewer acres being under cultivation is a lack of competent farm labor. The population of the rural districts of Ontario has decreased from 1895 to 1907, by 114,991 while the population of the towns and cities has increased 587,008 during the same period.

This year there will be a decrease of 188,000 acres in Ontario's wheat production, and 800,000 fewer hogs are being raised. Other important products show a decline and account for the high prices prevailing for natural products.

Every county has contributed a quota to the settlement of Western Canada. The industries springing throughout the Province have aided in depleting the supply of farm help and brought about the present situation.

If the Ontario farmer can double his output by using improved methods, then he should be shown how right away, and if he is not seeding down part of his farm because of scarcity of help, the Provincial Government should assist him to get all he requires and of the right brand.

THE HOG SHORTAGE

The present shortage of live hogs in Ontario, says the Farmers' Sun, is a matter very much to be regretted. Perhaps no one regrets this more than the farmer himself, as he sees every day feed going to comparative waste when the current prices for live hogs is taken into consideration. Stories of whey being run into the drains from cheese factories as there is no demand for it to feed hogs at the farms, are not unheard of this summer, and this with good pasturage used to mean the great support of thousands of growing hogs throughout the country. The present high prices have stimulated the farmers to renewed efforts in the hog raising line, but the effects of a vacillating character to the trade are to be seen when such conditions arise as those existent at the present time when live hogs are quoted at $7.50 and over, and at the same time hog feed is going to waste. Moderate production, consistently followed, is the right doctrine for the farmer when it comes to the question of either sheep or swine. It works into the farm economy so well that it is profitable in a small way even when prices are not high, and gives him a share of the good things when times are better.

PLANT INSPECTED

Dr. Amyot, medical health officer for the Province of Ontario, took the preliminary steps this afternoon to prepare for a thorough test of the ozone purification plant. He came down from Toronto with Dr. Geo. H. Nasmith, another expert in purifying water, and with Mr. J. D. Flavell, chairman of the Water Commissioners, Mayor Begg, Mr. Ray, secretary of that Board, and Mr. Hammond, the plant was looked over.

Lindsay's Pioneer Roads

Memories of forgotten days are recalled by the excavations on Kent-st., between Cambridge and Sussex-sts. where tile drainage is being laid. In front of the park many old logs and portions of trees are being dug up by the workmen.

Those who lived in this town many years ago will tell of the swampy nature of the site of Lindsay at that time. In fact the town arose from the heart of a cedar swamp. Old men who have spent their boyhood and manhood days here recall the early days and the times the residents had in building roads and in keeping these roads in a passable state. A former resident was wont to tell how at time his father's wagon, pulled by oxen, would sometimes sink to the hubs in mud. The stalwart oxen often could not budge the wagon and help would have to be obtained before a forward move could be made.

Evidently Kent-st. was originally a corduroy road. This style of road was very much in vogue in the pioneer days perhaps because it was so readily constructed. Trees were cut down and the logs laid crossways on the site of the road. Sometimes earth and underbrush were thrown on top of this to alleviate to some degree at least, the roughness of the rudely constructed road. There was no time, or inclination, perhaps, to build solid gravel roads in those days. The earthenly settlers had their hours of daylight largely taken up with converting the virgin forest into tillable farms and sowing and harvesting the crops. It takes time and money to make good gravel roads and our ancestors in this part of the country had not much of either to spare.

The corduroy roads, when slightly covered with earth, were not so bad as often pictured. At least they were passable, even though they were rough. There are many of these roads in this county now, the majority of them being covered to the depth of several feet with earth and gravel. In shady lanes and by-paths in some parts of the county picturesque remains of some of these roads may yet be seen, and one may experience the 'bumpy-bump' sensation by driving over them. If the horse goes anyway fast it is not the easiest thing in the world to retain your seat.

Right where the drain runs across Kent-st., and under the park was, according to old residents, a very low and swampy piece of ground. At that point pieces of old logs, cedar trees and other timber was unearthed by the laborers engaged in the building of a modern road. Some interesting old relics were also located, linking the dim, distant past, with the more active present.

SUNDAY SCHOOL AFFAIR WAS WELL ATTENDED.

Grass Hill, July 27.—Our little village is still in existence—so much going on, almost too busy to record it.

The Sunday school picnic of Union school section No. 2, held some time ago, was a decided success. A large crowd gathered in Jewell's grove first to witness a good baseball match between the Giants and Grass Hill. It was lively game ably umpired by Arthur Lovett. The score resulted 8-11 in favor of the home team. Following the game were a number of races for the boys and girls. The last feature of the day was an ample supper provided by our ladies.

COW BECAME IMPALED ON THE FENCE AT FRANKLIN.

Franklin, July 26.—The farmers in this vicinity, like the crops, show a great change in their appearance, and it is not to be wondered at, for owing to the extreme dry weather recently experienced the prospects were very gloomy and at present every kind of grain is looking well. It is to be hoped that there will be a good yield.

Mr. Jos. Gardiner will finish cutting his fall wheat this week. He has a splendid crop.

Mr. Wm. Ball had the misfortune to lose a very fine cow on Friday. As the grass was not very good he thought she would help herself to something better, and, to keep her from getting into the adjacent field a 'poke' was put on her. In some way she broke her neck.
