BOY CLEARED OF BAD CHARGE

Chas. Fisher of Minden was Tried for Indecent Assault

ONLY A TRUMPED-UP STORY

The Best Citizens of the District Came to the Defence of a Homeless Lad.

A case that created a good deal of interest for the people of Minden and vicinity and reflects a great deal of credit upon those people was heard by Judge Harding at the court house here on Saturday.
Charles Fisher, a young Englishman about 18 years old was charged by a Mrs. Levi Fetterly, with indecent assault. The woman was 50 or 60 years of age and told a most damaging story about the boy. This was in part corroborated by her son Elijah, a young man of 25 or so.
Some of the best people in Minden and the neighborhood believed Fisher the victim of a trumped-up charge and besides raising money for his defence, in several instances were present among those who were present to help him.

THE WOMAN'S STORY

Mrs. Fetterly's story was that on July 4th, Fisher, who was employed by her on the farm, had been a neighbor's logging bee. In the evening he had come home and helped her to milk the cows. When she and Fisher were in the kitchen afterward, she had found fault with her son Elijah for not coming home and helping with the chores. Fisher had asked if she had any fault to find with him. She said she had not, but that she had seen him near the farm a long time before he arrived at the house. Fisher had then, so Mrs. Fetterly said, called her a d—d liar, caught her and thrown her on the floor, fallen upon her, choked her and attempted other violence, and said the grossest things to her. She had screamed for help and at that instant her son Elijah appeared at the door. She said "See what this brute is doing." Elijah immediately caught Fisher and began to hurt him too much. Elijah then had sat at the front of the court room with no attempt at concealment, his explanation seemed credible. At all events, he said that when he caught Fisher he beat him, chased him some distance and beat him twice more on the way. He had got him down and very severely punished him. He had been fined $20 and costs for beating Fisher. Mrs. Wood testified that she was at Fetterly's the next day, and Mrs. Fetterly complained that her neck was very much inflamed as a result of being choked by Fisher. While, however, Mrs. Wood was looking at one side of the neck, Mrs. Fetterly and a girl that was with her, were pinching the skin of the other side to make it appear inflamed.

Constable Welsh said that Elijah Fetterly had come to him on July 5th to have Fisher arrested. They got a warrant from Magistrate Hartle and went to look for him. For some time he could not be found but was afterward located at Mr. D. Sullivan's. He was so disabled that Constable Welsh had got Dr. Currie, who forbade the boy being moved from the house.
Mr. Daniel Sullivan testified that he had found Fisher lying in the fifth of a sheep pen on the morning of the 5th of July. He had been lying there under a part of the roof that had let the rain come down on him during the night. He was in a pitiable condition from wet and filth. His eyes were swollen completely closed and his face was badly discolored and bruised. Mr. Sullivan had been at the logging bee the day before and had seen Fisher there. He had worked well and Mr. Sullivan believed he was a good industrious boy. Fetterly had not a very good reputation.

Dr. Currie testified to the serious condition in which he had found Fisher, as a result of Fetterly's beating. Magistrate Hartle had issued the warrant for Fisher's arrest. He had also tried Fetterly for assaulting

CAME TO SEE COL. HUGHES

Mr. Pierce Ryan of Cape Town is Pleased with Canada

WAS IN THE LEGISLATURE

Mr. Ryan was Kind to Canadians in Africa and Likes Canada Now.

A visitor of more than ordinary interest was in town yesterday morning. He was Mr. Pierce J. Ryan, of Cape Town, South Africa. Mr. Ryan was with Col. Hughes who had gone to Toronto to meet him, and went with the colonel to his summer cottage at Fenelon Falls.
Mr. Ryan is an ex-member of the Cape Colony legislature. He arrived in New York recently on a holiday trip.
"I came to Canada simply to shake hands with Col. Hughes," said Mr. Ryan. "I met him in South Africa and was anxious to see him again."
"Yes, I like Canada; at least my impressions of it thus far are very favorable. The weather has been good while I have been here. I am surprised at the variety of the products of the country. People abroad have an idea that Canada is a very cold country. We regard her as 'Our Lady of the Snows' you know; but I am sure foreign opinion is much mistaken."
Col. Hughes took Mr. Ryan to the Collegiate Institute, and the students were favored with a brief address from an interesting man from an interesting part of the British Empire.

THE PRISONER'S STORY

Fisher was put in the box to give evidence in his own behalf. He is a bright English lad with a fair education. He has been in Canada four years. He told his story in a way that, both in its manner and matter, greatly discredited his accusers. He had come home from the logging bee without supper. Nobody was at home. He had brought the cows from the field as he came. The horses were in the pen; he put them out. Only one milk pail was clean. He used it to milk one cow. It was early in the evening and as Mrs. Fetterly had often told him she would rather not have the cows milked too early, he had quit milking and gone with some neighbors for a swim in the lake. When he came back Mrs. Fetterly was at home and had milked some of the cows. He finished the milking, and put the cows away for the night. In the kitchen Mrs. Fetterly had complained because Elijah had not come home, and reproved him for going to the lake. They were talking of this when Elijah came in and said he would stop there "chewing" him, ran him out to the road, and three times in a short distance had thrown him down and beaten and kicked him. At length he said "I will tell that you assaulted my mother; people will believe me before they will you." The rest of Fisher's story corroborated that of the constable and Mr. Sullivan.

THE JUDGE'S VIEWS

Crown Attorney Devlin addressed the judge briefly, pointing out that two witnesses had sworn that Fisher had committed the crime, and only himself directly contradicted it. The judge must either disbelieve the two or convict Fisher.
Mr. St. John argued that in details mother and son had differed, that the son had denied things that respectable witnesses swore to. The boy's reputation for good behavior and industry and his own manly story, were urged as reasons for his acquittal.
The judge declared that he had never seen a more glaring attempt at a trumped-up charge to cover a crime that deserved worse punishment than it had received. Young Fisher had the confidence and respect of the best people in the neighborhood. His Honor had formed a very bad opinion of the witnesses for the crown. The mother was too anxious a witness; the son had come back into court and listened to his mother's evidence.
The judge declared that the prisoner had given his evidence in such a way that convinced him that he was telling the truth. Fetterly had beaten the lad almost insensibly and then trumped up this charge to escape the punishment his crime deserved. "I only regret," said Judge Harding, "that the magistrate inflicted so light a sentence on a man who should be in jail for at least six months. There ought now to be an action for conspiracy brought against the mother and son. I discharge the prisoner without a stain upon his character."
