THE WEEK'S NEWS of the COUNTY and DISTRICT

Interesting Items Gathered by Correspondents and Reporters from Around the Neighborhood.

KINMOUNT

Bert Woods, the young son of Geo. Woods, met with a bad accident last week in Craig & Austin's mill. He was running the lathe bolting saw, and by some means his arm came in contact and was almost severed below the elbow. Dr. White dressed the wound, and he is doing as well as can be expected, but will have to go to the hospital to have the arteries tied.

Mr. Neil Wilson is recovering from the injuries sustained some time ago by being run over by a wagon. He is able to sit up a little every day, and will soon be on his feet again.

Messrs. A. Moore, Jas. Graham, and Geo. Train spent Thursday evening of last week the guests of D. McKenzie the general proprietor of the Lucas Hotel, Haliburton.

Mr. Wm. Kennedy, of Bobcaygeon, Superintendent of Public Works of Ontario, was here last week inspecting the Pearson Creek bridge and paying the September wages of the men employed thereon. The bridge is now completed and ready for the steel, and the foreman, Mr. A. Train has been instructed to commence the work of building another bridge at Gooderham.

Harvest Thanksgiving services were conducted in the Anglican church here and at Burnt River on Sunday last by the Rev. A. C. Cummer. The decorations of St. James' church, Kinmount, were completed on Friday evening, and looked very fine. There was a profuse display of grain, fruit vegetables and flowers.

Mrs. Soward left on Saturday for her new home in Peterboro. Mr. Soward stayed a few days longer to load the furniture. They will be very greatly missed by their many friends. A farewell party was held at Mrs. H. Hopkins' house on Monday last week, when they were presented with an address and purse of money.

One day last week the morning train struck and killed a valuable cow belonging to Mr. George Horton.

The Masons are having their new hall peppered with a square and compass design on walls, and starry ceiling. They intend holding a big meeting and banquet in the near future.

Mr. R. H. Baker, editor of the Minden Echo, was here last Monday on business in connection with the Orange Association.

Mr. Ed. Lansfield, of Fenelon Falls, was a visitor here on Saturday.

Our baker, Mr. R. Rear, reports a good business since he came to Kinmount. He is shipping bread to Haliburton, Gelert, Gooderham and Burnt River, and the demand is increasing so fast that he expects to engage a helper in the near future. He is certainly a hustler and puts up the kind of article people want.

Hopkins Bros. & Mark received an other car of coal last week and distributed it among their customers.

An old time Liberal, of Snowden township, said last week. "We used to be told by Grit politicians, that no money would be spent on our roads and bridges if Ross and his party were turned out of power, but since a Conservative government has been formed more than ten times as much has been spent. Hence forward I am with Whitney."

KIRKFIELD

The cases of appeal by the townships of Dalton and Carden against the valuers, were tried here last week by Judge Harding, of Lindsay. The cases of Eldon, Bexley and Digby will be tried later.

Mr. and Mrs. Mosgrove entertained Judge Harding, Mr. McLaughlin and Mr. McDiarmid on Thursday evening.

On account of not being able to secure the town hall for last Friday evening, the dance given by Messrs. Daniels and McInnes, in aid of the skating rink fund, was held at Victoria Road, in Cavanah's Hall. This change of arrangements prevented the affair being the financial success it would doubtless have been had it been held in Kirkfield.

Miss Grace McKay and Miss Laura Allen spent a few days last week with friends in Cannington.

Miss Campbell spent Saturday in Lindsay.

Mrs. Gossett and Miss Gossett returned to Toronto on Saturday.

Mr. W. H. Stevens, I.P.S., was in town over the week end.

Mrs. Wm. Chisholm, of Toronto, was in the village over Sunday this week.

The recital by Miss Brown and pupils on Friday of this week will give parents and friends an opportunity to see the advancement made by the pupils in the past year. We hear that an excellent program is being arranged by Miss Brown.

TORY HILL

Mr. Thomas Hamblly is making extensive improvements to his saw mill. He is going to install a shingle machine.

Mr. A. Day visited friends in Essonville on Sunday.

WOODVILLE

The dispute between the village council and the directors of the Eldon Agricultural Society over the removal of the fence on the west side of their fair grounds has at last been settled. The council agrees to replace the present board fence with a good wire fence and pay the Society $20. This is poor compensation for the Society for the probable loss they may sustain in having their fair exposed to the public and may be the beginning of the end of one of the oldest and best agricultural societies in the Province.

In the Woodville Advocate of the 10th inst., we read the following item: "The G.T.R. supplied five car loads of gravel to repair the roadway leading from the street to the station, which was unloaded by the corporation." It makes a decided improvement, but the writer of this item forgets to tell its readers that this work was done on private property and that the council had no right to squander the people's money in this reckless manner.

The council of Woodville can find plenty of work to do on its own streets without helping a wealthy corporation like the G.T.R.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney, of Little Britain, visited at Mr. Caverly's over Sunday.

Mr. Robt. Murray, of Deer Park, Toronto, is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. V. D. McPherson and other friends in and around Woodville.

STRING BEANS.

Break the blossom and pull it back to remove the string, then pare a strip from the other end, cut the tar and rub off the skin with the hands. Pack them into jars, set the jars on a folded cloth on a rack in the bottom of a kettle, put on the covers, surround with water, and when well heated, add a teaspoonful salt to each jar. Fill them to overflow with boiling water, put on the rubbers and covers, and let cook 45 minutes (or longer, if large), then tighten the covers and let cool standing in the water.

WHOLE TOMATOES.

Select carefully tomatoes that are sound, smooth and scarcely ripe. Set aside all imperfect ones to be stewed and strained to surround the whole ones. There should be about twice as many whole ones as those set aside to stew, but use none that are over-ripe. First wash the poorer ones, cut them up, and put into a preserving kettle. Heat them slowly stir from the bottom to avoid scorching, let boil twenty minutes. Rub them through a strainer and return into a pan of cold water. When all are cut, drain and put into jars, and set them into the kettle or wash-boiler as described. When heated, fill each jar with boiling water, and set on the covers. Cover the kettle, and let cook one hour. Then add a teaspoonful of salt to each jar, and more boiling water to fill to overflow. Put rubbers and covers in place and cook half an hour longer, tighten the covers, and let cool in the water.

A Stinger

Mrs. Nagger—Perhaps you recall, it was on a railway train we first met, and— Mr. Nagger—Yes, but it's too late now for me to sue the company for damages.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Battle of Life

Did you tackle the trouble that came your way,
With a resolute heart and cheerful?
Or hide your face from the light of day,
With a craven soul and fearful?
Oh, a trouble's a ton or a trouble's an ounce,
Or a trouble is what you make it;
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts,
But only how did you take it.

You are beaten to earth? Well, well, what's that?
Come up with a smiling face;
It's nothing against you to fall down flat,
But to lie there—that's disgrace!
The harder you're thrown, why, the higher you bounce;
Be proud of your blackened eye;
It isn't the fact that you're licked that counts,
It's how did you fight, and why.

And though you be done to the death, what then?
If you battled the best you could,
If you played your part in the world of men.

Way, the critic will call it good,
Death comes with a crawl or comes with a pounce,
And whether he's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you're dead that counts,
But how, how did you die.

THE CANNING OF VEGETABLE

SOME SELECTED RECIPES. THE BEST WAYS. STRING BEANS. WHOLE TOMATOES. GREEN PEAS. BEANS.

The canning of vegetables should be attempted only where you can have them fresh from your own garden or your neighbor's, writes Cora M. Bralaski, in the National Home Journal. "Vegetables must be young, fresh, and perfectly sound, and after they are picked, should be kept cool and used as soon as possible. Glass jars cost more than tin cans, but will last from year to year with but small allowance for breakage, and will insure safety from possible poisons through the action of acids on tin. Buy new rubber rings each year. Make sure that each jar and cover is perfectly sound, and sterilize all jars and utensils. To do this put them into kettles, cover with cold water, heat slowly, and let boil ten to fifteen minutes. Lift out each jar when ready to fill it. Use no iron or tin utensils to hold the fruits or vegetables. The kitchen, the clothing of the workers, and the towels should be absolutely clean. Cooking vegetables or fruits in their own jars set into hot water has superseded the method of cooking a great kettleful at once. It requires less handling of the food, and insures more certain results. Make a rack of thin strips of wood to fit into the bottom of a wash-bowl or large kettle, or improvise something to raise the jars above the bottom of the kettle so that an inch or more of boiling water may circulate freely underneath them as well as around the sides. Pack the prepared vegetable or fruit into the jars, lay a folded towel on the rack, set the jars on this and pour in lukewarm water to surround them to one-third the height of the jars. Put on the covers, heat the water to boiling, and when cooked a sufficient time (see recipes), adjust the rubbers, fill each jar to overflow, using the contents of one or two jars to do this. Run the handle of a silver spoon around inside the mouth of the jar to break any bubbles that may lurk there, replace covers, and cook longer as required. Allow the jars to cool in the water.

Three Good Ones

An exchange gives the following three hints for housewives, without raising its subscription rates. Here they are:

Heat a lemon thoroughly before squeezing it, and you will obtain nearly double the quantity of juice that would be obtained if it were not heated.

Tough steak may be rendered tender by lying for two hours on a dish containing three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and salad oil, or better a little pepper, but no salt; turn over 20 minutes. Oil and vinegar soften the fibres without extracting the juices.

If you have covered a pan in which to roast meat, never open it to baste the meat. Keep covered from first to last. The idea is to keep the pan is full of steam, which penetrates the fibres of the meat. If desired to brown the outside, leave the cover off for a short time in a quick oven.

To Save Animals from Choking

In a recent issue of the Bobcaygeon Independent there appeared the following recipe for the preventing of animals choking to death. If the animal recovers bless the Watchman-Warder for calling your attention to such a good recipe. If the poor dumb brute dies, then curse the Bob Ind. man for spreading foolishness and tempting us to do the same. Also, in case a recovery is not made by the choking animal, it might be possible to get another plug of tobacco on the strength of the choke. The Bob Ind. man says:

If you have an animal that is choked on an apple or a piece of pumpkin, don't run the buggy whip down its throat to relieve it. Don't give soft soap, soda or lard—they will do no good if the case is a bad one. Don't be inhuman enough to use a mallet and block of wood to mash the obstruction, as is often done. We had a valuable cow that got choked on an apple. We called in the neighbors, and all of them had a different cure. After they had done everything they knew but put pepper tea in her ear and split her sail, my wife came to the rescue with her "hook larnin' cure." The men had never heard of tobacco curing a choke. So after everything else had failed, and the poor beast was almost dead they consented to try the concoction. She mixed some fine cut tobacco and molasses into a ball about the size of a hulled walnut, then the men put a plover cleave in the cow's mouth to hold it open, and then held her neck out straight and head up. The tobacco ball was dropped down her throat as far as possible. The cow was then unable to stand, and was bloated nearly to the bursting point. In a few minutes she stretch-

LUTHER BURBANK'S L PRODUCE THE DAISY—ONE OF THE BEAUTIFUL OF FLOW

Writing in the August Wharton James tells some the genius of Luther Burbank evinced and his capacity of perseverance. The whole story of Burbank's life is an interesting and perhaps worthy of more notice the careful experimentation of a new daisy—a species that would be hardy, and that would be bigger, but more beautiful than the daisy of the daisy. And he accomplished his desire. He had a daisy as interesting as follows:

Burbank's achievements, daisy are more fascinating fairy tale. From England, Germany, Australia—every grow—he got seeds of varieties, not a few, but thousands. These were planted and watched with care. They were all gone, but out of their death was new daisy, larger, more more hardy, and that would in every climate perennial suit was his "Shasta" (the most beautiful flower—of clear, brilliant white, the centre of pure yellow on slender, yet strong, at thousand seeds required experiment? Yes, and of thousand become fifty or five hundred thousand seeds what he wants. It is soiling that has different Burbank's plans from those. He speedily learned results are now to be obtained adequate methods. The seed daisy seeds were on millions and millions were grown from these seeds was only after the experiment completed, and the habit "Shasta" permanently in his experimental plants were in his methods of work bank is quick and decided my privilege to be with his morning in his grounds" at Sebastopol, miles from his home. Rows of young plum trees, coral fruit, stood before us. I saw were with us, one of handful of brown or "These are all grown from seed. Now see how they picked a few plums on the rapidly he looked at one basket it, and said "Kil scarcely got my teeth into plum when he was on to try, with a rapidity that truly astounding. His keen ed to scientific accuracy. I seemed to me to be one of the attributes of the tree and favor as to texture, almost in a moment, he whether that tree was was to go to the bonfire. I saw as I saw write it from his lips. "Kill 'em," "Kill 'em," "Kill 'em." The attendants followed the white or black string and the fate of the
