A Bold Reporter.
Reporters sometimes report speeches do not hear and had work their time. An enthusiastic Irishman once honored by a wag to reporting speech in parliament by Edmund on the merits of the potato as an of food. The wag reported the ch apparently from his notes, and reporter, never doubting his good hand, in a report. The next time all London was laughing over speech which made Mr. Bristle the opposite of the theme, George III the monarch. The ministers were of his reminiscence and were of the law. But the good naturalness of the speech with a quiet at the expense of the minister and prepared the speech read by of it. "I hope the man's punishment will be of the mildest kind," said George, "because I have read and to be as I can understand of them. I like the reporter's

HOW TO TREAT ALL SKIN TROUBLE

GREASY OINTMENTS NO USE—MUST BE CURED THROUGH THE BLOOD.

It is not a good thing for people with a tendency to have pimples and a blotchy complexion to smear themselves with greasy ointments. In fact they couldn't do anything worse, because the grease clogs the pores of the skin, making the disease worse. When there is an irritation rash a soothing boracic wash may help allay the pain or itching, but of course it doesn't cure the trouble. Skin complaints arise from an impure condition of the blood and will persist until the blood is purified.
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many cases of eczema and skin diseases because they make new, rich blood that drives out the impurities, clears the skin and imparts a glow of health.
The following proof is offered. Mrs.
Fred Tremble, Gunter, Ont., says:—
"For more than a year I was steady-ly afflicted with salt rheum or eczema.
My hands were so sore that I could not put them in water without the skin cracking open. I tried all sorts of ointments recommended for the trouble, but they did not do me a particle of good. I was told Dr. Williams' Pink Pills would cure the trouble, and began taking them. I took the Pills steadily for six or eight weeks and they completely cured the trouble. This was several years ago, and I have never been bothered with it since."
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

She's the Mother of 49 Children

Sunderland, in the British Isles, just now is forging to the front in the list of those localities in which the birth rate has been increased by rapid strides.

The wife of a small housekeeper in the Weardale town last month became the mother of twins, which would have satisfied most fond parents for one twelve-month. But this woman already had borne a set of twins less than a year previously, thus establishing a record of four children in a year's time.
The actual record, so far as history records, hands the palm to Signera Granta, wife of an Italian living in Barcelona. At the age of 60 years she was able to look backward and count forty-nine olive branches as a result of her duty to her state.
She undoubtedly still holds the record, and so far none of the English parents has been able to anywhere near equal her feat.

Recently there was an extraordinary case of numerous offspring in the same family, but this came of two mothers. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, of Chiswick, boasts twenty-nine children, but the present Mrs. Rogers is the second wife. The father is 70 years old and might have been seen carrying his latest infant to baptism a few weeks ago as proudly as he bore his firstborn to the altar.

T. A. Slack, of Purley, Surrey, also lays claim to thirty children, all but one of whom are living.
Thomas Piquart, a stalwart Scot, hailing from Edinburgh, is the father of thirty-six children, and he has lived to see many of them gain high positions in the world of commerce and learning.

In the annals of French birth rates there is recorded a lawyer who was the father of forty-five, and there is evidence of a baker who could boast of twenty-one children born at seven births, and all within the astonishing space of seven years.

obtained a double writ—habeas corpus and prohibition—at Montreal today, and whirled in a special train into Coaticook, where not long before the immigration authorities had ordered Thaw's deportation from the Dominion.

There were cheers when the writ arrived and more cheers whenever Thaw's face appeared at the window of the detention room. Not only by the writ secured in Montreal, but by the action of his attorneys on appeal, did Thaw to-day block his deportation. In addition, he had the pleasurable knowledge that his old enemy, William Travers Jerome, had been arrested, charged with gambling.

If ever a little town produced "sensations" Coaticook did to-day.
First came Jerome's arrest and release on bail on a charge that he had played poker yesterday on railroad property with some newspaper men. Then came word that Thaw's lawyers had obtained in Montreal a writ variously described here as one of habeas corpus prohibition and restraint, demanding Thaw's production in court there forthwith. Meantime the special board of enquiry ordered Thaw's deportation to Vermont under two clauses of the Immigration Act, namely, that he had entered Canada by stealth and had, within five years, been an inmate of an institution for the insane. Both these decisions Thaw's lawyers appealed, then clinched matters with a notice by telegraph that the writ had been granted in Montreal.

You never have to dun a man who owes you a grudge.

Scene from "Brewster's," at Academy of Music, Friday, Sept. 12.

Have Mercy on Mother

(By Beatrice Fairfax.)
If some one did not occasionally point to the burden on every Mother's shoulders, the world would forget she carried one, for she never complains. Could she have the longing of her heart gratified her burden would always remain invisible to those she loves.

She is happy so long as the burden rest on her back. It is when neglect and inappreciation from her children lift the burden to her heart, that her sorrow begins.
Mother is in need of mercy all the year, and her need is particularly great in the hot days of Summer. It is then that husband and children seek every bit of cool air in the house and out, and Mother is left in the kitchen. The steam from the cooking vegetables, the wave of hot air from the oven where the strawberry shortcake the family demands is turning a delicate brown; the heat curling up from the iron that is pressing out daughter's dainty white dress—all these, if justice is done, are somewhere, in a world not visible to mortal eyes, turning into the smoke of incense before mother's shrine.

A GIRL MUST HAVE.
A girl must have wash dresses in Summer. She owes that to herself, and she owes it to her Mother that they be of a fashion easy to make and easy to launder. Fruits are a summer joy and a necessity, but the benefit gained is lost if the fruit is smothered between rich pie crust that increases the heat of the kitchen in its making, and the heat of the body in its digestion.
The office downtown was hot all day, and the girl who has no mercy on Mother complains all evening because she had to work in it, taking into no account that the hottest office in town is a delightfully cool summer resort compared with the kitchen at home.

And all Mother gets in pay is her board and clothes, a great deal of complaint, and an occasional scrap of love, which she glories and hugs to her breast, and magnifies after the manner of all mothers.
Have mercy on Mother! Lessen her labors and increase her wages.
Pay no heed to the foolish longing of a fond heart that would be satisfied if paid in love alone, but see that she gets more.

WHAT IT MEANS.
There must be more garments in Summer, which means more making, more mending and a larger pile of clothes for the laundry, and Mother has only the two hands she has at other seasons, and the strength poured into them is not so great.
There are preserves, and jams, and jellies to be made, all labor that calls for a hot fire; there are basting and boiling and stirring, all exertion that quickens the blood and adds to the heat, which is already intolerable.
The puddings and cakes and pies, which daughter eats up on a cool mossy picnic bank in the evening were prepared in a hot, steamy kit-

POLICE MATTERS

There are many thankless jobs in this mundane sphere, but perhaps few so utterly thankless as the positions of town councillors (elected by the people), and the position of town policemen (appointed by the councillors), and in the present day persons seeking such offices of trust and responsibility do so knowing that they will be called upon to perform much laborious service and receive severe criticism and abuse.
It is impossible to please everybody.
It is ever thus, and no doubt will continue to be, but at the same time citizens should pause for a moment and reflect; or, in other words, think before they speak. Too often impulsive words, uttered without thought, cause pain and do more harm than a cannonade of bullets, and it is always well to remember the old saying, "Words better left unsaid come back to grieve us when we think them dead."

As stated previously, the police have a thankless job, and in a small growing town, such as Lindsay is where there is more or less disloyal opposition, the custodians of the law are very often criticized severely, and in many cases without due reason. Too prone are the knockers to pick out the flaws in the human make-up, forgetting that none of us are perfect; too often disgruntled citizens, who claim to have a grievance, cast uncalled for slurs at the minions of the law, when they should be united with the citizens as a whole in upholding the arms of the police.

The police have often unpleasant duties to perform, probably not infrequently much against their will, but yet duty comes first, and they cannot be blamed for doing their duty. Yet we find the police of the town censured even in doing their duty. The sympathy of the crowd naturally goes to the man in trouble, as was evidenced recently in the disgraceful occurrence on Kent-st., when the police were abused while arresting a man under the influence of liquor. The prisoner happened to break his word and struck the officers while their backs were turned, thus placing them at a disadvantage, and the Chief of Police as a result received a dangerous blow on the right optic, which may be the cause of him losing his eyesight, or at least of endangering the vision.

A large crowd witnessed the disgraceful scene, and many of the baser ones present even went so far as to gloat and boast over the fact that the police "got what was coming to them," when the bystanders should have assisted the officers of the law in making the arrest, especially if they were handicapped by having received cowardly blows.
Too often we find the citizens driving on the police in regard to trifling matters, and ever ready to find fault when co-operation would promote peace and harmony and make Lindsay a better town in which to live.
As a town we have excellent police protection, the Chief having demonstrated that he is quite capable of handling unruly customers and of maintaining law and order. He has also showed himself to be a capable collector, as is evidenced by the enriched coffers of the town since his arrival two or three years ago.
In fact, we believe we are putting into writing the sentiments of the majority of the citizens of Lindsay, and the good-thinking, co-operative citizens, when we state that Chief Chilton and his force have done much to make Lindsay one of the best law-abiding towns in the Dominion, and that the Chief Constable is deserving of hearty co-operation and support.

THEATRICAL ATTRACTIONS

RETURNING TO LINDSAY
"Brewster's Millions," with a capable company will supply a full measure of enjoyable entertainment at the Academy of Music on Sept. 12.
The subject alone, a young man forced to spend $1,000,000 in a year by legitimate means, without taking anyone into his confidence, and arriving at the end of that period without one cent of money or a possibility of any of the dissipated fortune coming back in the future, appeals to novelty-loving playgoers.

BAKER MUST NOT CHEW.

A few days ago, in Montreal, Judge Geoffron fined a man two dollars for chewing tobacco while mixing dough in a bakery. The man admitted the offence, but claimed that he and every other employe in the bakery had chewed tobacco for the past nine years at the very least. The police inspector said, "It was simply awful" to see them, and we imagine that the general public will feel that the police did perfectly right in trying to check the practice. A man's right to chew tobacco ceases when it comes into conflict with another's right to get clean bread.

Women who would rather be envied than pitied show good judgment.
Sooner or later the man with a swelled head will get what's coming to him.

juries received when a trolley hit her.

Washing the face in running water is a more effective way to prevent wrinkles and sagging than the use of ice or ice water, declares an authority who has made special tests with both treatments, as there is something particularly beneficial to the skin in water that runs fresh.
