"Much obliged, Miss Dale" still chuckling, he hastily left the room.

CHAPTER X.
THAT FANCHON WOMAN.

YOU heard, Mrs. Mason. You heard what he said." Ann sprang to her feet and whirled fiercely toward the elderly woman. "Keep the secret in his own name to buy the woman he needed most; buy Rose Fanchon or buy his own wife! A moment ago you heard him practically offer to me for his silence."

"Even then, knowing he had sold his honor for money, I was ready to believe he had done it for the best. I was ready to believe his excuse of me and the children. But he has betrayed me. His eyes smile lies; his lips speak lies; his lips!"

She rubbed her hands almost brutally over her mouth, as though trying to rub away the brand of some foul disgrace. With one last desperate effort for self mastery she walked to the door through which her husband had passed and commanded in a voice of deadly calm:

"Come out! Come here!"

"Yes, Anna, I'm here," answered he, appearing with a smile. Absorbed in his own thoughts, he had not noticed the tone of her words.

"Robert Granger, how did you dare tell me you needed me! I say, how did you dare? What kind of a thing are you? You thought you could buy your own wife. You'd take the money from—"

"From Rose Fanchon—and hand it to me. You don't need her just now, do you? Rose Fanchon or me? Or another? It would be all the same. And that's the man I married!" She paused for a breath, snarled with the fury of her scorn.

Granger stood staring wretchedly at her, the incarnation of shame and despair. Finally he tried weakly to set right the thing that never could be set right; tried to explain it away and bully or beg himself back into his wife's heart.

"Of course, I—er—well, Anna! I want to apologize about Rose—Rose—that Fanchon woman. It was all her fault. You see, she was up against a awful lot with some money. With his practiced cunning, he saw he was on the wrong track. He changed his tactics. Little venal little but he was—"

"When I was up there," he nodded across the Hudson, "a man came to see me one day and he said 'well, of course, I laughed down here but my wife was living here with Barton Temple, living here with an unmarried man. Well, as I say, I laughed him down; I wouldn't let him see'—"

He paused for a second, arrested by Anna's instinctive recoiling. Two little steps she took, steady as a rock, by both hands on the table back of her. The pupils of her gray eyes were black and big with horror.

"Oh, you needn't take it like that," he went on magnanimously. "Why, I'm not going to ask you a single question, not one. I won't try to learn how far it's gone; I'll overlook—we're both of us—we'll be all right. Only, really, I must ask you to come along now. I've no time to spare."

Col. Hughes Goes West

TO INSPECT MILITIA PROPERTIES AND ASCERTAIN NEEDS.

Hon. Col. Hughes, accompanied by Mrs. Hughes and the Misses Hughes left Sunday night in Mon. Hughes private car on a four weeks' trip to the Pacific Coast. Col. Hughes will inspect the various militia properties in the West and will ascertain the needs of the western Provinces in regard to militia organizations, the erection of drill halls, etc.

A number of western towns and cities are pressing for armories, rifle ranges and other necessities of military organization and the Colonel will find out at first hand just what local conditions warrant in the way of expenditures by his department. He expects to be back in Ottawa about the middle of August and will sail on the 21st with a half-dozen Canadian officers to attend the British army manoeuvres in September. He will also spend a few days watching the French and German manoeuvres before returning to Canada about the end of September.

Barrie council has adopted a by-law prohibiting bathing from the public wharves of the town.

Skim-Milk Cows

Many of our rural readers will be interested in some facts, recently come to light in the State of Ohio, which show that the watering or skimming of milk is being done by the cows themselves, and not by their owners. This is what Commissioner Strode, of the Ohio Dairy and Food Commission, says about it:

"Observation during a period of ten years and recent investigations by the State dairy and food department, have shown the somewhat startling fact that the average natural solid content of milk produced in Ohio is on the decline. Analyses of numerous samples of milk by chemists of the State department proved them to be below standard in solid content, which resulted in many prosecutions. These samples were purchased on the streets or upon delivery to milk depots, creameries and cheese factories in various parts of the State and these samples were thoroughly representative of the product sold."

"It could not be believed that so many producers were actually watering or skimming their milk, and this led to further investigation. Inspectors visited a number of dairies and tested samples from individual cows for butter fat. Samples were also tested after the milk from a number of cows had been mixed. The result was surprising. There were cows whose milk barely tested 2.3 per cent., others ranging from this up to 3 per cent., which is the legal butter fat standard."

Evidently some of the milkmen had been fined for selling milk which, if adulterated at all, must have been adulterated by dame nature herself. The question is now, whether the court has a right to fine any and every cow which gives less than 3 per cent. milk. We don't think they have and yet how else can the milk be protected, and the quality of the dairy cow improved.

PLANNING A HANDY FARM

Have the fields as nearly the same size as possible in order to facilitate crop rotation.

Have as many fields as possible in direct connection with the barn lot.

Size of fields should be in proportion to size of farm.

Land of the same quality should be in the same enclosure.

Where there are streams on the farm, arrange the fields to border on them so as not to interfere with cultivation and to be more convenient for watering stock or irrigation.

Avoid needless fences on account of cost and maintenance.

Have the buildings near the centre of the farm giving due consideration to other advantages.

A pasture should be adjacent to the buildings.

Buildings should be located in reference to water supply.

Buildings should occupy poorest ground.

Buildings should be on a slight elevation whenever possible.

A south or east slope is desired.

Soil for buildings should be dry and well drained.

Buildings should not be located on high hills because inaccessible from fields or roads.

A timber windbreak should be secured.

A garden plot should be near.

Buildings should be placed in low valleys on account of lack of air and drainage and danger of frosts.

Buildings should be located on the side of the farm nearest the school, church and town.

Lots should be on the farther side of barn from house and screened from house by trees and well drained.

Two Electrocuted in Meaford Accident

Meaford, July 18.—A fatal accident, causing two deaths and marked by extraordinary features, occurred here at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when a piledriver used in the construction of the new Sykes bridge over the Big Head River overbalanced and started to fall upon a group of workmen beneath. A metal bolt at the very top of the piledriver caught in a wire which supplies electricity to the town from the plant of the Georgian Bay Milling Company, preventing the big machine from falling, but this circumstance, which meant the salvation of the workmen below, brought death to two others, for the electric current was diverted to the frame of the piledriver. William Cherry, of Meaford, operating the engine 50 feet away, received the charge through the steel cable of the piledriver and fell dead. A man named Johnson, whose home is at Owen Sound, was working half-way up the piledriver. He involuntarily seized the cable as the frame tipped, and was also killed, his body falling into the river. The water was so heavily charged with electricity that George Randle, of Meaford, who grasped Johnson's hand to draw out his body was rendered unconscious. The body was finally pulled out by looping a rope around it. Several spectators received slight shocks from the water or the piledriver frame before the power could be shut off. The bridge under construction is to replace one swept away in the Spring floods.

Had Dyspepsia For Ten Years

COULD NOT KEEP ANYTHING ON HER STOMACH

Dyspepsia is caused by poor digestion, and to get rid of this terrible affliction, it is necessary to place the stomach in a good condition. For this purpose Burdock Blood Bitters has no equal.

Mrs. Norman A. MacLeod, Port Bevis, N.S., writes: "For the last ten years I suffered dreadfully with dyspepsia, and I could not keep anything on my stomach. I tried several kinds of medicines, but none of them seemed to do me any good. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, which I did, and after using five bottles I was completely cured. I would advise any one troubled with stomach trouble to use B.B.B. I cannot recommend it too highly."

Eight Years of Bad Eczema on Hands

Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment

Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, writes, in a recent letter: "Some nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritating, and gradually became worse, so that I could not sleep at night. I consulted a physician who treated me a long time, but it got worse, and I could not put my hands in water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema. Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications the burning sensations were disappearing. I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and thought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding ease from Cuticura Ointment, it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Cuticura Ointment and Soap for nearly six months, and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone. It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me."

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 55 Columbus Ave., Boston, U.S.
