A LITTLE HOG LORE

Buyer W. J. Moore Says that it is a Safe Thing to Raise Pigs Freely for Some Time to Come

"What are you doing in the hog business now-a-days?" said a Watchman-Warder reporter to Mr. W. J. Moore on Thursday.

"We are shipping some all the time," replied Mr. Moore. "I sent a load to Park, Blackwell today. They are a little off in price this week—a quarter less than last week. We are still paying 7 cents but it is too high considering the English market. From the farmer's wagon 6 1/2 is all that we ought to give. But hogs are scarce, and the price will not go down very much for some time."

In reply to a remark that it is a wonder that farmers had not gone more heavily into hog-raising since the prices have been up, Mr. Moore said: "They have been afraid that the market would go to pieces and so they have not gone into hogs heavily. Of course there are some exceptions. Mr. Sam. Parkin of Ops has raised a good many. I have bought five loads from him this summer and paid from $130 to $190.75 per load from them. I think that last figure is the highest paid here for one load. Mr. Parkin said to me lately, 'What will you give me for the pigs I have out there now?' I told him I should have to give about $1200. He said 'I guess you had better take them.' I told him to get them ready. He has 99 of them and by the time they are in condition will likely be worth all of $1200.

There is no danger of the supply becoming too great. The demand abroad is very heavy. This year is a good one for the British laborer and he is eating bacon and eggs for breakfast every morning. When he has money nothing is too good for him to eat. And, at any rate, what we raise in Canada is not likely to glut the market. Very few pigs are raised in any of the provinces but Ontario and it is perfectly safe to go into hog-raising as heavy as possible for a year at least. One trouble is that the good prices have tempted farmers into selling their brood sows and thus the means of re-stocking is largely cut off.

There would have been more pigs this year only that last spring was a bad one for the young ones. Many of them died of something like quinsy and at present the country is bought out very close.

It is not hard to make pigs pay. Last fall I bought a pure-bred Tamworth sow at the Toronto Exhibition. Her two litters will be worth $90 to me this year. The feed is not very expensive except for a couple of months when the young are being suckled. Then the mother requires 100 pounds of chop a week at 80 cents per hundred. At other times the cost of feeding is light. On 200 acres a man can raise a great many hogs and grain to feed them."

DOES THE SOIL WEAR AWAY?

An Ops Farmer Holds the Opinion that it Does

In these days of progressive agriculture, and of special attention to soil culture, it would be a wonder if new theories were not set forth by intelligent farmers whose position enables them to so well make original investigation on the subject. They are among one of the most novel that we have heard was propounded by Mr. Johnston one day last week.

Mr. Johnston is a prosperous Ops farmer and when speaking of cultivation recently he said: "I believe that surface cultivation is a good thing. It is a mistake to plow too deep. We want a good, rich surface; but I am certain that soil actually wears away. It disappears at any rate. Likely it goes into the crops but it is true that in many cases where a few years ago the plow would not strike clay it now reaches it easily. Fields that had once a good depth of soil have not got it now. If the soil has not actually worn away, where is it?"

"Then where there is rock underlying it will in time be left bare?" ventured the reporter.

"Exactly," said Mr. Johnston. The thing is plainly illustrated by the shallow covering of soil that now covers clay which was once too deep down for the plow to reach. Soil is like your coat, constant wear will make it thin."

BADLY RUN DOWN

SYMPTOMS THAT MAY LEAD TO SERIOUS RESULTS

The Experience of Thomas Cada of Essex Co.—Nerves Seemed Shattered, and He Felt Unfitted to Stand Hard Work

From the Review, Windsor, Ont.

Mr. Thomas Cada, of Pike Creek, a small village in Essex county is known to almost everyone in that section. He is a son of Mr. John Cada, mill owner, and a prominent politician in his locality. A representative of the Windsor Review, who had known that some time previously Mr. Cada was in poor health, recently met him looking any thing but an invalid, and naturally asked what had restored him to health.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," promptly replied Mr. Cada. When asked if he would give the particulars for publication, Mr. Cada said "certainly, if you think it worth while; but there is nothing very wonderful about my case. I was simply badly run down; my nerves seemed to be all shattered, and I was unable to stand hard work. In fact work of any kind left me badly used up. There did not seem to be any organic trouble, it was just a case of being run down and worn out. I felt myself gradually getting worse, however, and I began taking medicine. I tried several advertised remedies, but they did not help me, indeed some of them did me more harm than good. Just then I read of a case much like mine cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I purchased a few boxes. Very soon I noticed a decided improvement in my condition and in the course of a few weeks I was feeling my old-time self. I can now eat heartily, do a good day's work with no unusual fatigue, and in fact feel thoroughly renewed in health and strength. Naturally I think 'Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a great medicine for those who are weak or ailing."

If you are feeling run down, and easily tired, you need a tonic to put you right—to make you feel bright, active and strong, and the only always reliable tonic is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Give these pills a fair trial and you will find that their curative powers have not been over-praised. Sold by all dealers in medicine, or sent post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE OLD FASHIONED BOY.

Oh, for a glimpse of a natural boy— A boy with freckled face, With forehead white 'neath tangled hair And limbs devoid of grace:

Whose feet toe in, while his elbows flare; Whose knees are patched all ways; Who turns as red as a lobster when You give him a word of praise;

A boy who's born with an appetite, Who seeks the pantry shelf; To eat his "pieces" with resounding smack, Who isn't gone on himself;

A "Robinson Crusoe" reading boy, Whose pockets bulge with trash; Who knows the use of rod and gun And where the brook trout splash.

It's true he'll sit in the easiest chair With his hat on his tumbled head; That his hands and feet are everywhere, For youth must have room to spread,

But he doesn't dub his father "old man" Nor deny his mother's call Nor ridicule what his elders say Or think that he knows it all.

A rough and wholesome natural boy Of a good old-fashioned clay; God bless him, he's still on earth, For he'll make a man some day! —Detroit Free Press.

WHAT TWO BELLS MEANT.

Theirate Woman Learned After a Short and Stormy Experience.

On three successive days she had crooked her forefinger at the conductor to let him know that she wanted to get off at the next corner, and on three successive days he had smiled amiably back at her, with his hands in his pockets, and straightway proceeded to allow her to be carried two blocks beyond her destination. On the fourth day the woman made up her mind to be self-reliant. She had depended too long upon inefficient public servants who calmly disregarded her wishes, and she refused to depend upon them longer. Accordingly, when the car passed the corner where she wished to alight, she did not even look toward the conductor, but stood up and rang the bell herself.

For an irate passenger to ring the bell when conductors fail to do their duty is no crime nowadays, but the woman in her zeal overshoot the mark. She rang the bell twice, and the motorman, after barking half way round and grumbling under his breath, "What all that fellow, anyhow?" turned on an extra current, and the car went spurting along to the next corner. The woman grew even redder than the temperature warranted and jerked the rope twice again. Again the motorman turned his head and muttered, and again the car went shooting past the crossing on toward the third corner.

The conductor was awake to the situation, and he stood on the rear platform with his arms folded, smiling and saying nothing. A third time was this little comedy of the two bells enacted, and finally the woman found herself four blocks beyond her home. Then she turned and shook her fist at the conductor.

"Do you want to get off, madam?" he said suavely.

"Do!" she stormed. "What do you suppose I have been jerking this rope that way for all this time?"

"That is what I was wondering about," he said innocently. "To ring twice means to go on, and I'm sure we were already going as fast as the law allows, even without all that extra urging. I guess the motorman must have thought I had lost my senses."

The car stopped then, and the woman was obliged to get off without taking time to make a reply, which, judging by her look, was probably just as well for all concerned.

Nature's Destiny in Niagara Falls.

The waterfall at Niagara opened an economic drama by damming up the main waterway of the northern states. But for the innavigable rapids and whirlpool of the Niagara and but for the falls Governor Clinton would doubtless have ended his ditch digging originally planned to connect New York city with the fur yielding red man's lands of the upper lakes at Oswego and saved a hundred miles and more of costly construction. In that case Oswego and not Buffalo would have become the sixth commercial city in the world. But the falls were long of vision, they had set their hearts on larger things than even DeWitt Clinton dared fancy; they foresaw the growth of the west and resolved upon seizing for their own purpose the swollen bulk of traffic which must soon be tided eastward. Shrewd strategy, was it not?

Reason For Growling.

The farmer had told the tramp to search the shed for some cold biscuit. "But don't strike a light," warned the farmer. "I won't risk having the place burned down." "Then I can't look for de biscuit, boss," said the tramp. "Why not?" "Well, de last time I searched in de dark I ate a lot of dog biscuits an got de hydrophobia from bearin meself bark."

A Good Breakfast.

A good breakfast is the physical basis of a day's work, says The Medical Brief. The American breakfast, regarded with so much horror on the European continent, has contributed largely to make the nation what it is today. It enabled our forefathers to do an amount of work which it appalls foreigners to contemplate.

The Worm Turned.

Dentist (to patient from Wayback)—Did you ever take gas before? Patient—Look, here, smarty! That joke's gone fur enough! Ye bin talkin to thet fresh hotel clerk, ain't ye?

An Erratic Temperament.

"A man of artistic temperament never worries about the money he owes." "No; but it nearly kills him when he doesn't get money that is owing to him."

It is a mistake to suppose that it is always the last straw which breaks the camel's back.
