SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XI.—Third Quarter, For Sept. 10, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Dan. 1, 8-20—Memory Verses, 8, 9—Golden Text, Rom. xiv, 21—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The study of prophecy should be every child of God most fascinatingly attractive, for "to Him give all the prophets witness," and "the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy" (Acts x, 43; Rev. xix, 10). The Lord has told the prophets all that He intends to do, and prophecy is therefore a light in a dark place to show us the way we are going (Amos iii, 7; I Pet. i, 19-21). Our blessed Lord is just the same as when on the way to Emmaus, and the same evening in the midst of the disciples He opened to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself (Luke xxiv, 25-27, 44-46), and He still loves to do so.

In one of His discourses He mentioned the prophet Daniel, and the prophet Ezekiel also mentions him by name (Matt. xxiv, 15; Ezek. xiv, 14). Ezekiel and Daniel were both among the captives in Babylon for their good and the good of others (Jer. xiv, 4-7). They were the Lord's messengers, and in them was the wisdom and the power of the true and living God, contrasted with the wisdom of this world. I find it helpful to my own soul to watch God working and to remember that He is as ready now to do for His glory in those who are wholly His as were Daniel and his friends.

Notice in verses 2, 9, 17, of our lesson chapter that it was the Lord who gave the king of Judah into the hands of the king of Babylon. He also brought Daniel into favor with the prince of the eunuchs and gave to him and his friends wisdom and skill in all learning and wisdom. "Whatsoever the Lord pleased that did He." "He doeth according to His will in the army of heaven and among the inhabitants of the earth." "He worketh all things after the counsel of His own will" (Ps. cxxxv, 6; Eph. i, 11).

These young men were chosen to stand before the king of Babylon (verse 5), but they never forgot that they always stood before a much greater King, even before the King of Israel (Zech. iii, 15). Their beautiful faith signifies God is my judge, Jehovah is gracious, who is as God to Jehovah my keeper, might be covered by idolatrous names, but what men might call them did not affect their standing before God.

Even in the matter of eating and drinking we are to glorify God and not be conformed to the age in which we live (I Cor. x, 31; Rom. xii, 1, 2). So Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with food offered to idols (verse 8). In this matter God wrought for them, not only giving them favor with those set over them, but also causing them to thrive better on their plain food than did the others who ate the portion of the king's meat (verses 9, 14, 15).

It is not so much that we eat, either as to quantity or quality, as the blessing of God upon it. On one occasion our Lord thought that "not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man," and so Paul wrote, "I know and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus that there is nothing unclean of itself" (Matt. xv, 11; Rom. xiv, 14). Ordinarily we are to eat what is set before us, asking no questions, but in Daniel's case it was a matter of sanctioning idolatry or standing for any circumstances it becomes a question of God or the devil. There is only one thing to do. We cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons (I Cor. x, 21).

We are not to imagine that God gave them their knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom (verse 17) apart from study on their part, whether it was the wisdom of Egypt or the wisdom from above, which is first wisdom to be peaceable, gentle and easy to be entreated (Jas. iii, 17). Some of us can't almost imagine that wisdom from the books of the Lord and the law of the Lord and how there would be fulfilled to them, "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." The natural man can grasp the wisdom of this world, but the things of God knoweth not, but the spirit of God. In his understanding of visions and dreams and he would doubtless profit by the experience of Joseph and the ability given to him and to others.

With what sublime confidence in the word he said to the king in connection with his first dream that if time was granted to him he would show the interpretation and how gloriously God honored his faith by revealing to him the secret in a vision of the night (chapter ii, 16-19). See in chapter ii, 28, 29, 47, how he honored God, who revealed to him the secret, and how because of this the king honored God also as the God of gods and a Lord of kings.

So God was glorified in Daniel. "And Daniel continued" (verse 21). There is a most profitable meditation in these words, and we are reminded of Acts xxvi, 22, "Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day." Paul believed Moses and the prophets just as Daniel did, and in Dan. ii, 2, he tells us that he had been studying the word of the Lord by Jeremiah, the prophet.

O'Lo & Mc Cash and

Conservatives

Ladies and gentlemen turned in large numbers Thursday to attend the meeting held in the hall at the 14th of Emily in the interests of the Conservative candidate, Mr. Warren. Mr. Warren, well known resident of that town, occupied the chair in a very acceptable manner, while the speakers were Messrs. Wm. Warren, G. Jordan and D. Cinnamon of Lindsay. Mr. Warren, having lived in the locality, was given good hearing.

Mr. Wm. Warren, of Lindsay, led the cheering and better speech and having worked at that post for a number of years he was able to speak intelligently. He said with the pact and pointed out ultimately that if it passed would mean that Canada would have to be annexed to United States.

Warren also dwelt on the "prosperity of the country under the National Policy and convinced the host that under the present tariff arrangements Canada was so prosperous conditions were such that no farmer would mean a death blow to farmers. Although questioned some of the audience as to the loss of cheese and butter in the United States compared with that in Canada, Mr. Warren clearly demonstrated that he knew where he was and with little hesitancy and satisfaction of the audience answered the questions.

An excellent local address was delivered by Mr. G. A. Jordan, many times before has addressed people of the above district, both the political platform and at various entertainments. The speaker spoke about the early pioneers of the country, who had heaved out for themselves homes and had handed a rich heritage to their families. He implored the young men to do with that heritage and not be misled by any false arguments to even a step that would dishonor memories of their fathers, but hold on to the land so dearly loved. Because, as Mr. Jordan stated, reciprocity was the first step towards annexation and the first step was good enough for the people of the county of Victoria, live under. He dealt with the developments of the West and showed how Uncle Sam being tired of monopolies and trusts and wishing some place to dump her unemployed was looking to Canada, the country that Uncle Sam slapped on the many times before. When any of
