COUNTY CORRESPONDENCE

FINGERBOARD

Mr. Alton Tripp who has been in the United States for the past two years has returned home. His many friends are pleased to see him again in their midst. Through this neighborhood threshing seems to be the order of the day, no less than four machines are engaged. Mrs. Geo. Smith has returned home after spending a week with friends in Toronto. Mr. Chas. Trick of Manitoulin Island was the guest of Mr. Robt. Frise one day last week. Mr. Norman Frise is said to be recovering after a short illness. Mr. John Moase was the unlucky man to have a valuable cow die a few days ago. Mr. John Macroft who passed the Public School leaving at Port Perry with honors is now attending high school at the same place.

OMEMEE

Farmers are very busy teaming out their oats and pens. Higher prices for both than has been known formerly. Little or no sickness in the village. Dr. Cornwall is able to attend to his office duties and is looking well. Many of our farmers and townspeople are intending to visit the Lindsay Central this week. We hope to be favored with a return visit at our show Oct. 2nd and 3rd when good attractions are expected. The Citizen's band will entertain the proceedings. The last evening of our agricultural show will be wound up by an entertainment in Bradburn's hall by a troupe of comic vocalists. Rev. Wilson of St. Andrew's church Lindsay with Miss Spier visited in this week. Rev. Mr. Strike of Lindsay filled the Methodist church pulpit here on last Sabbath acceptably. The Anglican church are holding their services in the Presbyterian church during repairs to their own. The ladies of the village are organizing their different church and library societies.

OAKWOOD

Large crowds attended the services on Sabbath. A repeat order of those nobby Whippoor Overcoats, which have sold so well this fall, expected in a few days at Hogg Bros., Oakwood. Everything is ready for the banner township fair at Oakwood on Tuesday and Wednesday next, Oct. 1st and 2nd. With fine weather will be the greatest fair the Society has yet held. There are increased entries in every department. The speeding-in-the-ring events will be right up to date. Don't miss this great township fair. Remember, there will be special attractions at Hogg Bros. on fair day. Mr. Hogg made another purchasing trip to the markets last week. Miss Lottie Bowes spent a few days last week visiting Port Perry friends. New Dress Goods, new Tartans, new underwear for the little ones, medium size and big 'uns for both sexes; new clothing. Mr. Jim Pascoe of the Sutcliffe firm Lindsay was in town Sunday. 300 pairs new hose in plain and ribbed, in cashmere and wool, sizes 4 1/2 to 9 1/2. Mrs. Sodian and daughter Sadie is visiting her daughter Mrs. Chas. Perrin. Hogg Bros. have just received a lot of tea, direct from Japan. They will tell you more about it later. Ask about it when in the store or send for sample and particulars. Mr. Edward Prouse, our enterprising harness maker and hardware dealer has put out a new sign, a true index of his flourishing business. A number from here took in the fair at Victoria Road on Tuesday. Hogg Bros. are clearing several lines, odd lines, of Dry Goods at 10 cents a yard. Regular price from 12 1/2 to 20 cents. Ask to see them. Farmers are busy filling their silos, a fact apparent by the hum of the machine. Over 200 pair Pants in stock at Hogg Bros. from 90 cents to $3 per pair. Cut right, made right and marked right. The survey of the village drain being completed we presume operations will commence soon. It is hoped that a different gang will fill it in so that the chances of having a broken neck will be lessened. Mr. James Thorndike has taken in all the fairs and so far has captured a fair share of the red tickets. Before purchasing will you be good enough to ask to have a look at the last two shipments of Suits, just arrived, at Hogg Bros. Price $7 and $7.50, special value. While engaged threshing back north the other day the hands came across a hornet's nest and the fun of it was that before they knew it they were fighting among themselves. The excitement given by some are very exciting and proved beyond a doubt that they are exceedingly brave.

CRESSWELL

The annual anniversary services in connection with the Presbyterian church of this place will be held on Sunday and Monday the 25th and 30th inst. The services on Sunday at 2.30 and 7 p.m. will be conducted by the Rev. J. B. McLaren of Columbus. On Monday tea will be served by the ladies of the congregation from 4 to 7 p.m. At 7.30 a literary program will be rendered in the church at which Rev. J. B. McLaren will deliver an address entitled "Spiders." Rev. Messrs. Robinson of Manilla and Daniels of Cannington will also give short addresses. Special music is being prepared by the choir for the occasion. Mr. W. Day of Powles' Corners spent a couple of days among us last week delivering books for which he had taken orders last June. Many availed themselves of the opportunity of securing a copy of "Portraits and Principles" from Mr. Day.

Among those of our vicinity who have been to see the sights of the Pan-American recently are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Milne; Mr. E. Evans and daughter Miss Winnie; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Noble. They all express themselves as highly delighted with the exposition. Miss Eliza Grant and Miss Annie McFadyen of Manilla spent a few days in Port Perry last week visiting their friend Miss Christian. They were eye-witnesses of Port's recent fire. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moore of Pufferlaw spent last Sunday at Mr. A. J. McLines'.

It is our sad duty to this week report the death of Mr. James Ormiston of this place at the early age of 42 years. Mr. Ormiston had been for a number of years a prosperous farmer at Beaverton, but some two years ago decided to leave there and hence purchased a farm in this section, where he intended to make a home for himself and family. Last winter he was taken with a severe attack of la grippe followed by pneumonia, from which medical aid seemed unable to release him. Deceased although living in his new home here only since last spring proved himself a valuable neighbor and a true citizen. The funeral services on the 17th was conducted by his former pastor Rev. Wishart of Beaverton assisted by the Rev. P. F. Sinclair of Sonya. In the course of the service much emphasis was laid on the thorough Christian qualities possessed by the deceased and whom to know was to appreciate as a citizen and a man. The remains were interred at Wick and were followed by a large number of deceased friends and relatives who extended their sincere sympathy to the bereaved widow and her family of two sons and two daughters.

LAND OF THE HUMMING-BIRD.

The Surprising Phenomenon That Follows Digging in Trinidad's Asphalt Lake.

Few people who travel over asphalted streets are aware of the origin of the black, pity mass that goes to make up the basis of the smooth roadway under their feet. Two thousand miles almost due south from Halifax lies the little tropical island of Trinidad—a British possession off the coast of northern South America. At the southwestern extremity of this colony the famous Pitch Lake is located on the summit of a small hill, less than two hundred feet above the level of the sea. In appearance there is nothing phenomenal about this wonder of the tropics but a visit to the lake as it is familiarly called, reveals one of the most unaccountable facts of nature in the annals of passage to the "land of the humming-bird."

The tourist may like their country to be called — and after securing accommodation at the only decent hotel in the colony, proceed to the lake by one of the small Government steamers plying coastwise three times weekly, disembark at the Brighton pier, and proceed to the scene of "digging." Of all the crude, rough and ready means of extracting wealth from mother earth, the Trinidad Lake asphalt operations are the most striking. The visitor arrives on a fairly level plateau, spotted here and there with the soft, shiny substance known as asphalt glitters in the reflection of a fierce tropical sun. Scattered over the surface of the lake dozens of swarthy negroes are plying pick and hoe, extracting the tar-coaly looking stuff from the earth. One may sit in the shade of a nearby shrub, or under the protecting shelter of an umbrella, and watch the negroes pile heap after heap of the asphalt into the endless chain of tubs that hurry along to the pier, from which one has but recently landed, until a yawning excavation of twenty or more feet suggests to the supervising dandy that the time has come to move a bit further on. In the course of a few hours the excavation resulting from the morning's diggings begins to look less deep, and by eventide the spot from which more than five or ten tons have been dug is again level with the surrounding earth and ready to be dug over by the gang of noisy blacks. From the point of digging to the pier is but a mile or less of endless-chain descent, moored to the pier are big sailing vessels, and sometimes steamers, into whose capacious holds the tube discharge the pitch at the rate of two or three hundred tons per day.

Still Readable.

Mr. Hawley looked down at his wife with pitying indulgence as she busily writing in a small book the day after Christmas. "Copying that old list of names and presents, my dear, I suppose," he said lightly. "Now, how much better it would be if you would just exercise your memory as I do mine and save all this writing year after year. Why, I sent 40 presents," repeated Mr. Hawley, rising on his toes and falling on his heels to emphasize his statement, "and yet I make no note of them save in my mind, my dear." "I know you're wonderful in that way, Henry," said little Mrs. Hawley meekly, "but I'm sure I should make mistake if I didn't keep a list. Oh, here's a letter that came for you from Jack in the last mail this afternoon." The indulgent smile lingered on Mr. Hawley's face as he opened his letter, but it faded and his color heightened as he read his nephew's communication: Dear Uncle—Thank you very much for the handsome copy of "Vanity Fair." I am sure, as father says, that I shall enjoy reading it just as much as I did when you gave it to me last year and the year before and the year before that. Your affectionate nephew, Jack. —Exchange.

FEAR OF WILD ANIMALS.

Really Less Ground For It Than For a Dread of Lightning.

Of all the questions asked by people who have never been much out of doors none seems so simple to the old timers as that which concerns the dangers to which the camper may be exposed from the attacks of wild beasts. It is chiefly women and children who ask such questions, and it is evident that the brains of many inexperienced persons is firmly established a belief that wild animals are dangerous—that wolves, panthers and bears prowling about seeking whom they devour. This belief is in all probability a survival in part of earlier days, when the most civilized men dwelt largely in the east, where they might be encountered by lions, which would attack them, and hyenas ready to snap up the child wandering away from the camp, or the bears of the type encountered by the reverent infants of an apostrophized Elisha, and also in part of that time when the weapons of primitive man were so feeble and of so little avail against the wild beasts that these were justly to be feared.

This feeling already existing is encouraged and strengthened by a certain amount of the writing of the day. The average man and woman love to read a bear or panther or wolf story not less than do small boys and old eyed children listen with pleasure to the tales of some venerable uncle or grandfather who relates the story of the wolves that used to howl about his cabin or visit his sheepfold when first he settled in the country. In this land of America, as many know, there are no such things as dangerous animals, though there are creatures which bear and the cougar are far more anxious to get away from man than man is to get away from them. If given the opportunity they will always slip away and run, and if they fight it is because they believe that they have been cut off from every avenue of escape. Where an animal has been wounded it is a different matter. Then other considerations of prudence are forgotten and the animal acts on impulse instead of doing what it knows to be wise, but even so a wounded deer than from a wounded panther and vastly more from a wounded moose.

But for the average man who is traveling through a new country where wild animals may be plenty, who stops when he has made a day's march and is at home where night finds him, there is not now where night finds him, there is not now ever was more danger than from the animals of the country than from the lightnings which have been killed by lightning rods. Many more people have been killed by stampeding buffalo herds or by all the other animals of the prairie put together. One might almost say that more people have been struck by falling meteors than have been killed by panthers or wolves. And yet from day to day the newspapers continue to print bear stories, catamount stories and wolf stories, and probably they will do so until long after the last bear, catamount and wolf shall have disappeared from the land.

She Stopped the Car.

When a Fourth avenue car bound down town approached Eighteenth street the other morning a determined looking woman asked the conductor to stop the car at the corner. He nodded and evidently forgot all about it. The car rolled past Eighteenth street without stopping. The woman arose and with an angry glance at the conductor began ringing up fares. She evidently had tried that method of stopping a car before, for when the conductor gave the motorman a sharp signal to stop and the car did stop abruptly she said triumphantly: "I thought that would remind you." "But you have rung up five fares," said the conductor. "Then why didn't you stop at Eighteenth street?" asked the woman. "It serves you just right," and off she flounced. The other passengers smiled appreciatively, and the conductor made a careful count of the money in his pockets.—New York Sun.
