HYMENEAL.

GEARY-GUIRY. A pretty wedding was solemnized last Tuesday at St. Martin's church, Ennismore, when Miss Teresa Guiry became the wife of Mr. Andrew Guiry. The bride, who was assisted by Miss Lillian O'Connor, was charmingly attired in brown corduroy velvet, with hat to match. Mr. Peter Galvin acted as best man. The happy couple left on a trip to London, and on their return will reside at Elm Dale, Ennismore.

It's an easy matter to forgive those who trespass against others.

Let's Have It. An early campaign orator was addressing a small crowd over on the south side the other evening. "This high cost of living is a serious question," he bawled. Nobody disputed that. "It's a great question," vociferated the orator, "a very serious question indeed."

My Financial Wash. [The government has installed machines for laundering the paper money.—News Item.]

I haven't got much filthy cash. A one two dollar bill. But I shall send it to the wash And put it through the mill. I'll take my washing every week And give it to the clerk. For I have a scheme unique And hope to see it work.

The fellow who removes the grime. Who renovates and cleans. He may mislay my wash some time And give me Hetty Green's. —Pittsburgh Post.

An Ounce of Prevention. Hubby—Well, I did one charitable act today. Wifey—I'm so glad, dear. Tell me all about it. Hubby—Oh, there isn't much to tell. One of my clerks asked for an increase in salary so that he could get married, and I refused to give it to him.—Exchange.

Household Gods. The baby takes to her bed at night. A one eyed rabbit that once was white. A watch that came from a cracker. I think. And a lidless inkpot that never held ink. And the secret is locked in her tiny breast Of why she loves these and leaves the rest. And I give a loving glance as I go To three brass pots on a shelf in a row. To my grandfather's grandfather's loving cup. And a handy legged chair I once picked up. And I can't for the life of me make you see Why just these things are a part of me. —London Spectator.

STORIES OF BRET HARTE.

His Dislike of Social Duties and Mere Literary Friendships. Mr. Moncure Conway in his autobiography gives an amusing reminiscence of Bret Harte's proneness to escape from what are known as "social duties." Mrs. Conway "recreated" on Monday afternoons, and Bret Harte had told her that he would be present on a particular Monday, but he failed to appear, much to the regret of some persons who had been invited for the occasion. "When, chancing to meet him," writes Mrs. Conway, "I alluded to the disappointment. He asked forgiveness and said, 'I will come next Monday, even though I promise.'"

He had a constant dread that his friendship or acquaintance would be sought on account of his writings rather than for himself. A lady who sat next him at dinner without remarking his name afterward remarked, "I have always longed to meet him, and I would have been so different had I only known who my neighbor was." This, unfortunately, being repeated to Bret Harte, he exclaimed: "Now, why can't a woman realize that this sort of thing is insulting? ... If Mrs. B. talked with me and found me uninteresting as a man, how could she expect to find me interesting because I was an author?"—Henry Childs Merwin's "Life of Bret Harte."

Passenger Train for Lindsay Derailed

(Special to The Warder.) Millbrook, Oct. 30.—In some unaccountable way the passenger train due to arrive here at 4:50 p.m. from Port Hope, carrying about 75 or 100 passengers, became derailed at the switch south of the station. The engineer applied the emergency brake quickly, thus saving the train from plunging down a nearby embankment. Not a passenger was injured, though some were badly shaken up. The train from Lindsay and Peterboro came on and transported the passengers, thus preventing much loss of time. Two auxiliary trains arrived promptly, and succeeded in clearing the track in time to cause very little delay to the 9:35 p.m. high-speed express train from Toronto.

News of the above derailment reached Lindsay shortly after five o'clock, and for a time the wires were kept busy. However, information was soon forthcoming that no persons were hurt, and that very little damage resulted from the mishap. Train No. 23 is due to arrive in Lindsay daily from the east at 6:23 p.m. Engineer McClinty and Conductor Geo. Adams, both of Lindsay, have charge of the train. The Lindsay auxiliary was soon on the scene, and the track was soon cleared.

Annual Rifle Match At Omeme--Good Scores

Omeme, Oct. 29.—The annual rifle match of the 45th Victoria Regiment was held to-day on the rifle range and it was one of the best that the company have ever had. Capt. Havelock Fee is to be commended for the interest and work which he puts forth to make the company matches a success, and while the matches give the boys an enjoyable outing it also improves them in the "rifle pit," and it is a great help to the boys when they attend the annual camp.

The range was gallily decorated with various streamers and at the firing point a large Union Jack was hoisted, and it was very fitting for the occasion.

The competition for "Dr. Mason's Cup" was keenly contested and it was early seen that the one to win the cup would have to do some excellent shooting. The Dr. Mason Cup becomes the property of the member who carries it twice in three years.

Sergt. T. Evans had one year in his favor, he having had the highest score in 1911, but he fell by the wayside to Corp. John Murray, who made the highest score Monday, and all work forwards to a very close score between these two members next year.

Through the generosity of Capt. Fee those who did not belong to his company had a friendly match. Inspector Elliott, of Toronto, an old Omeme boy, was an interested contestant and succeeded in putting in several "bull's eyes."

Mr. Yerex, of Little Britain, accomplished some fine work with the Ross rifle and thinks it is o.k. Mr. Pollard, of Pontypool, shot his first match with a service rifle and enjoyed the sport and kept improving as he went along.

Lieut. M. Sherin, with a Ross rifle, for their good cooking qualities, and the large crowd that gathered enjoyed the supper. At 8 o'clock a splendid program of music and addresses were given. The choir, under the leadership of Dr. H. H. Graham, was exceptionally good. Mrs. E. A. McArthur favored the audience with a solo, and a duet by

A most enjoyable time was spent by all until the wee sma' hours.

Many a girl thinks she's a world-beater when she can't even beat an egg. Heck—"Is it true that your wife has an impediment in her speech?" Peck—"Yes, she gets sleepy about eleven and begins to yawn."

Radcliffe the Hangman

Radcliffe was the official hangman of Canada for twenty-one years, and during that time sent one hundred and thirty-two souls into eternity. He was the son of an English clergyman. A writer in the Toronto World publishes a conversation Radcliffe had with him shortly before he died.

"No one," Radcliffe stated, "even my wife and family, want to see and talk with me because I am a 'killer.' My business when I came to Canada was that of chief and assistant to the sheriff, and in securing a position with the Royal Canadian Yacht Club I brought my family to Toronto and settled here. There was a man hanged at Guelph and the sheriff's man made such a botch of the thing that the man did not die for fifteen minutes. It was the talk of the country at the time and the Government decided that a public executioner for the Dominion of Canada should be named at a yearly retainer and fees. I had studied the anatomy of the neck and believe I can break the best neck in the world by my method of tightening the rope and springing the trap. So I applied for the job and got it. My first hanging was (I believe) Woodstock, Ont., and the crime was which he was found guilty was terrible that I had no compunction about putting him out of business in quick manner. Then I kept on going at the call of the sheriffs from Vancouver to Halifax, where a murderer had been sentenced. My family deserted me and changed the names, but I kept right on the job because I argued with myself that I was doing wrong then the Government of the country was wrong at would be punished. I held that was the minister of justice at a hanging, and that if I was a murderer was also a murderer, and so pacified my conscience in that way for many years, but of late it is killing me. The remorse which comes over me is terrible, and my nerves give out until I have not slept a day at a time. I suffered agony of mind that was terrible and began to feel as if iron bars tightened around me. I used to say to condemned persons as I beckoned with my hand 'Come with me.' Now at night when I lay down I start with a roar as victim after victim comes up before me. I can see them on the tree, waiting a second before they face their Maker. They taunt me at
