Crop Conditions - In The West

Portage la Prairie, Aug. 4.—This is one of the towns in the West that has not had its "boom." Its growth to a population of seven thousand has been steady and consistent and as a result it has the appearance and tone of being well established and resourceful. The Portage plains have no superior as a crop district and this year the yield will not be under twenty bushels to the acre. Merchants and real estate men look for the best year in the history of the town. The future of Portage la Prairie, however, does not depend altogether on the amount of wheat that can be produced from the surrounding district, exceptionally fertile as it is. Some day, elapsed, a hydro-electric system will be inaugurated in Manitoba, and electric power will operate a line of radial cars from Winnipeg to Portage. Already the municipalities within a convenient radius of Winnipeg are being consulted about the use of the power that is being developed on the Winnipeg River. The introduction of a cheap power would mean much to this town in its endeavor to establish industries and no one could mistake the aspirations of the people here towards industrial development. There are now large milling and foundry plants, as well as two flourishing brick yards in the town, employing in all about five hundred hands. In talking with the mayor of Portage la Prairie, Mr. Garland, he pointed out the facilities for distribution that were afforded to all parts of the West from this point. Three Canadian transcontinental lines and a branch of the Great Northern from the south across here and property along the tracks is both cheap and accessible. It was only natural in view of the plans laid and premeditated in this municipality to find a distinct feeling of opposition to the proposals for freer trade with the United States. The Mayor, Mr. Garland, speaking for himself, was of the opinion that all the towns in the West like Portage la Prairie would oppose the reciprocity agreement, and "I don't think all the farmers are in favor of it, either, by any means," he added. It was the Mayor who also said that Mr. Borden's straightforward remarks had left a decided impression upon the people of this district regarding the fallacy of reciprocal trade with the United States. Mr. Arthur Meighen, M.P., was found in his office, and while anticipating a close fight for his seat, he has every confidence in the judgment of his constituents, the greater part of whom, he believes, sees that the towns and cities of Western Canada must suffer if the adjacent farms are to become mere grain producers for the United States; a condition that would surely be realized under reciprocity. While nine-tenths of the harvest taken from the Portage plains this year will be wheat, there has been a larger proportion than usual of mixed farming throughout the district. More flax has been grown than ever before, largely owing to the insistent demand and big prices for it last season. Few realize that the increasing interest in the flax industry dates back to, and is largely dependent upon, the protective duty of ten cents per bushel imposed on American flax in 1907. Before that year Canada was an importer of United States flax; to-day conditions are just the reverse. Barley and oats, however, form a comparatively small part of the total crop and the grade of barley is particularly low, being suitable only for feeding. Livestock was pretty well cleaned out of the district last year and there are not even enough cattle, sheep or swine to consume the comparatively small production of fodder crop. The anomaly of the entire situation is also striking when one sees the farmer producing his supply of butter and eggs from the town store. "You simply can't get him to raise those other food products at this stage of the agricultural game," said one of the merchants. "There is money in it, just as much as in growing wheat, and it would be better for the land, but it is easier work for the time being to grow grain and import the other stuff." There is this marked division of interests between town and country at Portage la Prairie, both selfish, perhaps, but the sooner the two elements get together the better for all concerned. The point of the situation is that the town realizes what is wrong, and it is the town voter that will do all he can to forestall reciprocity. There is a farmer here and there, too, who will express himself as opposed to free competition in agriculture with the United States. One of these kind was overheard from the writing room at the hotel making the challenge to a friend that he would bet ten dollars against Laurier's chances of being elected on this reciprocity deal. Strange to say, the farmer's name upon inquiry was found to be MacDonald and nothing was heard about the wager being accepted. HING ILLAE LACHRYMAE.
By Frederick Augustus Dixon.
Last night, and there came a guest,
A guest, and I could not speak;
A guest, and she could busy cry,
And he went, but with no good-bye.
A little before the dawn
He came, but he did not stay;
And he left us alone with our tears,
For he carried out babe away,
Was there ever a sadder day!
Had you ever a babe of a year,
With curls on a tiny head,
With limbs like the peach's bloom,
And meant that your babe was dead?
Could you have been comforted?
Had it bound itself to your heart,
As with fairy gossamer strand,
Slight as that of the worm,
Strong as the hempen band
Which holds tall ships to the land?
Did you look in its baby eyes
As your treasure lay on your knee,
And wonder what things they saw,
And see, what they could not see,
The life that was yet to be?
Did it lie at your breast day by day
While you gathered it near and more near?
Did it sleep on your bosom by night,
Ever growing so dear, oh, so dear,
Your darling, your babe of a year?
While you dreamed of the wonder
you held,
A thing of so perfect a plan,
Of the wonderful mystery of birth,
Of the wonderful mystery of man,
As only a mother can—
Till your heart, like a human thing,
Seemed to yearn for the child at your side—
Years to gather it in to itself,
To the love that swept up, like a tide
Whose fullness is ever denied?
If to you came that terrible guest
We so dreaded, my wife and I,
You will know why I could not speak,
You will know why she could not cry—
You have seen your own baby die.

THE MEN OF MY HEART'S DESIRE.
By Theodore Roberts.
Where are the men of my heart's desire—
Of the British blood and the loyal names?
Some are North, at the home hearth-fire,
Where the hemlock glooms and the maple flames,
And some are tramping the old world round
For the pot of gold they have never found.
Oh, lead are the men of my heart's desire—
Their fathers were leal in the days gone by—
And their blood is blithe with the subtle fire
The purple breeds, and their hearts are high—
Poor, and gallant, and dear to me,
With a strong hand each, and a pedigree.
Good men are bred in the East and the West,
And ripe, true gentles in Boston town,
But the men of my blood to my blood seem best—
Who still hold the honor of Mitre and Crown—
Though empty their cellars and worn their attire,
These are the men of my heart's desire.
So, gentles, these stumbling rhymes I send
To your spruce-clad hills, for a word of cheer—
Where there's ever a welcome and ever a friend,
And the brown coat covers the cavalier.
Take them, I pray you, for what they are worth,
For I swear by my soul you're the salt of the earth.

THE HEPATICA.
By Theodore Harding Rand.
Hail, first of the spring,
Pearly sky-tinted thing,
Touched with pencil of Him
Who rolls the year!
Lo, thy aureole rim
No painter may limn—
Vision thou hast, and no fear!
Fair child of the light,
What fixes thy sight?
Wide-open thy roll
From the seal of the clod,
And thy heaven-writ scroll
Glow, beautiful soul,
With the shining of God!
Thou look'st into heaven—
—surely as Stephen,
So steadfast thy will is!
And from earth's insignificance
Seest Christ of the lilies
And daffadowndillies,
And catchest His look.
And a portion is mine,
Rapt gazer divine,
From thy countenance gives
Angel bliss in thy face!
I've looked into heaven
As surely as Stephen,
Rum out of my place!

Farmer Opposes Reciprocity

Moose Jaw, Sask., Aug. 11. — A very large and enthusiastic Conservative convention for Moose Jaw constituency yesterday nominated S. K. Rothwell, one of the best known farmers in the district for the Commons. He is an old-timer and one of the biggest and most prosperous agriculturists in the province, farming two thousand acres. His nomination is most important because of his opposition to reciprocity. The Conservative party in this riding never went into a campaign with so much enthusiasm as it enters this one.

MINDEN

Minden, Aug. 10. — Miss Crossly and Miss G. D. Craig, both of Toronto, arrived this week to join the campers on Gull Lake. Mr. Walter Welch arrived home on Friday from Port Perry where he spent a very pleasant holiday. Miss Ruby Small returned home this week accompanied by her friend, Miss Muriel Curry, of Peterboro, who intends spending a holiday up here. Scarlet fever has broken out in our village in the home of Mr. John Welch and also that of Mrs. McCracken, but the patients are doing nicely under the care of Dr. Pogue, and every precaution is being taken to stop the spread of the disease. Mr. Graham and Mr. Guy, both of Fenelon Falls, are camped at the head of Gull Lake. There are sixteen campers, all of Toronto, camped on one of Mr. Z. Turnbull's lots at the head of the lake. They are having a pleasant time and claim that Gull Lake is the best.

Some Fast Boats at St. Point Regatta

The seventh annual regatta held at Sturgeon Point on Monday was a great success the day being almost perfect and the races keenly contested. As usual the crowd was principally from Lindsay, the Monarch being loaded down at both trips and was unable to take on a large number. The lake was covered with yachts all day, they being of all sizes and speed and coming from points all around. The Wacouta also took a load from Fenelon Falls while the yachts from other villages in the vicinity were well loaded. The races were very keenly contested and were watched with interest by the large crowd. Some very speedy boats were entered and the records in almost all the events were broken: The motor boat races were divided into four classes. Class C. open to all comers (no handicap). Class A. and B. for semi-speed boats; and class D. family launches. The boats in classes A. B. and C. were sent over the course in the morning, to make a speed record; any boat exceeding this speed by more than 5 per cent. in the afternoon races, to be disqualified. "Wa-Wa" was the scratch boat in Class A. "Roy III" and "Eala" in Class B. Mr. Grace's boat in Class D. The amount of handicap allowed the other boats

NEW TEACHING STAFF AT 'CAYGEON

Bobcaygeon, Aug. 12. — The new staff of teachers who will man the schools after vacation is announced as follows: Mr. Mills, of Haliburton as principal; Miss Young and Miss Haugh taking Mr. Young's and Miss McKay's rooms; Miss Smith at Rokeby and Miss Thompson re-engaged. Mr. Mills was in town a short time ago getting acquainted with Mr. W. J. Read, of Peterboro who is in town for a few days last week and while here conducted a sale of furniture at Dr. Wallace's on Thursday. Mr. Warren was auctioneer, and good prices were obtained. The property was not offered. Quite a number attended the Civic Holiday celebration at Fenelon Falls last Wednesday. The Bobcaygeon band under the leadership of W. E. Brooks with the bag pipers, Messrs. Liman, of Glenora, supplied the music for the day. The baseball team were there for the first game, but were beaten by Camington by a score of 10 to 2. A pleasant day is reported. The Bobcaygeon band will run an excursion to Kirkfield lifflock on Wednesday, the 16th, our Civic Holiday is an all day trip over the Kawartha, leaving here at 7.30 a.m. This day. At a meeting of the Women's Institute on Tuesday, the 8th, at Mrs. Phillips, King-st., Miss J. Robinson gave a very excellent address on the Women of India and of their moral and social customs. Women were for the most part illiterate and were so bound by the customs of caste that it was impossible for them to rise any higher in the social life than the caste they were born. She showed how important it was to teach them which could only be done through the children. That was the kind of missionary work she was engaged in. The garden party under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild, Church of England, was held on the church lawn Thursday evening and was a great success. The Bobcaygeon band supplied the music and were at their best. The Coronation pictures were quite a drawing card and were fine. A meeting of the cottagers of Pigeon Lake was called for Thursday for the purpose of organizing the
