DOGS IN FICTION.

Paris They Have Played in the Great English Novel—Rosval, "The Tailor-man" Staghound.

Although it may be conceded that among the animals of fiction the horse holds first place, the part played by dogs, especially in modern literature, is very large and important. The pages of many famous novels have presented us with members of the canine race as carefully drawn and as lovingly delineated as any of the human characters introduced.

Big dogs are Scott's special favorites, and his noblest example is Sir Kenneth's hound Rosval, who bears an all important part in the plot of "The Tailor-man." Rosval is described as a large staghound of splendid proportions and great sagacity, who shares his master's watch on St. George's Mount beside the banner of England, above the camp of the crusaders.

When the Arabian physician Saladin, disguised, appears opportunely, and by his timely ministrations saves the hound, who lives to identify his till then unknown assailant by dragging him bodily from his horse. In "Ivanhoe," Gurth, the swineherd, possesses a noteworthy dog, Fangs by name, "a rugged, wolfish looking dog, a sort of lurcher, half mastiff, half greyhound," who assists his master in the care of his refractory charges, and whose adventures are carried on throughout the book.

Gallant Sir Thomas.

Sir Thomas Lipton has a gallant way of paying pretty compliments to ladies. Driving through Washington one day he passed a huge red automobile that stood before an imposing mansion of gray stone. A young girl in a white gown sat in the automobile, and Sir Thomas gazed at her bowed to him, smiling a radiant and charming smile. He, however, failed to see her.

Soon the great automobile overtook the carriage and halted. The young girl, an old friend of Sir Thomas, extended her hand, and as he took it she said reproachfully: "You passed me a little while ago without looking at me."

With a gallant smile and inclination of the head, Sir Thomas answered: "If I had looked at you I couldn't have passed you."

Millionaire Butlers.

Lord Ravenscourt's butler, who died the other day, leaving a fortune of £30,000, was by no means a unique instance of a great fortune. There is a well known Conservative member of Parliament who in his early days was a butler in Lord Salisbury's household. The money he saved from his salary and tips he invested in a hotel in South Kensington, which he disposed of some fifteen years later at an enormous profit.

Stole a ship.

It is the fashion when a famous judge or detective retires to give a list of his most remarkable cases. Sir Hartley Williams, the retiring senior puisne judge of Victoria, has been the subject of such a retrospect. One of the first cases he had to try was a very rare offence indeed—stealing a steamship. A couple of audacious scoundrels named Henderson and Wallace stole a steamer from the Clyde, disguised her very skillfully and went on a pleasure cruise around the world. At Melbourne, where they posed as scions of English nobility and received much social attention, the fraud was detected. They were arrested, convicted and sentenced to long terms of imprisonment. Stealing a ship is like stealing an elephant, a very unprofitable form of crime. The risks are enormous, and it is difficult to get rid of the stolen property or convert it into cash.—London Chronicle.

A SUMMER WILT ON SUMMER GOODS

A change of season means a change of wearing apparel, but there's no use trying to "rush the season" too soon. Summer clothing is just as necessary as it was a month ago, even if September is the first Calendar month in Autumn. But summer prices at Gough's are among the "has-beens" and are wilted worse than ever this week.

You've Got Gough's Word for it

Its Not Too Late to Save Money. Its not too late to share in the good luck which we have been distributing during the past few weeks. Gough's preparing for a big fall trade largest in history. But there's absolutely no better time to economize than by taking advantage of the WILTED PRICES.

All over the store this week a dollar goes as far as two would ordinarily. You can buy a new suit now that you can wear for several months yet at one half regular price and the styles are not much different.

BOYS AND MEN ALIKE

Boys and men alike are given an opportunity to secure neat and dressy suits at wilted price like these:—

Table with 2 columns: Item and Price. Includes Men's Suits, Youths, and Boys' suits.

Underwear that Men like for Hosiery that fills the bill for Flannelettes and Working Shirts Soft and Stiff Felt Hats for Cloth and Tweed Caps for

Pandora Range

Only Range Fitted With Enamelled Reservoir.

Reservoir is stamped in one piece from sheet steel, which gives it a perfectly plain surface—has no seams, grooves or bolts heads to collect dirt. Is oval in shape—has no square corners to scrape out when washing.

Finished with three heavy coats of pure white enamel which gives it a smooth, hard, marble-like surface—can be easily and thoroughly cleaned. Never taints the water or corrodes like tin, copper, galvanized iron and other such styles of reservoirs put in common ranges—is so clean and free from taint that it can be used for boiling fruit and many other purposes beside heating water.

Sold by all enterprising dealers. Booklet free.
