in "Time Does Not Wait," Riddled-G.T.P. Scheme Roundly Denounced by the Former Minister of Railways, Who Proposes as an Alternative the Principle of Government Ownership.

Ottawa, Aug. 12. - A powerful speech from Hon. A. G. Blair opened the debate on the resolution providing for the construction of a national transcontinental railway in the House yesterday. The former Minister of Railways talked for over four hours, and made an unanswerable defence of his position. He received no encouragement from his side of the House. In sullen silence the Government's following heard the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway scheme condemned. Early in his speech there was an interruption. It was the last. Mr. Blair turned on the interrupter, W. F. McGreary, Liberal member for Selkirk, and in a dozen words stripped the latter's assertion of every vestige of credibility. Again as Mr. Blair was rounding off his Mrs. (Rev.) McQuade, of Warsaw, argument in an appeal to his oldthe wife of a former Methodist pas- time supporters to lay a restraining hand upon the Government, a few derisive cheers came from the Gov-Mrs. Campbell and Dougals are ernment benches. Again Mr. Blair turned the tables on those who Mrs. Hadden, of Wick, is visiting sought to ridicule and discredit him.

What angered Liberals was Mr. Dr. McPhail attended the Grand Blair's ill-concealed contempt for the poetic phrases which graced the speech in which Sir Wilfrid Laurier Miss Shortridge is visiting her presented the scheme to the House. On this topic Mr. Blair undoubtedly set free some biting sarcasm, though than in any specific words.

More Accurate Statement.

"The Right Hon., the First Minister, says that time does not wait," said Mr. Blair early in his speech. "With all respect to him I say that it would be more accurate, if hot as poetic, to say that Senator Cox does

This was Mr. Blair's first smash or blow at the scheme, and it had no splendid isolation in his speech. On the whole the speech was broad and argumentative. That tribute is due him. He stated his objections to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway scheme on broad national grounds, and took up the New Brunswick aspect of the situation only in defence of the Intercolonial Railway. New Brunswickers who have committed themselves in favor of the Grand Trunk Pacific will think twice when they read Mr. Blair's speech. He showed the effect the new road would have on country served by the I.C.R., and on the city of Moncton, whose Board of Trade some time ago passed a resolution favoring the scheme. The picture he drew was a dismal one. Some of the Liberal members from New Brunswick who have been argued Vena McGill, of Janetville, nangle nim they put min in his own joined of build stable, where his owner found him Government on this question will pause before turning that picture to the wall.

> speech was his strong advocacy of the principle of public ownership. As an alternative to the Grand Trunk Pacific he favored the extension westward of the Intercolonial Railway, the purchase of the Canada Atlantic and its gradual extension westward as conditions warranted it. On no previous occasion has Mr. Blair come out so strengly for public ownership. He has now owned himself an earnest sympathizer with the cause, and while he admits some minor defects in the operation of the principle he seems to be ready to consider these as mere spots on the sun. Mr. Charlton Replies.

Mr. Charlton continued to defend the scheme until about 11 o'clock, when he moved the adjournment of the debate. He will have the floor when the House meets to-day.

Mr. Charlton argued that the Government had given the subject deep thought before coming to a decision upon it. He declared that this subject had been before the country for months-for years almost. The railway could not be built for five years, and the Government was simply preparing for conditions in the West five years hence when the production of that section would be quadrupled. Mr. Blair had accused the Government of being animated chiefly by a desire to please Senator Cox, "but that," said Mr. Charlton, "was an implication unworthy of the honorable gentleman as applied to his late colleagues, who are providing for a great national emergency." He declared that despite the fact that Mr. Blair had made light of it, the threat of the Americans to withdraw the bonding privilege was a real menace to this country.
