VICTORIA ROAD.

Mrs. E. V. Moore is at present visiting friends in Peterboro. Miss Pearl Graham is spending few weeks at Port Carling, Muskoka. They had a lovely day for the Kirkfield Public Library excursion. Among those from this village who enjoyed the outing were Dr. J. Grant and daughter, Miss Alma, Mr. J. W. Shields and daughters, Misses Margaret and Mabel, Miss Josie Gallagher, Miss C. Shields and the Misses Magwood.

Mr. Closs, a former teacher in the public school here, was back to see us last week, the guest of Mr. D.

Miss Ruby Thomson, of Hespeler, is the guest of her cousin, Jennie Shields. That was a thrilling game tennis that we had the other evening. What think ye, girls? So you beat Victoria Road Coboconk? Be honest! Or did your pitcher get tired at the third innings and leave the field in pursuit of a dish of Forse?"

Lightning's Freaks

A severe electric storm passed over and hail. Mr. E. Cox's summer hotel at Port Sanafield was struck by lightning and three beds were stroyed, one of which was occupied by a sick lady visitor. Strange to say that though the lady had been obliged to keep her bed for time, she was up and about the morning after the storm.

During the heavy electrical storm on Sunday afternoon Mr. Wm. Calverloy's house on West street. Orillia, was struck by lightning, the chimney being demolished and stove pipes knocked down. The rent grounded in the furnace in cellar, no person fortunately being injured, Several shade trees in different parts of the town suffered more or less from the lightning.

During a storm at Washington, D. C., on July 11, 1906, at the branch office of the Scientific American, says Gould. that journal, lightning struck the electric wires that supply the office with light and power.
