LAUGHTER IN THE MORNING.

Dame Fortune hath a soul of wrath For those who truckle to her, She loves to flout and put to rout Weak hearts that, trembling, woo her; But mild as milk and soft as silk Is she, all others scorning,

To that bold wight who braves her spite

With laughter in the morning. The breakfast face of cheerful grace, Full well this vixen knows it; Against her will it wins her still, 'Tis hopeless to oppose it. So yields the jade full sore dismayed

With her best gifts adorning The dauntless foe who tempts her blow With laughter in the morning. -Ripley D. Saunders in St. Louis Republic

Broadly speaking, girls are divided into two great classes-the ones who find and the ones who lose.

Meta is a girl who finds. Ownerless earrings and brooches and shirt studs are scattered along her pathway, entreating her to pick them up, whichever way she strolls, and little things like horseshoes and four leaved clovers seem to leap up in the most unlikely places at the first sound of her step.

"Guess what I found today?" is her regular form of greeting; so no one was surprised when the question came that day at Georgia's tea.

"Oh, I don't know," said Lilian indifferently. "Probably a cotton handkerchief or somebody's other glove." Lilian is one of the girls who couldn't find anything if they would. Possibly that's the reason she assumes the manner of one who wouldn't if she could.

Meta gave a withering glance at the scoffer. Then she removed her Ladysmith hat and extracted from its crown a roll of money, which she spread upon her lap. A $50, a $20 and a $10 bill stared out. "Counterfeit!" gasped Lillan.

"No. sir. Uncle Mac says they're as good as any ever made." "You didn't find them, Meta; you're joking," protested Georgia. "No joke about it. I was walking down Wabash avenue, and stacks of people were passing in both directions, too, but suddenly there was an open space about a yard square right in front of me, and straight in the middle of it lay this money, all rolled up. It just seemed as though the crowd parted and everybody looked the other way on purpose to let me have it."

"Well, I never!" sang the chorus. "What are you going to use it for, Meta?" somebody asked, but Lilian, whose interest had revived wonderfully, didn't give her time to answer.

"Use it for?" she cried. "Do you s'pose Meta would spend that money? Think of the poor woman who lost it!" "Woman, indeed!" retorted Meta.

"Uncle Mac doesn't think that. He says there's a little pocket just inside the waist band of his trousers where he keeps a wad of bills-whenever he has one-and that it's the easiest thing in the world to slip the money in back of the pocket instead of into it. And I asked him if that ever happened to beneficent fairy in my life. Oh, dear, him. You ought to have seen how guilty he looked when he said, 'Once; but don't tell Ellen!' That's my aunt, you know. Well, we think-Uncle Mac and I-that some rich club fellow lost it and that he'd put it to some extravagant use even if he had it again."

"Or a fagged out woman clerk," add- formances!" ed Georgia.

"Well, I wouldn't take it from a woman any sooner than you would," declared Meta. "Of course I wouldn't mind so much if it belonged to a man. But I intend to advertise it anyway."

"Certainly!" exclaimed Lilian, as if she'd been thinking of that all the "That's the proper thing to do." And blue eyed innocent added, "I should just use that money for advertising every day in every paper until ed to make plain to the children the there wasn't a cent left."

Meta pursed her lips. "Well, I'm taking Uncle Mac's advice about this," she said. "He says to study the papers a day or two and see if the loser advertises. Then, after that, he says to advertise: 'Found-Sum of money, at such a place, at such a time.' Not a word to give a false claimant any help in identifying the bills, you see. But he doesn't think I'll ever find the owner, and, say, girls, if he shouldn't turn up, what do you say to a lake trip together or some kind of a regular spree with this money?"

"I couldn't enjoy it," said the righteous Lilian.

"Not unless you gave half to a hospital," amended another. "Oh, I don't know," dissented Geor-

"I think my conscience would take in a trip to Mackinac." "Good for you!" replied Meta, as she rolled up her wealth and put on her

"We'll spend it all for gum if we want to, Georgia, and we won't hitch the minister to a cart and make treat them, either-see if we do!" They didn't see her again for three weeks, and then she came flying in to luncheon at Lilian's with a look in her eyes as if she'd just fallen heir to a million in gold. "I've had the loveliest experience in the world?" she announced. "You remember that money I found? Well, I waited a few days, as Uncle Mac said, and no one advertised the loss; so I put one in myself. Told them to address X. the newspaper office, you knowthe way they do. Next morning I went down to get the returns. There were nine answers, and of all the pathetic things! Not one of the people The Mist had lost their money on the day or at the place I ferr they were just as hopefu and they actually made sponsible for their losses ) bad "First there was a n dropped a small, flat, blace a pawn ticket, a laundry bill and two $2 bills in it. And distressed over it! You'd think he'd lost a gold mine. And he was so sure 'twas his money I'd found-poor fellow! Then a woman poured out a whole sheetful of her heart, and drew a picture of the purse she'd lost, and told me how the money in it belonged to her sister, who was in the hospital and who needed it dreadfully, and how I'd be blessed forever if I only restored it. Next there was an old man who had dropped two $20 bills, and he went on in a shaky, feeble hand to explain that the reason he was carrying it was because he couldn't trust the banks; and then another girl, who told about an alligator skin pocketbook containing a latchkey and a time pass over the Cincinnati, Jackson and Mackinac road. When I showed that to Uncle Mac afterward he said that road was a regular joke. because it didn't run to any of the places mentioned in its name, and he just shouted over the pass, because it had expired Sept. 30, 1897. But it wasn't funny to me. I thought the girl must be in a sad way to be hanging on to an expired pass over a road like that for three whole years. Besides, she mentioned in a postscript that there was a $5 bill in her purse.

"I got awfully worked up over these letters. Then, suddenly, I had a brilliant idea. I just made up my mind to wait a week and then, if no one claimed that $80, to send for all those forlorn people and pay them what they had lest out of what I had found. I didn't dare tell Uncle Mac the scheme until the week had passed and I had really written notifying them all to be at his office at 10 o'clock this morning. Then I just gave him the news all in one piece. I don't believe in breaking things, especially when you've set your heart on doing them. "Oh, he thought I was crazy, of course, and wished he'd answered my 'ad.' himself and claimed the money. Said he could have done it through some one else so I would never have suspected, and then could have kept the money for me until this fit of sentimental foolishness had passed off -and all that sort of talk. But the end of it was that he took a chair over by the window in his office and let me have things all my own way with the people I had sent for. They all came, mind you, and of all the surprised looking beings! Each one was expecting to find the identical purse he had lost, and at first every one looked suspicious of every one else. They couldn't seem to grasp the situation. "I had the money all changed into the right amounts and lying in tempting little heaps on Uncle Mac's desk. First I made a little speech and then served gold and silver refreshments. It took every cent of the money, and I had to put in a dollar besides, so there goes our gum, Georgia. But you wouldn't grudge it if you'd been there. Such larks! I never felt so much like a fun! Vaudevilles are nowhere. And say, the man who lost the pawn ticket will never get over his grudge against me because I couldn't give that back. He thinks I've lost him a fortune! But the rest were more than sweet. Girls, I've been blessed and hugged, and the "But I can't help thinking about old man with the two $20 goldpieces some poor old washerwoman who actually kissed my hand. Think of that, will you? And the woman with the sister in the hospital was so happy! "Washerwomen without another cent | And I cried. Me crying-can you see are so likely to go strewing $80 rolls | it? And Uncle Mac needn't pretend be wasn't wiping his own eyes either. But "More likely 'twas a schoolteacher when they were gone he squared with her month's salary. The Installation.

The day on which I was installed in my present charge I was requested to address the Sunday school. I attemptidea of installation. In doing so I related this anecdote: A congregation has called a new minister. His installation is announced for a certain Sunday. Coming home from church a boy who evidently has listened to the announcement very attentively, asks his father: "Father, what do they do when they install a minister? Do they put him in a stall?" "No," replies the latter, "they hitch him to a congregation and make him pull."

A little girl had evidently not seen the point in this, for when she got home she told her mother-the mother related this to me afterward-that she wanted to go to church that evening. My installation was to take place in the evening. "What for, my dear? You never go to church in the evening." "Well, but the minister said we should come, and then I want to see it, too." "What do you want to see?" "Don't you know, mamma?" "No. What do you mean?" "Why, they are going to Homiletic Review.
