Keatings to Kill All the June Bugs

What has become of that time honored superstition which credited Canada with being a frigid country whose poetical emblem was "Our Lady of the Snows"? It must be effectively dispelled, at least with our English friends, else why should Keatings of London, England, probably the oldest manufacturers of insect powder in the world, come to Canada to wage war against the merry June bug and other insects and household pests that are peculiar to Canada.

Keatings Powder is advertised and sold widely in Africa, India, Australia and, in fact, around the world wherever bugs are an annoyance. In Great Britain, when you want Keatings Insect Powder, you merely say "Keatings"—it is known so well. All the Old Country people know Keatings, and the Canadian soldiers who went to South Africa, remember it gratefully.

In the words of the poet, Keatings Powder comes to Canada to help our Lady of the Snows "set her house in order." Keatings has been doing this the world over with the British colonies. Canada is not altogether a bugless country and Keatings is a welcome adjunct to the small comforts of life. As we become a greater nation we must expect more bugs. In a sense bugs are the measure of a nation's greatness. Therefore the consumption of Keatings is the measure of a nation's greatness.

Canadians should welcome the arrival of Keatings as a sign of the times.

Ten Modern Commandments

(Harrie Saturday Morning)

A reader of "Saturday Morning" has handed the following "Ten Commandments" to the editor. Some of them are good, but others would stand revision:

- Thou shalt not go away from home to do thy trading, nor thy son, nor thy daughter.
- Thou shalt patronize thy home merchant, and the home printer, for ye verily, doth not thy home printer spread over the glad tidings of thy goodness and greatness, and they shall patronize thee.
- Thou shalt employ thy own mechanics, that they may not be driven from their homes to find bread for their little ones. Thou shalt also consider him as thy neighbor above all them that dwelleth in a strange town.
- Thou shalt not ask for credit, as the goods cost much money, and the merchant's brain is hardened with bills. His children clamor daily for bread and his wife abideth at home for lack of such raiment as adorneth her sister. Blessed, ye, a thrice blessed, is the man who pays cash.
- Thou shalt not ask for reduced prices for things in demand, for behold guile is in thy heart, and the merchant readeth it like an open book. He laugheth you to scorn and shouteth to his clerks, "ha, ha!"
- Thou shalt do whatever lieth in thy power to encourage and promote the welfare of thine own town and thine own people.
- Thou shalt not suffer the voice of pride to overcome thee, and if other towns notice thee, consent them not, for thou mayest be deceived.
- Thou shalt spend thy earnings at home that they may return from whence they came and give nourishment to such as may come after thee.
- Thou shalt not bear false witness against the town wherein thou dwellest, but speak well of it to all men.
- Thou shalt keep these commandments and teach them to thy children, to the third and fourth generations, that they may be made to flourish and grow in plenty when thou art laid to rest with thy fathers.—Unknown Writer.

OBITUARY

ARTHUR EVERETT FELL.

Cameron, July 8.—Sadness and gloom reigned over our community on Thursday, June 29, when Arthur, Everett Fell, a young man of tender years, was taken from our midst to the great beyond where parting is no more, neither tears or sorrow known. He was but 19 years, 5 months and 29 days old, and will be greatly missed by all his companions and friends, which are many. He was sick but one short year, and during that time he was never heard to murmur or complain, and although his death was looked for for many days it came as a severe shock at the last. We wonder why one so young, so full of hope and energy should be taken away, but as the words of this old and familiar hymn read:

"I may not know why death should come,
To take the dear one from my home,
But though mine eyes with tears be dim,
The Lord knows what I'll trust in Him."

So though I may not understand
The leadings of our Father's hand
I know to all He has the key,
He understands each mystery.

We know God had a purpose in view when He took dear Everett from us. He was a member of the Cameron Methodist Sunday school and church and will be sadly missed by a host of sorrowing friends and acquaintances. Besides a fond father and devoted and loving mother he leaves to mourn their loss one brother, Mr. Harry Fell, of Allandale, and three sisters, Mrs. A. Campbell, at home; Mrs. J. Perrin, of Lindsay and Miss Gladys at home.

Interment took place on Saturday to Eden cemetery, where a large concourse of friends followed the remains of a dearly beloved comrade. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Garnet Maybee, Floyd Downer, Alton Anderson, Percy Cundal, Tom Oakley and Roy Perrin.

Among the floral tributes were a wreath from the family, a wreath from brother and wife, a wreath from Mrs. Walker and Eva, an anthurus from the Sunday school, and a wreath from the Women's Institute.

Among those from outside points attending the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. S. Wilson, and Mr. Bert Bryson, of Lindsay; Messrs. Fred and John Wallace and sister of Fenelon Falls, and Mr. Howard Bryson of Zion.

Heartfelt sympathy is felt for his father, mother, brother and sisters who have lost a loving and true son and brother, and to all his friends and companions.

Everyone Should Take a Holiday

It is well to take a holiday. No one can afford to do without a time of some part of the year. The man or woman who takes a month, more or less, of a rest and change from the regular routine of work or business can accomplish more in the remaining time than those who keep plugging away without any. If everybody waited until he could afford the time or the money to take a spell of there would be very few do to until they were long past. It is poor economy to keep plugging away wearing out one's strength and ability to work in the long run. When a person's health and strength are gone there is little left to enjoy, and nothing to make headway financially or otherwise. A time of rest is absolutely necessary to the maintenance of one's physical and mental strength and welfare. And when these departments of one's being become weakened, the moral and spiritual elements of life become weak also.

You therefore owe it to yourself and everybody depending on you. You will work better after it and be worth more to the man for whom you work or to yourself or to your family. You will be more physically fit, your temper will be sweeter, your intellect will be clearer and stronger, the blue tinge will disappear from your glasses, your ambition will be greater and your powers of accomplishment will measure up to the talents and gifts with which you have been endowed. In short, it will enable you to do your best.

There is one class whom it is not easy to see how they can get a holiday. That is the tired woman, the mothers who have to keep working away with their noses on the grindstone, as it is often said, while, perhaps, their daughters are taking the holiday. There are fresh air funts in Toronto for children, and in some cases for mothers. The muser believes that for the latter such funds could be instituted nearer home.

It is not necessary to go to the sea coast or to Muskoka to take a holiday, although if a person has money enough that is all right. There are lots of cool places along the shores of Kawartha lakes in the immediate vicinity, or if one can not do better and he is fond of camp life he could find spots in the woods around Lindsay, provided always the proprietor gave him leave, where camping might be done. The main thing is change of scene to get the mind away from the routine of ordinary work.

JUNE WEDDINGS

ADAMS-DAVIS.
Port Perry Star—Saturday, June 24, was a perfect day for a wedding. Everybody was pleased that the day should be fine when one of Port Perry's leading business men was united in marriage to one of the town's most popular and best respected young ladies. The contracting parties were Mr. David Long Adams and Miss Edna Alberta Davis.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. R. H. Leitch, in the Methodist church. The altar was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and bouquets of pink peonies. In the choir were some thirty young ladies (each wearing a rosebud, the gift of the bride's father) a number of these being members of Miss Adams' Sunday School class. Miss Williams and organist and gave those splendid musical productions—Mendelssohn's and Lohengrin's wedding march.

The bridal party consisted of three bridesmaids, the bride and her father and the groom. The bridesmaids were attired in gowns of blue silk crepe de chine and black gingham; each had a carried bouquet of pink roses. These young ladies were Miss Mary Davis, Miss Grace Davis, and Miss Zetta Lambert of Lindsay.

The bride was gowned in ivory duchess satin and pearls, wearing the gift of the groom, a beautiful pearl necklace. She also wore a Juliet cap of pearls and carried an Empire shower of lily of the valley.

Then the public part of this function was over and the guests, some seventy-five in number, went to the bride's home where they were royally entertained at the wedding breakfast, catered by Cole's, of Toronto. The house decorations were of unusual beauty, consisting in drapery of asparagus fern and a profusion of roses, hundreds of beautiful rose buds were pendant. Then in the hallway were ropes of daisies and asparagus fern.

When the wedding breakfast was over Mr. and Mrs. Adams went to Myrtle Station accompanied by many friends who gave them a send-off. They took train for Toronto, and will travel on the Saginaw route for their honeymoon.

The guests from a distance included Miss Zetta Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Dossal and Mrs. C. Williams, of Lindsay.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cared by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—I suffered two years with female disorders. My health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook. I was so weak I could not walk without my back nearly killing me and would have given up if I had not had Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and an enjoyable good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand. I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it.—Mrs. CLARA WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

The Fly-Fighter Should be Encouraged

The fly-fighters, says the Ottawa Free Press, might have chosen a more elegant slogan, but scarcely one which would have been more vigorous. Science is just beginning to make an impression upon the public of the really deadly character of this little pest. Ninety-eight per cent. of all flies in our homes are ordinary house flies, and these, medical authorities declare them to be more truly called "typhoid flies." Dirty stables, dirty homes, dirty people, dirty surroundings and typhoid flies are always seen together. Manure, garbage and filth-breed flies and disease at the same time. Flies transmit typhoid fever, chiefly because they are essentially unclean insects. They are born in filth and they delight in living in filth, and they vault and coo-poo, and manure piles and garbage piles could be shut off from flies, the fly pestilence would be at an end. The feet of the flies are such a nuisance and when a fly alights on any object it causes more or less of that material to stick to its feet, and when he flies elsewhere he may leave the particles on the object on which he alights. This has been proved by allowing a fly caught in the house of a typhoid fever patient to walk over a gelatine plate, leaving on the plate not merely his tracks, but the germs which his feet had carried. When the plate was exposed in an incubator it was found that within two or three days millions of bacteria had grown from the number deposited by one fly. It is also a significant fact that the Japanese army in the war with Russia was under such strict medical supervision that each soldier was transformed into a fly-catcher. Medical scouts preceded the army, marking wells with bad water, swamps and stagnant pools, treating them with fly killing chemicals. As a result, out of an army of about 1,000,000 men, only 299 died of typhoid fever. The mortality records from disease in the Russian army are not available, but thousands are said to have perished by that disease. Take a day off and go thoroughly through your house, especially the basement. Get out all the old rags and bits of carpet which have been thrown there. They are probably mouldy and useless. These are fine breeding places for Mrs. Fly. Burn them up. See that all rubbish and dust is also carried out. Examine the garbage pails. See that the covers fit tightly. Spray the cans inside and out with kerosene and carbolic acid. Flies will keep away from anything so sprayed. Wet a cloth with kerosene and wipe off the inside of each screen door every morning. This will keep the flies from hovering about the doors for a chance to enter. These are all measures for health. They may save doctor's bills; they may even save your child from fever. The expense is trifling compared with the saving. One way for legislatures to settle the hatching question is to abolish hats.
